CERTIFICATE A DEMERIT

COURTENAY (CP)—Provincial Court Judge Anthony Sarich said here Monday he will not hear cases dealing with drivers' certificates.

He looked at the new Auto Insurance Act and found it is "too imprecisely" drawn and does not, in fact, amend the Motor Vehicle Act, he said.

A charge under the section is not a charge in law, and the old provision still applies because the new Motor Vehicle Act makes no reference to a driver's certificate, he added.

As part of the Autoplan vehicle insurance, drivers are required to have a driver's certificate as well as a driver's licence. Failure to carry a driver's certificate results in a minimum automatic penalty of $250 and 10 demerit points."

'Longest Recession' Looms in U.S.—Simon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary William Simon says the United States may be facing the longest recession since the Second World War, and does not rule out that it also might be the worst.

The longest of the five post-war recessions extended for 13 months, from July, 1953, to August, 1954.

The last recession extended 12 months, from November, 1969, to November, 1970.

Simon said the U.S. unemployment rate — now six per cent of the labor force — will hit seven per cent by late spring, and indicated he would not be surprised if it went higher.

The worst unemployment in the U.S. in the post-war period was 7.9 per cent during the recession of late 1948 and 1949.

Simon said the economy which has been declining all year, will continue to decline through the first quarter of 1975, and then level off.

Meanwhile, Americans got warnings Monday of higher food prices and more unemployment, and the chairman of Ford Motor Co. accused Washington of inaction in the middle of a recession.

The U.S. Agriculture Department said the cost of feeding a hypothetical family of 3.2 persons rose to $1,779 a year in October, nearly 10 per cent higher than September.

Department economists predicted that by the end of the year food prices will be 20 per cent higher than in 1973, the biggest yearly jump ever.

U.S. automakers reported that mid-November sales were down 35 per cent from the depressed period a year ago, when the Arab oil embargo cut sharply into car sales.

The first nine selling days in November were the worst since 1970 in an industry already scheduled to layoff 200,000 U.S. and Canadian workers before Christmas.

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., said the auto industry has not yet hit bottom, and he was critical of the government for failing to take action.

"We're in the middle of a recession and we just can't sit there," said Ford. "I don't see anything specific being done in Washington."

Workers in the appliance and electronic industries are hard-hit by production cutbacks.

General Electric announced the idling of 6,800 workers — nearly half of the work force — at a major appliance facility at Louisville, Ky. The workers will be idled for at least a week, G.E. said.

The commerce department reported that the backlog of unsold goods held in inventory continued in October to outstrip sales, a certain sign that business will reduce production and lay off workers to bring balance between inventories and sales.

The department said manufacturers hold an average $1.77 in inventory for every $1 in sales.

Meanwhile, Democrats and Republicans are squabbling over whose fault it is that Congress probably won't act on President Ford's economic program until deep into the winter.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott said the Democrats aren't doing anything about the economy except talking. "There is no bread in rhetoric," he said.

TESKEY REPORT LAUDED

The president of the Victoria police union said today if the police board did not act upon the recommendations in the undisclosed Teskey report "we would have to re-evaluate our decision not to make its contents public."

Kenneth Teskey, a second-year law student at UBC submitted the unsolicited report to chief Jack Gregory, the police commission and the union in September after working for a summer as a law-student constable on the force.

Negotiations for next year's contract with the city opened this week.

In his report Teskey offers "constructive criticism" on working conditions, personnel, finances, and claims low morale is endemic in the face of chronic equipment and manpower shortages.

"It is not our intention to hold the report as a club over the heads of the board members but if pushed we wouldn't hesitate to use it that way," Const. Patrick Braiden said.

Doubled Oil Price Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should let the price of oil climb to match higher world prices in the next few years, the Economic Council of Canada recommends today.

The proposal would mean almost doubling the cost of gasoline and heating fuel. Crude oil prices in Canada currently are held at about $6.50 a barrel, $5.20 less than world prices.

The council, in its 11th annual review, says the attempt to hold down oil prices inside Canada may provoke future shortages. The council includes representatives of business, labor and farm groups. (See other council recommendations on Page 3.)

Holding down the price encourages greater use of oil products, detracts from conservation measures, uses up existing reserves more quickly, discourages development of higher-cost Arctic reserves and may foster development of industries dependent on low-cost oil that would be forced out of business when future shortages push up costs.

"We recommend that the federal and provincial governments allow the price of oil to move to international levels over the medium term and that they inquire into, and encourage, the adoption of energy-conserving practices," the council says.

The present pricing program was presented as federal policy a year ago, when world prices were climbing, and was worked out in agreement with the provinces last spring.

$1.5M Fire Destroys Letters

TORONTO (CP) — A $1.5-million fire blazed fiercely through Metropolitan Toronto's main post office building today, destroying thousands of pieces of mail and probably knocking out the 53-year-old structure permanently as a postal facility.

The classic downtown building that forms the east wing of Union Station, which was to have been abandoned by the post office department starting next April, was ravaged through three of its four floors and mail-sorting and distribution equipment destroyed or damaged so badly that it is unlikely to go back into commission before the scheduled move.

Most of the overnight mail in the building — which processed about 30 per cent of Canada's national postal traffic — had been moved out before the fire was discovered on the topmost of its four floors at 5 a.m. But postal officials said the fire destroyed a considerable quantity of first-class mail in oversize envelopes mainly destined for Ontario and Quebec.

An unknown quantity of parcel post, some of it being repaired after being damaged in transit, also was burned or further damaged by water and smoke.

To meet the opening of the Christmas rush, plans were being made to set up emergency operations in buildings on the Canadian National Exhibition.

The Toronto Fire Department, which made the damage estimate, fought the three-alarm fire with 17 pieces of equipment and 85 men in 20-degree weather that coated the location at the busy corner of Bay and Front streets with ice while rush-hour traffic was detoured around a four-block area in the city's downtown heart.

Orange flames burst part of the rool in a southwest section of the postal building and ate through the floor of the fourth storey while smoke and water did heavy damage to the next two floors down.

Between 50 and 60 overnight workers in the buildng — called Postal Station A — escaped without injury after a cleaner found fire coming through a conveyor belt system on the top floor, some of them rushing into the bitter cold in shirtsleeves. Later in the day, there would have been from 800 to 900 persons in the building.

The postal building, apart from handling a heavy volume of Canadian mail mainly originating in or destined for Ontario, also was the primary handling centre for Ontario overseas mail going both ways and a lesser amount for Western Canada.

Overseas mail involving Quebec and the Atlantic provinces — and some Western Canadian overseas mail — has been handled through Montreal.

Tanaka Resigns In Shame

TOKYO (AP)—Hailed two years ago as Japan's man of the future, Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka says he is resigning in shame and embarrassment over "misunderstandings" about the sources of his private fortune.

Tanaka, 56, announced today that he would remain as prime minister until the ruling Liberal Democratic party can find a successor. This might take two weeks.

The leading contenders are former Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda, 69, Tanaka's chief political foe, and Finance Minister Masayoshi Ohira, 64, a powerful Tanaka supporter.

Nicknamed the "computerized bulldozer" because of his energy and skill with finances, Tanaka began his stewardship of Japan in July, 1972, by spearheading a successful campaign to recognize mainland China.

In between, inflation, soaring living costs, international monetary problems and suggestions by the respected Bungei Shinju magazine that he had used his office for private gain brought him down.

In a resignation statement, Tanaka said: "I deeply feel political and moral responsibility for the current political confusion which has resulted from my personal problems."

He said he eventually plans to "make clear the truth and seek the understanding of the people." He added that misunderstanding among the people, "even for a moment, means that it is a matter of shame as a public official that I feel hard to endure."

PLO Wants Hijackers

BEIRUT (UPI) — Angry members of the Palestine Liberation Organization said today they would impose the death sentence on four Arabs who hijacked a British VC 10 to Tunis if the Tunisian government complied with a PLO request to hand them over.

Palestinian sources said the PLO is exultant over UN recognition of its cause and is in no mood to tolerate threats to its authority from dissident guerrillas.

The hijacking incident, which ended Monday, was, in effect, aimed at the PLO, the sources said. The five guerrillas flown from Cairo to join their comrades in Tunis were technically prisoners of the PLO, although they were held in an Egyptian jail.

Protests Useless On Housing Units

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Whether the Saanich council or public agree or not, the provincial government can go ahead and build the controversial 305-unit Interurban-Marigold housing complex.

Close to 300 Colquitz residents mounted a well-organized opposition to the project at the largest public hearing in the municipality's history Monday night.

Briefs, scores of letters and a warning of impending social disaster by a social worker persuaded council to table the issue for further study.

But, legally, the entire proceeding was an academic exercise.

Mayor Ed Lum told the Times today the provincial government, if it wished, could go ahead and build the complex without being answerable to the municipality.

Monday's hearing was on a land-use contract between Saanich and the government-owned Dunhill Development Corporation Ltd.

Lum said he had checked with municipal solicitor Doug Patterson earlier Monday and been told that an amendment to the Municipal Act, passed in 1973, had taken away the provincial government's power.

Lum said, however, that a further amendment to the act, passed Friday, restores the provincial government's power to supersede the wishes of municipalities.

He said, however, the pattern had been that the provincial government takes into consideration municipal recommendations although they had no legal authority to make them.

At Monday's public hearing the crowd crammed the municipal chamber, standing two-deep along the walls, with scores listening from the outside foyer.

Thirty-four letters, received at the last moment, were read by municipal clerk Gordon Hayward, his voice getting hoarse by the time he reached the end.

The writers were all in opposition, except one, who wanted to know where she could apply to buy one of the condominium units.

The entire audience were in opposition — except three non-Saanich residents involved in co-operative housing complexes in other parts of Greater Victoria.

One of the most outstanding presentations was a well-researched 10-page brief by

Bombs Blast London

LONDON (CP) — Terrorist bombs have again ripped through central London, this time during a full police alert, injuring 20 persons and stretching British tolerance to the breaking point.

Within hours of the three large blasts at the height of the Monday evening rush hour, stunned, uneasy Londoners had virtually vacated the usually-bustling streets, leaving an eerie silence broken by the occasional whine of police and fire sirens.

The bombs, which exploded in letter boxes at Piccadilly Circus, King's Cross and the Victoria area, followed an announcement by the Labor government that it plans to outlaw the Irish Republican Army (IRA) and take tough new measures against all other guerrilla groups in the country.

While no organization has yet claimed responsibility for the attacks, police are operating on the theory that the IRA was involved and a spokesman for Scotland Yard said further violent outbursts must be expected in the near future.

The organization, which claims to represent 30 million Americans, urged the public to cut down on use of sugared products permanently and to ask the government to tell food processors to use less sugar in food products.

Blizzard Hits N.B.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Schools and some offices in widespread areas of New Brunswick were closed today and transportation in some areas paralysed by a blizzard sweeping through the province. At least a foot of snow driven by gusts of up to 60 miles an hour hit the northern part of the province while the south received rain and freezing rain early in the day.

A spokesman said the gunman hit the woman over the head with the gun, and a scuffle ensured between the two men. The gunman ended up with a bullet wound in his elbow. The unidentified gunman is in custody in hospital pending charges.

Hospitable Chinese Inscrutable on Trade

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

PEKING — British Columbia's socialist members and their Chinese Communist hosts sipped fine wine together Monday in the splendor of the Imperial Palace of Eternal Spring.

The B.C. delegation was ushered into the Empress of China's delicately decorated waiting room where ornately carved marble-topped tables were laid out with hors d'oeuvres, fruit and fine antique china.

The elegant respite followed a tour of the old Forbidden City where the group was dazzled by imperial splendor so sharply in contrast with the meagre existence of the Chinese people outside the palace walls.

After walking across acres of deserted courtyards and through dozens of palace buildings, the delegation was given the special privilege of walking through the rooms where the Ming and Ch'ing dynasty emperors lived for nearly 600 years.

The precious and indescribable treasures within those rooms and in a special display of priceless jewels and antiques, left the British Columbians totally awed despite Premier Barrett's speech to his host that the children they have seen at a commune on the weekend "were more precious than any treasures."

Agents Urge Legal Action

Insurance Agents Association of B.C. Monday urged their dispute with Insurance Corp. of B.C. be put to a judicial inquiry or legislative fact-finding committee.

Association president Jack Hamilton replied to a statement last Friday by Transport Minister Robert Strachan alleging falsehoods and the threat of violence in connection with agents' attempts to get a better commission for handling government insurance.

Strachan also accused agents of deliberately fouling up the ICBC computer system, but Hamilton's statement made no reference to it.

Agents have repeatedly asked for a meeting with ICBC, Hamilton said, and when Strachan replied he failed to offer a basis for resolving the difficulty.

"Despite Mr. Strachan's denunciation of agents' 'falsehoods' he starts one of his own, apparently to justify governmental non-action in response to the agents' reasoned request for a fair deal," Hamilton said.

Strachan's reference to a $20,000 political warchest "exists only in his own mind," the statement said.

As for threats, the association denied any part.

"Some agents, he recalls plaintively, heckled him at a dinner a year ago. Apart from bad manners, he might as well have accused the offenders of rare foresight in view of what is now taking place," Hamilton said.

"Even the agents' right to strike is denied by statute, though strikebreaking is elevated to the level of government policy by the appointment of various government officials to do agents' work. Obviously, these days some people are more equal than others in how they protect themselves against inflation and declining real income."

Hamilton called for Strachan to abandon abuse and have the courage to put the dispute before a third party or legislative committee as with other contract disputes.

"Everyone should recognize that their dispute is very simple. It's about money, income and service costs," Hamilton said.

"Let's have no more 'bomb threat', rhetoric from anyone."

Report May Be Public

Braiden called the 17-page report "excellent," "like a breath of fresh air" and said "everything in it can be substantiated."

"It is a very explosive report . . . so much so politicians are now concerned and showing interest where in the past none was shown.

"The things in it could be very embarrassing to some people.

"But we're not on a head-hunting expedition. It would detract from a hell of an effort made by the young man (Teskey)."

He said the report "names names," points out problems police have maintaining vehicles ("an absolutely drastic situation," Braiden said), and cites the perennial manpower shortage.

Teskey told the union they "could do whatever they wished" with the report, though he himself has declined to make it public inferring if he did it could jeopardize the future of the law-student summer constable program.

"The ironic thing," said Braiden, "is here is just one man pointing out the frustrations in the department. It looks like his remarks mean more than the 123 full-time members of the force who have been fighting for years for change."

Chinese Relics Dazzling

hooked rugs, finely carved furniture, huge porcelain vases and incense burners, flower arrangements made of ivory, gold and jade and a collection of gold shrines were only a few items in the display areas not normally open to local tourists. The sightseeing jaunt was first on the agenda of a relatively unhurried final day in Peking.

In the afternoon, the final round of closed-door trade talks were held with two export and import corporations and the results were as inconclusive and unpredictable as the previous two rounds, despite a concrete proposal put forward by Barrett and MacMillan-Bloedel President Denis Timmis.

Also during the afternoon, IWA President Jack Munro and other members of the delegation met with Chinese trade union represenatives to discuss the very different role unions play in the Peoples Republic. The lengthy meeting involved extended political speeches on the workers' roles in building a dictatorship of the proletariat and on the terrible hardships suffered by working people before Communist liberation.

"Well, what came out of it all," said Munro, "is that the unions are meant to promote, support and educate the Chinese Communist philosophy." Their role is to talk to the younger workers about the system and encourage them to get involved.

"Wages are set by the state and production quotas are forwarded to the union from above.

"But the union represenatives told of a steel mill where the state ordered production increased by 86 per cent in one year: The union said it was impossible: The workers made 172 suggestions on how to improve production: Changes were brought in and already this year they have reached the 86 per cent increase. It's not a friction system — the party, the factory committees and the union are all the same and they all work together," said Munro. "It is entirely different from Canadian unionism," he said.

B.C. offered to send China a full mixed shipload of forest products at a reduced cost as an experiment designed to stir an interest in B.C. lumber. The Chinese are most interested in importing pulp which is already at a premium on world markets, but B.C. is eager to find new lumber markets and wants to sell processed timber rather than raw logs. Timmis agreed the meetings were friendly and a great deal of information was exchanged but said the chances are very slim that they'll order anything.

"They don't really want to buy lumber — it's rather low on their prorities," he said.

They're self-sufficient now and they use substitutes for lumber whenever possible, as with their concrete rail ties."

Timmins made the initial offer to send a shipload of plywood, plup and liner board and Barrett expanded the offer by saying the B.C. government would subsidize the experimental trade Forest products would be bought from a cross-section of B.C. firms.

For B.C. it is simply a matter of waiting now to see if the Chinese respond to the idea and whether they will also take up Barrett's earlier suggestions that the Foreign Trade Minister Li Chian visit B.C. and that a Chinese trade exposition be held in Vancouver.

But the one thing B.C. unions could learn from their Chinese counterparts is how to inspire their workers. The B.C. group were also told that workers have averaged a 70 per cent wage increase since liberation and they do not know the meaning of inflation since the price of most goods has remained constant or even decreased over the years the average factory worker has $50 in their savings account, they were told.

They learned that workers have an eight-hour day and six-day work week with seven legal holidays and special leave and travelling allowance if their families live in other parts of China, holidays for marriage and 56 days off for maternity leave.

In factories, women can retire at 50 and men at 60, with 70 per cent salary. According to the spokesmen, full health care and workmen's compensation benefits are available to workers.

No overtime is required but the workers are often inspired to go back and work on special projects without remuneration after hours.

Their union dues are 10 cents a month and election of union officers is held at the factory level. Unions instruct their members on the class struggle, study the thoughts of Chairman Mao and carry on the revolution by sending propaganda teams to lecture to universities.

The B.C. group hope to see a factory in operation later in the trip. They left Peking Tuesday for a one-day visit to Shanghai and will travel from there to Canton.

BOILERMAKERS PICKET 5 SITES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers Local 359 picketed five industrial sites in British Columbia Monday to press demands for a new contract with the Construction Labor Relations Association.

Sites picketed by the boilermakers were Imperial Oil Ltd.'s Ioco refinery at Burnaby and its bulk loading facility at Lake City on the Lougheed Highway in Burnaby, Canadian Forest Products Ltd.'s pulp mill at Port Mellon, Erco Industries Ltd. in North Vancouver, and the Gulf Oil of Canada refinery in Kamloops.

A spokesman at Imperial Oil said production Monday was normal at Ioco during the day shift because members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union began work before the picketing began.

An Imperial Oil spokesman at Lake City said deliveries there began as usual until the pickets arrived.

At Port Mellon, the graveyard shift remained in the plant while the day shift refused to cross the picket lines. Pulp industry officials applied to the provincial labor board to have the pickets removed.

Charles Connaghan president of the CLRA, said Monday that the strike was "totally unnecessary" and deplored the shutting down of "major projects in a period of serious unemployment."

He said the strike by the relatively small union threatened not only to disrupt the construction industry but could also affect the economy of the whole province.

Saanich Housing Protests Useless

the Colquitz Concerned Citizens Group which Lum called "a very well documented brief."

It summed up the residents' fears about the high density, trafic dangers, pressure on already-overcrowded schools and social impacts.

It was pointed out the Dunhill development was one of three large housing complexes in an area of two miles — on one side of Dunhill the 120-unit Parkside Place and, on the other, the proposed 400-unit Roy Road development.

Terry Webb, supervisor of the department of human resources unit in the Colquitz area, said his staff was already overloaded.

Webb warned such large housing projects were "a hotbed of deterioration and families falling apart." He said a "very large delinquency problem" could be expected.

A. R. Bain, of North Vancouver, vice-president of operations for Dunhill, when questioned by Ald. John McDonald, said if the density was cut back to 197 it would mean an increase of between $6,000 and $9,000 on the purchase price of the units, now expected to cost between $25,000 and $40,000.

He told the Times today the 30.6-acre property, bought from Pemco Holdings (a company of Victoria businessmen) had cost the government about $600,000.

Lum said council will study all the data received Monday and make its final decision — including any amendments to the present land-use contract — at either a special or regularly scheduled council meeting.

Chicken Production Sliced by Slowdown

Chicken production has been sharply cut by a work-to-rule campaign by poultry inspectors at Vancouver Island's only government-inspected poultry processing plant.

Maplewood Poultry Processors, 2901 Sooke, said production dropped to half Monday but was up to about two-thirds this morning. Normal production is 2,400 slaughtered and packaged chickens an hour.

Twenty to 25 workers were laid off Monday but most were brought back this morning, said a company spokesman.

A strike by 220 grain inspecters across Canada Saturday has halted grain movements. There were no pickets at Ogden Point but Public Service Alliance of Canada representatiive Tom Dalzell said "nothing can move without grain inspectors."

He said the union didn't post pickets at Ogden Point because it didn't want to interfere with any other workers there.

A further 2,000 inspectors employed by various federal agencies started a work-to rule campaign simultaneously with the strike. A number of these inspectors are designated under the law as essential workers and cannot strike.

Negotiations between PSAC and the treasury board are continuing in Ottawa, said Dalzell. There were six items still outstanding, of which the main one was pay.

PSAC has turned down a wage increase of 12.5 per cent over 15½ months with a lump sum of nine per cent retroactive to July 29. The inspectors want a 30 per cent increase in one year. They now earn between $8,477 and $12,437 a year.

the weather

Skies were relatively clear over the B.C. interior ealy this morning however in coastal areas skies were cloudy and rain was falling along the open coast ahead of an advancing Pacific disturbance.

The disturbance will move across the coast and into the interior today and reach Alberta after midnight. It will be accompanied by cloud and precipitation. Showers will linger along the coast behind it.

There will be some clearing tonight as a ridge of high pressure crosses the coast and moves inland. However the next Pacific weather system will bring more rain and strong winds to the north coast on Wednesday. Most areas will remain cloudy with showers of rain or snow in extreme eastern sections of the province.

HOME QUALITY BOOST URGED

OTTAWA (CP) — An Economic Council of Canada report urges better incentives to encourage improvement and enlargement of existing low-quality dwellings.

"About 21 per cent of households in Canada live in conditions we regard as excessively crowded," the council said in its annual review of the economy released today.

The council said new housing starts amount to about only four per cent of existing stock. For that reason, there should be more emphasis on improving existing housing to get better quality accommodation.

The report attempts to develop new guides to measure adequate housing proposes a crowding index and an economic guide based on rent or value per room as a percentage of income.

Using the crowding tool, the council judged that about 1.3 million households still had one or more persons a room in 1971.

But at an overall average of .64 person a room in 1971, Canadian households were among the least crowded in the world. The rate in the U.S. is .63, in Japan .97.

There were great regional differences ranging from an index of .60 in Ontario to .70 in Quebec.

The council found that housing payments took a greater share of income in 1971 than in 1961. The average rent or value per room rose about 85 per cent during the period while average household income increased only 62 per cent.

One reason for this change was that more young people and elderly persons were setting up their own households in 1971, the council said. These people generally had lower incomes.

The percentage of income spent per room in 1971 ranged from highs of 5.4 per cent in Victoria and 5.2 per cent in Vancouver to lows of 3.3 per cent in Saint John and 3.4 per cent in Trois-Riviere, Que.

Blue Collar Jobs, Loggers, Farmers Numbers to Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers, loggers, fishermen, miners and factory and construction workers made up almost half the work force in 1960 and by 1982 this group will account for less than one-third of jobholders.

In its annual review, the Economic Council of Canada says this and other projections for changes in the next eight years in major sectors of the economy are not predictions, but "represent what is considered possible and fairly optimal in relation to the main objectives of economic policy."

The manufacturing sector will produce a slightly larger proportion of total output by 1982 with a slightly lower share of employees.

Agriculture will continue to decline in importance — as a contributor to over-all output — but at a slower rate.

The community, business and personal service sector will continue to be the major source of employment growth, accounting for 32 per cent of jobs in 1982, or the same proportion as the combined total employed in manufacturing, mining, oil wells, agriculture, forestry, fishing, construction and utilities.

The balance — slightly more than one-third — will be employed in trade, financial institutions, government service, transportation and communications.

The various service jobs accounted for 19 per cent of the work force in 1960 and 26 per cent in 1970.

The proportion in manufacturing, mining, oil wells, agriculture, fishing, construction and utilities was 46 per cent in 1960 and 39 per cent in 1970.

Employment has grown at the rate of three per cent a year on average since 1969 and this average is expected to continue through 1977, declining to 2.7 per cent during the 1977-82 period.

Among major sectors, the only area where productivity is projected to decline between 1973 and 1982 is government service.

The best productivity increases are expected in agriculture. However, increases in output will be less than the national average because of declines in employment.

Utilities are projected to have the best record in increasing their output.

"Our projections indicate a stronger expansion of productive capacity for the private economy, particularly in mining, utilities and transportation. This reflects the sizeable investment anticipated for oil and gas exploration, mining development, James Bay and other hydro and nuclear projects, and pipeline construction."

Women Still Live Longer

The Economic Council determined in another study that life expectancy nationally was 71.4 years for males and 77.3 years for females in 1971 — up from 70.2 and 74.9 years respectively in 1961.

People is Saskatchewan had the longest life expactancy — 73.3 years for men and 78.4 years for women; while those in Quebec had the lowest — 70.3 years for men and 76.2 years for women.

The 11th annual report of the Council suggests that environmental factors and differences in social mores may be factors in the regional variations while life-style differences probably account for the gap between the sexes.

The report adds that Canada's rate of 17.5 deaths per 1,000 live births is tied for 12th position with England and Wales in a ranking of 14 developed countries.

Growth Push Warning Issued

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The Economic Council of Canada warned today against pushing too hard for economic growth. It thus appeared to differ with the government's approach.

In its 11th annual review, the government-financed advisory agency scales down the economic goals it proposed for the country because of fears provoking even greater inflation than now being experienced.

The Council was unable to explain a 5.5 per cent average unemployment rate at a time when the economy was performing at peak capacity.

The EEC admits it cannot explain the "puzzling phenomenon" of an increase in employment of 430,000 while unemployment declined by a mere 42,000.

It suggests that "there are factors that tend to keep the numbers of measured unemployed substantially higher than in the past." However, the EEC does not attempt to idenitfy the factors prior to completion of its study into the labor market.

In contrast to the ECC report Finance Minister John Turner, in his budget eight days ago, stressed measures to stimulate growth for fear of slipping into recession.

The economic council report was written before the budget but released only today.

The council, in addition to its general analysis and advice on the economy, tries for the first time to measure quality of life as well as units of production.

It proposes new methods of measuring the adequacy of housing, health care and pollution-control standards and says other "social indicators" are being studied.

Other proposals by the council include:

—The price of domestic oil should be allowed to rise to world levels.

—Measures should be adopted to stimulate farm production;

—Citizens should be encouraged to save more money;

—People should be encouraged to renovate old housing;

—A comprehensive system should be established to measure air pollution in more than 40 cities.

The council had said in its annual report last year that real growth — discounting inflation — in gross national product (GNP) should average six per cent during the five-year period to 1976. GNP is a measure of the total value of goods and services produced by the economy.

This year's report suggests a goal of 5½ per cent average growth between 1973 and 1977.

It says recent experience suggests that six-per-cent growth would result in continued high inflation rates, production bottlenecks and labor shortages.

The report says inflation is international and the result of a combination of policies.

However, international inflation ultimately "is the result of inadequate national policies and inadequate international co-operation . . ." and international organizations have recognized that the main responsibility for policies to avoid inflation lie with national governments.

"In the immediate future, an easing of inflationary pressures requires general avoidance of excess aggregate demand."

Turner said in his budget that in setting government economic policy "the first essential is action to sustain demand." He announced a series of tax cuts in the budget.

Williac Haviland, secretary to the council, said the report was not intended to be a commentary on Turner's budget. But he agreed that economists consider tax reductions to be measures to stimulate demand. The council report was put into final form in September.

Development of social indicators, the report says, is an attempt to go beyond economic measurements.

Prime Minister Trudeau, in a speech in Vancouver in May, 1971, said government should stop worshipping at the temple of gross national product and pursue a new statistics called "net social benefit."

The report says social indicators should be seen now only as monitoring devices and aids to planning.

Of 11 major cities surveyed for pollution by the Council, only Calgary failed to reduce its air pollution count between 1971 and 1973.

The review shows Sudbury, noted for its base metal smelting plants, with the most marked improvement among the cities surveyed.

The cities surveyed contained 60 per cent of the population living in centres of 10,000 or more in 1971.

Practise What You Preach

Finance Minister John Turner must have thought he was reassuring Canadians when he said on the weekend that, in effect, the federal government too will enlist in the battle against inflation and won't leave all the front-line fighting to the pensioner on a fixed income or the housewife infuriated at rising food prices. He promised that next year he will try to hold federal expenditures to "only" a 15 per cent increase. That compares favorably with the figures contained in the budget he brought down last week — a 36 per cent increase in Ottawa's spending for the fiscal year ending next March, compared with fiscal 1974 — but neither figure is very reassuring.

Spending by the federal government — by all governments in Canada, for that matter — has grown by leaps and bounds in the 1970s. Federal expenditures have more than doubled in five short years; the same has occurred in British Columbia. The money has paid for all sorts of new programs and expanded versions of old ones. The Unemployment Insurance Commission, for example, now accounts for a tenth of Ottawa's expenditures.

In good times the money keeps rolling in, the bureaucracy expands more each year, new programs can be added — just like a perpetual motion machine. Governments have spent so well in recent years that their budgets are almost invariably deficit ones. Four of the last five federal budgets fall into that category.

The federal civil service numbers some 443,000 people, excluding the armed forces which would add another 80,000 or so. Adding all the provincial government and municipal employees together with Ottawa's produces a rather astounding statistic — one out of seven Canadians works directly for one level of government or other.

Thus government's contribution to fuelling inflation is no small thing. But the very size of its stake in the matter produces a conflict of interest. For all their fighting words uttered about inflation, politicians are rather ambivalent about it. Governments are the biggest beneficiaries of inflation. Revenue pours in and the main problem seems to be one of deciding how to spend it all.

Governments are appealing to the little man to save his wages, tighten his belt and clean up his plate in the cause of whipping inflation at a personal level. It shouldn't be too much to expect governments to practise what they preach.

The Police Board Is Wrong

The Victoria Police Board is wrong in not releasing a report critical of the police department. Written by a 22-year-old second-year law student who worked for the force last summer, the report is apparently in the form of a long letter. When the issue surfaced more than a week ago Mayor Peter Pollen, who is also chairman of the police board, dismissed the report as being "vitriolic" and said the source of the report should be considered. To dismiss the report on grounds of age is nonsensical in that the provincial government recently appointed a 23-year-old to the police board. In the ensuing week of political reaction to calls in the press for release of the report, rhetoric replaced rational thinking on the principle at stake.

We are told the police board has unanimously agreed the report would not be of any particular interest to the public. Perhaps the report is of slight interest, but the public deserves to judge for itself rather than receive lofty patronizing assurances from the police board. What use is the police board — supposedly the public's police force watchdog — if it has closed meetings and closed minds on an issue that has raised considerable public controversy? If in fact the board finds the report so insignificant then why has it asked Chief Jack Gregory for written comments on points raised in the report? Or is this a mere gesture to assuage the public conscience?

This newspaper has never inferred the report contains revelations about the police department; we only ask that it be released in order to clear up any doubts left by its continued suppression.

System Still Works

The 650 licenced officers who man the B.C. government ferry fleet have substantially agreed upon a settlement of their contract dispute, which threatened to erupt into a strike that would have effectively isolated Vancouver Island. The Public Service Commission has modified its last stand and the officers have compromised. Both sides worked long and hard in reaching a negotiated agreement; they have shown that the reported death of collective bargaining as a means of settling disputes in essential services has been greatly exaggerated. It still works.

Meanwhile, the Times wants to correct an earlier editorial on the subject of the 2,200 unlicenced ferry workers who went on strike a year ago. It mentioned the erroneous wage figures of $6.15 an hour for probationary stewards and $8.50 an hour for chief cooks. The figures should have been $615 and $850 a month.

ICBC Criticized

As a private enterpriser I am the controlling shareholder of a small business (machinery sales) in Vancouver. On my regular weekly visit to Vancouver (the week of Nov. 10), I drove past the ICBC depot on Second Avenue just off Cambie Street. The building was lacking any signs whatsoever. Having been aware that signs at one time were installed on the building I inquired as to why they had been removed.

The answer I received, and I believe it has been confirmed by newspaper reports, was to the effect that this particular ICBC depot had received so much business that the manager had ordered the signs removed, in the hope that claimants would take their problems to other ICBC locations!

If what is indicated above is true, such a condition could not possibly exist under a competitive auto insurance system.

ICBC was apparently slow in issuing any coverage for "non-owned automobile insurance." Our broker from whom I have had the most excellent service for over 20 years kept my two small companies, the second one in Victoria, covered until ICBC organized coverage for "non-owned automobile insurance."

The points I am trying to make are:

1. Never in 40 plus years of buying automobile insurance — including several years as an automobile dealer and operator of a lease car fleet — did I or my staff ever have to personally complete my applications for automobile insurance.

2. Never until February this year did I or my companies have to write a cheque to the "underwriters" the day I wished to purchase my automobile insurance.

3. Never have I, or a member of my staff, had to appear at my agent's office, with a cheque in hand (let alone for a minimum fee of $15) to buy coverage as mentioned above.

I pray each mile I drive that I do not have an accident. — Logan Mayhew, 2060 White Birch Road, Sidney.

Food Destruction

The impropriety of Health Minister Marc Lalonde's acceptance of a free ride to Israel in Bronfman's jet reveals serious shortcomings in the Liberal government's attitudes that are far-reaching. The personal relations thus exposed may also be influencing government policy re. Distiller-Seagrams and the whole liquor industry.

Recent years have seen a 40,000-ton annual increase in the use of food grains in the production of beer and spirits. In 1973, over 930,000 tons were thus virtually destroyed as food in such use. This is nearly equal to the amount of one million tons which Canada is setting aside to aid starving people, clearly not enough. During the deepening food crisis of the past 18 months, many appeals to the federal government to curtail the use of foodstuffs in the manufacture of alcohol have been ignored, it seems.

The Canadian Council of Churches has endorsed a curtailment, as has the United Church's general council and other bodies. The government's answer is inaction. In June, 1973 I urged Otto Lang, wheat board chairman, next Lalonde and nine months ago, Prime Minister Trudeau, to prevent at least some of this food destruction, with no results, despite casual or sympathetic protestations. I believe most Canadians favor such action.

But that neither the distilling nor brewing industry will accept curtailment is seen in the latter's appeal to the senate's agriculture committee a few weeks ago urging the allocation of 100 million bushels of Canadian barley for world beer production as part of the world total of over 8½ million tons of barley for beer. For beer and spirits, something like 25 million tons of food grains are virtually destroyed.

For this raid on world food supply, it gets in return a highly injurious product which is causing conditions which alarm social observers.

We may not all realize that alcohol is the poisonous liquid excretion of the bacteria of decay, which when reaching a concentration of 14 per cent kills the bacteria which cast it off. When it escapes into the air as nature intended it is moved out of harm's way.

HUNGRY CHILD
. . . help him at Xmas

As we come to the season of Christmas giving, people can do a wide service in devoting money that might be used to help Seagrams, etc. out, to assist the many worthy bodies that are hard-pressed to get enough money for their wonderful work of aiding the starving millions: CARE, Oxfam, Save the Children, UNICEF and the Unitarian Service Committee. Various churches and other funds will welcome donations, with income tax exemption receipts.

When we are rightly horrified by farmers killing their animals as protest, and by rotten egg destruction, why are we not equally disturbed at this wholesale and deliberate food destruction? — Harold T. Allen, 2140 Kings Road.

Veterans Forgotten

I am browned off with the Liberal government. I am a Second World War veteran of eight years in the merchant navy plus two years in Korea with the R.C.R. 2nd Battalion.

I also get a pension of $201 which is not any more than enough to exist on. At the rate the cost of living is I can only afford one meal a day and toast and coffee for breakfast and sometimes (not always) a sandwich for dinner.

When Mr. Turner brought down the budget he never mentioned anything about the veteran, who had the guts to go and fight for his country. But he has boosted the unemployment (most of the unemployed are hippies who don't want to work) insurance payments from $113 to $123 a week.

Now this constitutes a monthly wage or insurance cheque of $491 while the poor veteran gets only $201 a month, not even half what the unemployed get.

Incidentally the veteran has proved himself beyond a doubt while most of the hippies who are unemployed because they don't want to work, and if another war came along they would do the same as the American draft dodger, take off for a foreign country where they are safe from punishment.

I got a grant of $60 a month from my brother's estate two years ago and what did the D.V.A. do but cut down my pension by $60.

Next time election time rolls around the Liberal government will get one less vote, even if I do have to vote Conservative or NDP.

God help the veteran, as I know the Liberal government isn't going to be able to as all of the veterans are going to be dead by the time the Liberal government gets around to doing it — Max R. Anderson, 2593 Vancouver Street.

Pretty Pass

Re: the report in the Times under the heading Chute Stamped Out Under Mall Project (Nov. 21).

Things have come to a pretty pass when an alderman feels himself qualified to tell the citizens of Victoria they "are 'bloody well' going to have to get used to walking." What about the hundreds in this city who cannot walk and can only get about by car? No amount of aldermanic cursing can help them once we have lost the very necessary service which the chute provided and which was paid for by our tax dollars. Continuance of that service should have been ensured long before a mall was ventured upon in that crowded corner of our city.

More power to the one alderman who spared a thought for the many who are to be inconvenienced.—Disgusted.

Thoughtful Article

Congratulations once again to Jack Scott for his very fine article Some Words of Praise for the Rochdale Idea.

Of course it is heresy to question the sanctity of property and it is therefore so refreshing to hear of a case where a group has pooled its resources to produce housing which is so badly needed in this day and age. I am sorry that our NDP government has not moved more faster for public or co-operative housing. I watched a television program on housing in Sweden and it was refreshing to hear that land in Sweden is not considered a speculative commodity but a natural resource. Thanks for another very thoughtful and constructive article.—M.P.B. Wrixon, 301—1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

The Sad Scenario of Oil

A piecemeal Canadian energy policy coupled with resource taxation policies outlined in last week's budget have left this country in an uncertain, even dangerous position regarding its petroleum reserves.

The American-dominated petroleum industry claims that Finance Minister John Turner's policy of taxing royalties paid to provincial governments will force development and exploration out of the country.

Even more worrisome, a motion tabled with the budget could prevent provincial marketing boards from buying oil, natural gas or minerals from companies below market value and re-selling at a profit.

"This is an attempt to amend the constitution by a budget declaration which is complete and arrogant centralization," says Eric Kierans, former federal communications minister who is now an economics professor at Montreal's McGill university.

Kierans was in Victoria last week to attend the Canadian Council of Resource and Environment Ministers. In a word the ministers were upset by the federal moves, especially those from the energy-rich provinces.

Power Crush

". . . We are in effect being submitted to a power crush by the federal government regardless of the provisions of the constitution," said Dr. Allan Warrack, Alberta's minister of lands and forests.

And what does the venerable British North America Act say about all this? A 1930 amendment and section 109 of the constitution defines provincial property as lands, mines, minerals and royalties. By the same token, in imposing a federal tax on oil company royalties paid to provincial governments, the budget may be contravening section 125 of the BNA Act which states: "No lands or property belonging to Canada or any province shall be liable to taxation."

It becomes increasingly obvious that the federal realm is intent on bulldozing its way into what was previously considered a provincial realm. The question is why now after years of indifference?

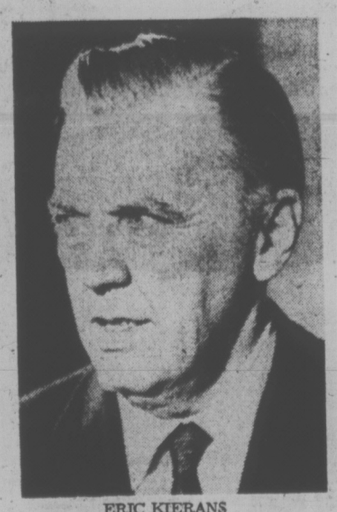
"When I left the cabinet they were not interested in resource revenues because they were giving them all away to the major companies," said Kierans.

"The only time their attitude changed was when the provinces began to make noises about recovering some of the value of their own resources, then they moved in," he added.

Kierans is truly perplexed about what he considers an inept faux pas on the government's part.

"I can understand this throughly coming out of the department of finance. I can't understand Turner or Trudeau accepting it in this form. The politics of this thing are horrendous."

Inflated revenues accruing from petroleum production may in part explain the sudden federal thrust. Or perhaps the government is finally frightened about the consequences of selling out our petroleum reserves — aided and abetted by the producing provinces, it should be added — over the last 20 years.



ERIC KIERANS
. . . arrogant centralization

Whatever the reasons, the federal policies have created an angry climate and new divisions in federal-provincial relations.

" . . . What is being foregone each year from the production of Alberta oil is more than the total amount of Alberta's provincial budget which is being taken and distributed across Canada, and this is not even taking into consideration the equalization calculations," Warrack said.

"We feel that we reached an accord on the price of oil and accepted considerable sacrifice as compared with what the market would have provided . . . and despite that accord we now have this (the non-deductibility of provincial royalties) added on to the situation which we think violates the trust and agreement that we had."

Is Alberta being parochial and small-minded on an issue which affects the whole nation?

"We have analyzed accusations of rich, selfish Alberta and you know, we do not have the highest Canadian income . . . and even if we did, we feel the way to get the equity from rich versus poor is through the progressive tax system," Warrack said.

He added that federal resource taxation will take away a net amount of $800 to $1,000 per man woman and child in Alberta.

Despite talk of separatism from alarmists and political lunatics there is probably little danger to confederation over an issue that will eventually be resolved through negotiation or in the supreme court.

But Warrack, a strong federal supporter, agrees that current federal resource policies will have an "adverse affect" in Alberta.

Larger Question

"In Alberta, very close to 75 per cent of the people voted other than for the federal government party in the last election," he said.

Aside from the legal aspects of the federal-provincial dispute there is an even larger question. Should one province receive inordinate financial benefits, at the expense of the rest of the nation, simply because it sits on top of a scarce resource? And supplementary, would Ottawa be taking such a tough line if Quebec, where the Liberals have 56 of 74 seats, had the oil, rather than Alberta, where the Liberals have nary a seat? It's a mean, but relevant question.

In a legal sense the provinces have a good case. Beside the BNA Act, the 1962 Carter Royal Commission on Taxation concluded that royalties are different from tax and should be considered a legitimate cost of doing business. Kenneth Carter also said resource industries were not paying their fair share of tax.

Had the government of the day had the courage to implement Carter's proposals the current contretemps might have been avoided for the good of the nation. But because of ineptness, inertia and procrastination on the part of successive Liberal regimes the battle is on.

No matter who wins — federal or provincial realms — the country will lose and the American-owned oil companies will win.

C. L. Gordon of Vancouver, censor of motion pictures and films for British Columbia, is here to consult with the attorney-general on matters connected with the administration of the laws. Mr. Gordon states there is a marked improvement in the character of films being displayed in the motion picture theatres of the province and in the type of building being used for the purpose. In the smaller places the latter improvement is especially noted. The act he finds is being very well observed.

Monarchy: It Works

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN
London Observer

Like watchers at the side of some historic death bed scene, a large part of the world expects the worst for Britain. Bankruptcy, chaos, wild inflation, the rule of strong men, revolution — all these have been predicted with a sort of disgusting relish. But in the process of the sickness of this body politic, one of its members seems uncommonly healthy. And this is the monarchy.

This is odd and against the precedents of history. In bad times it is usual for a nation to turn against its most glittering point of power. The British monarchy is fortunate in being powerless and is unlikely to end up, like that of Russia, at the botton of a well with a broken pincenez and a medal or two left carelessly on its coping.

It is not fashionable to defend it. One Labour MP, William Hamilton, has won a sort of national fame that is not without affection for his incessant and insulting attacks on the Royal Family. He is a small voluble widower. He is regarded as "pawky" which is a Scots way of being both aggressive, awkward and amusing all at the same time.

It is not fashionable, particularly on the modish liberal-left side, to defend the monarchy. You may find it faintly amusing, defend it as a sort of substitute parent for the inadequate, enjoy its ceremonial and attendant music as a marvellous "happening". But if you are on the doctrinaire Left you reject it and expect it to wither away as the Communists in Poland expect the Catholic Church to wither away.

There is, in our time, a new element. Envy has taken the place of arrogance as the most powerful political emotion in Britain. And the Royal Family are the most obvious target for envy. The Crown Jewels are state property, but nonetheless the family has probably the largest private collection of jewels since that of the Emperors of Byzantium. It has palaces, castles, mansions. It has a major art collection largely amassed by George III, George IV and Prince Albert. It has a mass of superb clocks, furniture and tapestry. It has cars, horses, carriages, servants and gentlefolk in attendance. Its members work hard, but not as other people have to work.

Yet they are not subject to the sort of resentful envy that fastens on industrial tycoons and property owners. Their wealth has been amassed over centuries and their splendor is thought somehow to honour the country and dignify the citizen. They can easily be defended constitutionally.

They may be the last defence against the prospect of some undefined revolution to come. They undoubtedly give pleasure. And in a thin, ill time, they are a point of stability and reassurance. Such reassurance may be bad for a nation, but it is gratefully received. They certainly work hard at providing it.

The Queen herself is of course the key to the whole operation. Mature now, she looks the part and knows well the subtleties of her role. She is not truly at home close to crowds in the vote-catching political manner. But she tries and no one really expects her to be matey.

Prince Philip however is an ebullient extrovert who can make first rate speeches and charm birds off the trees. He can also be extremely rude, especially to journalists and photographers. But being rude to the press in Britain never did any public figure any harm. In fact it goes down rather well.

Queen, Philip open Parliament last month

Princess Anne is currently the centre of a romantic para-military fairy story. She is bright, rather sullen, skilled with horses and she too sometimes treats the press as if they were insolent stable boys. This does her no harm in the public eye. Her taste in hats is thought to be eccentric.

The great surprise has been Charles, Prince of Wales. He is literally the first heir apparent ever to receive a normal English education, admittedly of the special sort given to the sons of the rich. He is easy with people. He can be witty in the manner taught at Oxford and Cambridge, which involves being frank in a way that just teeters on the edge of impertinence. His speeches are those of a clever young man. He appears vastly to relish life even if he has to be circumspect in his dating with girls.

With him the somewhat heavy Hanoverian strain seems to have finally died out. But he has many years still to go. At present he is probably the star of this huge cast of cousins and close family. Of them all, the Queen Mother is the most loved and, of her, you never hear a word of criticism.

So they continue not notably changed by the crisis. They "opened" Parliament this year with unimaginable splendor. And even the most left-wing of her peers put on his velvet and ermine and sat to listen to her reading the Labor Party's speech from the Throne, outlining their legislative program with that heavy and extraordinary jewelled pot on her head. (According to her grandfather, George V, it weighed 2½ lbs. and made him feel silly.) The occasion made superb television as well as sound constitutional sense.

It is now thought, by those who care, that an elected President would cost the country just as much. But that is not the point. The thing seems to work and, like the Mysteries of Faith, defies final analysis. It will be the last institution on which the British will try to save money.

Canada Keeps the Door Shut On Visas for China Relatives

By JOHN BURNS

PEKING — For years the widower had a dream. Somehow, some day, the door to the outside world that the Communist regime slammed shut in 1949 would reopen, allowing him to leave his peasant labors on a South China commune and travel halfway round the globe to join his son's family in their adopted land, Canada.

It was the kind of dream a man keeps to himself, for the citizen who aspires to leave a revolutionary society may be judged to lack the requisite revolutionary enthusiasm. Besides, was the dream not impossible, a flight of fancy that nourished the soul while defying the realities of a society that denies its citizens the right to opt out?

So it seemed, until the day late last year when the letter arrived from Canada explaining how Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau had travelled to Peking and persuaded the Chinese government to relent and allow the reunification of families divided since the revolution. As the letter told it the prime minister had hailed the agreement as the beginning of a period of happiness for people like the widower and his son, a pact of compassion such as no other government had won from Peking.

The son sent an application to Ottawa asking that his father be included among the thousands eligible for entry under the new scheme. Neither father nor son heard anything for months, breeding fears that Chinese officialdom might after all deny him the right to leave, but finally word came through that he had his exit visa and that all that remained was for him to appear before Canadian officials working on the scheme inside China.

There was an interview, in the South China city of Canton, with the widower answering routine questions and asking rather insistently that the Canadians do everything possible to speed his departure. Then more silence, until the day a week or two ago when the letter arrived from Hong Kong — the letter that was to be the ticket to the old man's dream.

Dreams of family reunions blocked

It was brief and to the point. "We have carefully assessed your application, including your education and training, your age, occupational status and the demand for your occupation in Canada," it began, using the formula used by Canadian immigration officials worldwide, "and we must inform you that notwithstanding the assistance available from your nominator (son) you do not meet our current immigration requirements. Favorable consideration cannot, therefore, be extended to your request for a visa. We realize that this advice may be disappointing to you and regret that it is not possible to give you a more favorable reply . . ."

As it happens the widower in the case is hypothetical, but the anguished disappointment he would have suffered is not, as 13 such letters have gone out to Chinese citizens, snuffing out the hopes that flourished in the months after Mr. Trudeau's visit here a year ago — the first of what may well be hundreds or even thousands of refusals, if Ottawa continues to insist that applicants under the Peking scheme meet all the standard criteria for immigration.

Since the scheme went into commission late last year Chinese Canadians have filed applications on behalf of more than 15,000 relatives. Processing by Chinese officials has been slow, but exit visas have already been issued for 463 individuals and dozens more are approved each week.

So far there have been no refusals in the priority group known as sponsored dependents — husbands and wives, mothers and fathers over 60, children, intended marriage partners and other immediate dependents. Things are different, however, for applicants in the second group, known as nominated dependents — brothers and sisters, and mothers under 60 unless widowed, children over 21, uncles, cousins and so on. These people are credited in the point system for their family ties and are rated on their suitability for entry into the labor force, factors which tend to make it more difficult for them to amass the requisite points.

Is this the sort of thing that Mr. Trudeau had in mind when he spoke of an end to a generation of unhappiness? Or could it be, as some familiar with the history of the matter would argue, that any significant number of refusals by Canada is a refutation of the humanitarian considerations that persuaded the Prime Minister to take the matter up with premier Chou En Lai in the first place? Is there, in short, a case for suspending the standard immigration criteria, for making an exception that takes into account the special factors involved?

The official Canadian answer, as expressed here, is a firm and unyielding no. Officlas point to the outcry that could be expected from other immigrant peoples in Canada if exceptions were made for the Chinese. Furthermore, say the officials, making a special case of the Chinese would amount to an implicit moral judgement on the kind of society the Communists have established — a negative judgment, making the migrants into a class of political refugees — that would risk giving offense to the Peking government and slowing the program down.

There are counter arguments, of course. Did Mr. Trudeau not realize, when he raised the matter as a special case with his Chinese hosts, that the majority of the stranded relatives on whose behalf he was appealing were peasants who in the nature of things were bound to have trouble meeting the mormal education and occupational criteria for immigration?

Did he really intend that such people should suffer a disability in their bid as a consequence — to cite only one example of the specific measures that are used — of their not being able to speak either of Canada's two official languages? Did not the very act of raising their plight as a special case imply a readiness to apply special standards in assessing them?

Then there is the political aspect. As a society subscribing to the values of liberal humanitarianism, is Canada not under some obligation to make a special effort to accommodate the few Chinese — in proportion to the whole — who are likely ever to be given that most basic of the liberal rights, the right to choose the country they wish to live in? Can Canada in good conscience turn a blind eye to the possibility that even the simplest Chinese peasant may yet yearn for — dare one say it, in a world grown weary Wilsonian moralizing? — the liberal freedoms? And can Ottawa ignore the possibility that a Chinese who indicates a desire to leave the country may suffer a lasting handicap if he is refused and obliged to remain?

Answer May Come Too Late

By WALTER SULLIVAN

There have been scientific experiments whose chances of success were very small, but few can compare in that respect with an effort Nov. 16 to communicate with a hypothetical civilization far out in space.

The experiment's chief purpose, however, was to dramatize for the inhabitants of earth the capabilities of the resurfaced dish antenna at Arecibo in Puerto Rico, by far the world's largest. The antenna, positioned in a bowl-shaped valley, can be used both for transmission and to receive faint emissions from far out in space.

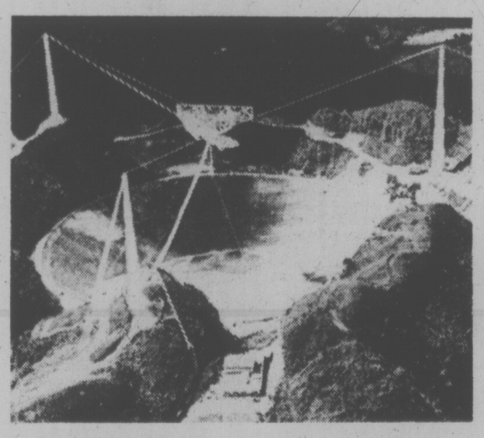
The space message, which can be converted into television image, was beamed toward a globular cluster of stars known as Messier 13 near the edge of the Milky Way. It was transmitted in the form of systematic frequency fluctuations at a wave length of 12.6 centimeters.

If any being in the direction of Messier 13 happens some time in the distant future to be observing in the direction of the solar system and at that wave length when the 169-second transmission reaches him, that being will see a signal flash 10 million times brighter than the sun.

If that arouses curiosity sufficiently to inspire analysis of the transmission, it will be found that the frequency fluctuations represent 1679 "characters" or "bits" of information in the typical "on-off" format of binary code.

Those who sent the message hope that any remote observers will note than 1679 is the multiple of two prime numbers — 73 and 23 — and will guess that an image is being transmitted that can be reconstructed by printing the message either as 73 consecutive lines of 23 "bits" or 23 lines of 73 "bits."

If the first of these steps is taken, with one type of signal printed as a black square and the other as a blank, a picture emerges that is designed to convey meaning.



Dish antenna at Arecibo

The picture seeks to indicate that a civilization exists on the third planet out from the sun whose beings depend on molecules of DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) for the continuity of their species.

A human figure and a representation of the transmitting antenna are also shown.

The transmission was devised by the staff of the National Astronomy and Ionosphere Centre, which operates the Arecibo observatory for Cornell University and the National Science Foundation. It is believed strong enough to be observed by a comparable antenna anywhere in the Milky Way Galaxy, which is more than 100,000 light years broad. The emissions take one year to travel one light year.

Messier 13 was chosen because it will just fit into the spread of the signal beam when the transmission reaches there 24,000 years hence. The cluster resembles a swarm of bees and probably contains about 300,000 stars, some of which may have planets similar to the earth.

As noted by Dr. Frank Drake, director of the Cornell-Arecibo centre, no one responsible for the message is likely to learn if it succeeds since a reply from Messier 13 could not reach the earth for 48,000 years.

The Next Best Thing . . . ?

By ANDREW GIBSON

I do not in any way wish to suggest disapproval, in principle, of the telephone company's incessant commercial theme with variations, seeking to equate long-distance calls — and incidental profits — with marital, filial or parental affection. Because, in this crass commercial world, it would be remarkable if Mother Bell did not seize upon our human hangups to peddle her wares.

Consider: What mortal ever treated Mother as she deserved? What parent ever gave children the love they longed for? What child ever returned to parents the affection given so lavishly?

We are all as guilty as hell, and guilt is the Grand Banks on which the hucksters fish. I don't mind that. But I object to the violence done to logic by the inference that the best way to assuage the longing for affection of a loved one is by phone. A long-distance call, as a little reflection will show, is a distinctly inferior way of communicating one's devotion. A letter, however haltingly, ungrammatically and misspelled it may be, is a far better projection of oneself.

Can you think of a long-distance call that thrilled, that inspired, that comforted and was cherished during absence? Of course not. For such needs, a phonecall is a copout.

The great lovers of history could never have survived the phone. As evidence, I submit the following excerpts from love letters, with their telephone equivalents:

Lord Nelson to Lady Hamilton, written on board HMS Victory, just before Trafalgar:

"My dearest beloved Emma: "May the God of Battles crown my endeavors with success. At all events, I will take care that my name shall ever be most dear to you and Horatia, both of whom I love as much as my own life. And as my last writing before the battle will be to you, so I hope in God that I shall live to finish my letter . . ."

Now, as it would have been by phone: "Hi, Emma! Did I get you out of bed? Well, I'd rather be there personally, if you know what I mean. Ha-ha-ha. Yes, I'm wearing the underwear you gave me. I'm just calling to say that we had to go to sea, so I couldn't get you those Spanish fans. Shiver my timbers, operator! I haven't got another quarter . . ."

Robert Browning, coaxing Elizabeth Barrett to escape from her tyrannical father, wrote: "I was made and meant to look for you and wait for you and become yours forever. You are in what I should wonder at as the veriest slavery, and I who could free you from it, I am here scarcely daring to write. I would marry you now, and thus I would come when you let me . . ."

A phone call would have been like this: "Elizabeth? Bob. Where's the old goat? Well, cheer up, maybe he'll fall in the pool. Say, when are you going to move in with me? Well, you'd better before he drives you bananas. Sure it's a proposal. I propose that you and me get together, baby."

Pipeline Stalemate

By ANDRE OUIMET
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald revealed Monday that International Pipelines Ltd., the company which built and operates a pipeline from the Alberta oil fields to Sarnia, Ont., has refused to build an extension to Montreal under terms offered by the National Energy Board.

"They gave a final 'No' last week and now the Cabinet will have to find a way to break the stalemate between the company and the NEB," Macdonald said.

The Sarnia-Montreal extension is a key factor in Macdonald's plans for assuring Eastern Canada consumers of a supply of oil at Western prices to counter the cost of importing foreign crude for Montreal's refineries.

His policy of phasing out oil exports to the United States takes into account the 250,000 barrels of oil a day to be pumped to Montreal when the Sarnia-Montreal link is built and sets aside that amount of oil as of Jan. 1 of this year for future shipment to Montreal.

But International Pipeline was not satisfied with the assurances given it by the NEB that it would not be vulnerable to possible interruptions of oil shipments from Alberta sometime in the 1980s, Macdonald said.

"Cabinet will now have to find a way to assure the company" that it would not be vulnerable to eventual interruption of Western supplies.

The NEB's own report, released last Friday, predicted that Western reserves would not be able to supply Eastern Canada starting in 1983.

"We can decide in Cabinet to do one of three things," Macdonald said:

- We can make a deficiency agreement whereby if there is an interruption of oil supplies, the fixed operating costs of that section (Sarnia to Montreal) will be borne by the government;
- We could build the extension of the pipeline ourselves and have Interprovincial Pipelines operate it they have the experience;
- Or we can have the whole project built and operated by a government corporation.

Interprovincial was in a position to "hold us up with some hard bargaining," the minister added, but he warned that "it is conceivable that the government will say 'the price is too high' and we'll build it ourselves."

U Thant: Total Dedication to UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) The body of U Thant of Burma, former United Nations secretary-general who died of cancer at 65, lies in state today at UN headquarters.

The body was to be on view from noon today until Thursday in the General Assembly building near the Meditation Chapel.

The 138-nation General Assembly will hold a special meeting for eulogies to Thant after his successor, Kurt Waldheim, returns from a peace mission in the Middle East.

After Thant's death was announced Monday, the assembly stood for a moment of silence in his memory, devoted half an hour to tributes from Waldheim and regional group chairmen and put off to today a debate on whether to switch Cambodia's UN seat from Lon Nol's to Norodom Sihanouk's representatives.

Thant died Monday at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Centre in New York. He had suffered from cancer of the cheek for years. The cancer spread to the larynx and became complicated with pneumonia. For months he had been fed through a tube because he was unable to swallow.

The funeral has not been arranged.

Thant followed Trygve Lie of Norway and Dag Hammarskjold of Sweden as the UN's chief administrative officer. He serviced 10 years, the longest tenure of all, through the organization's stormiest period ending in 1971.

Since retirement, Thant had lived in Harrison, N.Y., writing his memoirs until he became ill.

Tributes began when word of his death reached UN offices here. A close British co-worker, Undersecretary-General Brian Urquhart, said:

"He was a very — in the true sense of the word — good man, courageous and very serious."

Waldheim credited Thant with "total dedication to the United Nations."

"His wisdom and his calm but resolute personality were vital factors in many critical situations."

He relayed the statement by telephone from Damascus and had an aide read it to the assembly in his name.

Forces Under Par Richardson Admits

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The strength of the Canadian Armed Forces as of the end of October had slumped to 78,204.

Strength of the forces was fixed under the terms of the last defence white paper at 83,000. Consequently at the end of last month thhe forces were nearly 5,000 men under authorized strength.

Defence Minister James Richardson who has been under fire recently for the present state of Canada's armed forces revealed the figures under Commons questioning Monday.

Britain and West Germany have already notified Canada they will be sending destroyers to patrol off our coasts next year to exercise control in pollution zone areas, because of the inadequacy of Canadian patrols, Patrick Nowlan (PC — Annapolis Valley) a vociferous defence critic claimed Monday.

He asked External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen if he had received official notification of these operations scheduled for next year. The minister said he had no knowledge of them.

"Check with your department and advise the House," said Nowlan.

"Britain has said it will send seven destroyers here next year. Germany has already notified this country that at least one if not two destroyers are coming here."

He added that these European countries will be establishing some presence in Canadian fishing grounds.

England was "kicked off the fishing grounds of Iceland" he pointed out.

The defence minister "does not know anything about the armed service," the opposition member shouted.

Richardson said there were 10,528 members of the services at October 31 holding the rank of master corporal which is a command and supervisory rank.

At the same date there were 21,592 personnel holding the rank of corporal.

"Since 1966 promotion to the rank of corporal has reflected competence in a trade and length of service. This rank does not carry command or supervisory responsibilities," the minister told the house.

Approximately 60 per cent of the Armed Forces are engaged either full time or part time in office or administrative duties, such functions as training, maintenance, administration and supply. Some of these personnel, however, also perform operational duties, according to the minister.

The Canadian militia and top ranking officers of the regular force have warned that unless the services are built up to strength they will not be able to meet their commitments.

The alternative is to reduce the commitments if the size of the armed forces are to be allowed to drop.

Richardson in a speech during the budget debate explained that the rate of inflation had cut so severely into the forces' budget that the size of the services had to be reduced. He has argued for a streamlined "elite" small but efficient force.

Members of the militia contend that the strength and capabilities of the forces are now so run down that they cannot properly carry out their protection of Canadian sovereignty.

Park Plan In Limbo

The provincial government wants a more detailed plan of a marine and wildlife park proposed for an area of Sidney waterfront between Beacon Avenue and Rothesay.

Sidney council earlier proposed that the government spend $400,000 to buy the strip of waterfront land after residents of the area asked that the land be preserved.

Mayor Stan Dear told council Monday the government had requested a more detailed proposal for the park before it would spend that amount of money.

He would like to see the property made into a park for the use of all Sidney residents which would entail an additional purchase of land for beach access, he added.

Council tabled the discussion Monday night and is expected to decide at the next meeting in December how the more detailed proposal will be done.

TRUDEAU STANDS PAT ON ABORTION LAWS

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday that the government will stick with present abortion law and make sure it is respected "everywhere."

He was asked in the Commons by Otto Jelinek to announce a "clear government policy" on abortion because of uncertainties in the law which he said leave hospital boards and others involved in a dilemma.

Jelinek noted that a B.C. survey showed that abortion committees in hospitals were having difficulty in interpreting the 1969 law which provides for abortions where the life or health of the mother is involved.

He asked Trudeau to make a policy statement which is clearly either for or against abortion.

"The clear government policy is to abide by the law as it now stands on the book and to make sure it is respected everywhere," the prime minister replied. "I hope the Tories have as clear a policy."

SEARCH SUSPENDED FOR U.S. FISHBOAT

The five crewmen aboard a U.S. fishing vessel abandoned in stormy Queen Charlotte Sound have been identified.

The Yaquina of Bellingham, Wash., was skippered by Jim Mathews of Anacortes, Wash. Aboard besides Mathews were his stepson, Jim Macdonald and John Lamphere, also of Anacortes; Pete Allain, Bellingham; and Steve Hardy, Edmonds, Wash., a brother-in-law of the boat's owner, Stan Svega of Bellingham.

Svega was not aboard. The Yaquina's distress signal early Friday morning indicated her position was about 70 miles north of Vancouver Island when the boat was abandoned.

The search was suspended Monday after private fishing vessels government patrol ships and aircraft — including helicopters — had covered more than 11,000 square miles.

During the weekend searchers found an overturned 10-foot liferaft and other debris off Aristazabal Island, about 120 miles north of Cape Scott. The liferaft was similar to one carried aboard the 75-foot Yaquina.

A search and rescue spokesman said it was decided to suspend the hunt for the men because of the intensity with which the search had been carried out and because of the approach of another Pacific storm.

New Manslaughter Charge Laid Against Sanucci

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Sanucci was charged with manslaughter for the second time Monday after Harvey McNeil made the charge in connection with the death of his daughter.

McNeil of Vancouver made the charge and gave evidence under oath in support of it before provincial court Judge Les Bewley, who laid the manslaughter charge.

Judge Bewley also authorized McNeil's lawyer, Robert Gardiner, to inform the Canadian immigration department that it should not release or deport Sanucci, wanted in the United States for escaping prison, until the new manslaughter charge is disposed of.

An earlier manslaughter charge laid by the crown in connection with the July 12 death of McNeil's divorced daughter, Mary Margaret Jones, 33, was stayed by the attorney-general's department. This move came just before an inquest Oct. 30 into the death at what was described as a "high class commune" at Roberts Creek near Gibsons, 20 miles north of here.

The inquest jury found that a blow or blows from Sanucci caused Mrs. Jones death by rupturing her spleen. The coroner, John Harvey, recommended the stay be lifted, but the attorney-general's department rejected his advice last week, saying there was insufficient evidence to support the manslaughter charge.

In his court appearance Monday, McNeil charged that Sanucci, 29, "did unlawfully kill Mary Margaret Jones and did thereby commit manslaughter."

In support of his charge he outlined in a sworn statement evidence from the inquest, including an RCMP statement taken from Sanucci in which Sanucci said he grabbed Mrs. Jones by the neck to restrain her. Other evidence detailed by McNeil from the inquest was that Sanucci and Mrs. Jones had argued and that he was the last person to be seen with her alive. The death occurred on the property of Dal Gauer, stepson of Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen.

McNeil mentioned a pathologist's evidence that Mrs. Jones died from bleeding from a ruptured spleen caused by a blow from a knee, fist, or a fall, and that she had severe bruises on her face and jaw.

Gardiner submitted for McNeil that it was important to proceed with the charge because of the evidence indicating reasonable and probable grounds, he asked that McNeil be permitted to swear an information charging manslaughter and Judge Bewley granted the request.

Sanucci was in jail in Victoria, awaiting hearing Wednesday on a charge of possession of marijuana. He was arrested Nov. 16 in an RCMP raid in Oak Bay. Sanucci had vanished July 16 after having been charged with manslaughter and then released on a $5,000 surety signed by Grauer.

In front of Judge Bewley Monday, Gardiner asked that process of the new manslaughter charge be adjourned until Wednesday to give the crown the opportunity to decide if it wishes to take part in the proceedings on whether the charge should go ahead.

Judge Bewley observed that if the facts as stated by McNeil were true — including his account of the inquest evidence — then there was sufficient evidence for the charge of manslaughter to be laid, and accordingly it was laid.

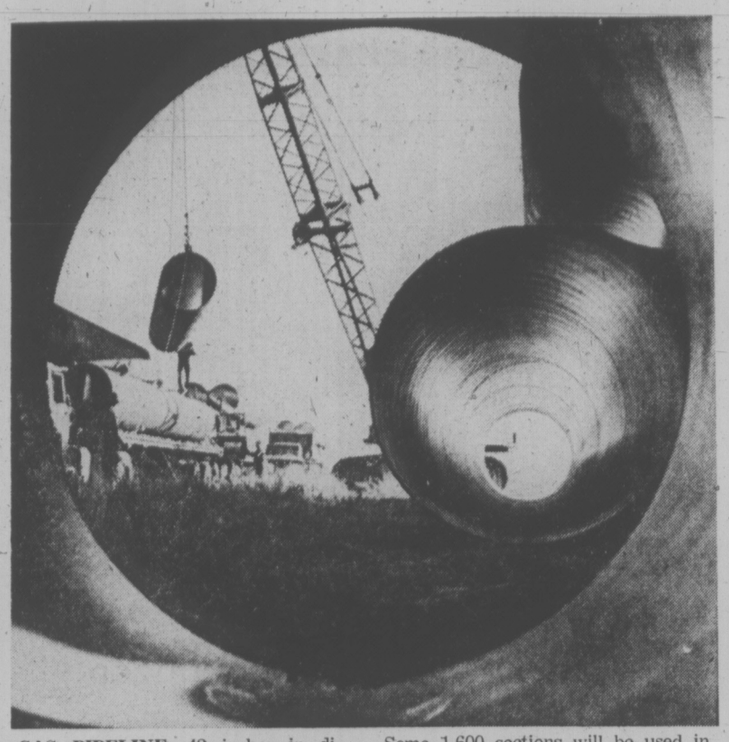
COPPER PRICES DOWN

TORONTO (CP) — Noranda Sales Corp. Ltd. and International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. have reduced domestic copper prices to 73 cents a pound from 75.5 cents.

Noranda Sales, the marketing unit of Noranda Mines Ltd. of Toronto, reduced its United States price by three cents a pound to 74 cents.

Observers say the reduction, which follows similar ones by several U.S. producers, is due to a slowing demand caused by a sharp drop in world consumption and relatively high consumer inventories.



GAS PIPELINE, 42 inches in diameter, is unloaded by Union Gas Ltd. for 11 miles of new transmission line to serve southwestern Ontario. Some 1,600 sections will be used in the line, the largest diameter natural gas pipeline in Eastern Canada.

Days May Be Numbered For Stock Exchanges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities and Exchange Commission hearings on fixed commissions and a central market system could signal the end of the stock exchange in its present form.

Most experts believe, however, the classic auction market for investors will continue — with or without stock exchanges.

By mid-December, the SEC will have completed hearings on a rule to forbid exchanges to set transaction commissions for member firms. The end of the fixed rate system after nearly 200 years and the new central market system scheduled to begin early in 1975 will determine the future of the exchanges.

The question that comes up again and again during SEC proceedings is which exchanges, if any, will survive. Some expert witnesses have said the New York and American exchanges could knock out the other big regional exchanges unless clearance of listed securities can be speeded up.

Others contend the regional and local exchanges and the over-the-counter market actually are performing more efficiently than the big exchanges, and are offering better trading prices. These witnesses say the central market and the consolidated tape, which will show all quotations on a stock regardless of where they are made, will be a boon for the exchanges outside New York City.

Seymour Smidt, professor of economics at Cornell University's graduate business school, said the big exchanges are trying to stall the start of the central market in order to build up their strength after competitive rates are scheduled to begin May 1, 1975. The smaller exchanges are trying to delay competitive rates until the central market system is functioning in order to remain financially sound until investors have a chance to compare markets with speed and efficiency never before possible.

Regardless of the outcome for exchanges, James Lorie, graduate business professor at the University of Chicago, says the auction markets will continue for individual and institutional investors. Lorie believes the exchanges are not necessary and may have outlived their usefulness.

"The individual investor is indifferent as to whether the highest bid for his stock is by a principal (usually an over-the-counter trade) or by an agent (a broker-dealer who offers the stock to the exchange for auction)," Lorie says.

Witnesses for the exchanges are the most adamant critics of the proposed competitive rate and central market systems. But the SEC commissioners seem determined to adopt rules ending fixed rates and putting the central market into full operation.

"We can't wait, as a practical matter, until the world looks rosy and say today is the day," SEC chairman Ray Garrett Jr. says to exchange witnesses asking for postponement of SEC action that has been in the wings since 1969.

Brinco Buys $7.3M Shares

MONTREAL (CP) — Brinco Ltd. of Montreal announced Monday it has purchased almost 7.3 million of its common shares and expects to buy an additional 953,713 tendered shares if they are not withdrawn by Friday, the next tender record date.

The almost 7.3 million shares were purchased by Brinco Nov. 1 following the tender offer Sept. 25 to purchase its outstanding shares at $7.07 a share as part of Brinco's plan to merge with Rio Algom Mines Ltd. of Toronto.

Assuming the second batch of tendered shares are purchased, there will be almost 16.4 million shares still outstanding, of which more than 13.3 million, or 81.3 per cent, are controlled by the Rio Tinto-Zinc Corp. Ltd., Marubeni Corp. and the Fuji Bank, which do not wish to accept the tender offer, said Brinco.

Rio Tinto-Zinc of London already controls 59.7 per cent of Rio Algom and 49.4 per cent of Brinco and some analysts say it will gain a 90-per-cent control of Brinco through the proposed merger.

"Negotiations are continuing with Rio Algom Mines Ltd. concerning the formal agreements providing for the amalgamation of the two companies," said a statement from Brinco.

"A meeting of Brinco shareholders to consider the amalgamation is expected to be held during the first quarter of 1975. The Brinco tender offer will remain open until shortly before the meeting."

Rio Algom and Brinco announced Sept. 16 their plans to merge. Brinco shareholders were offered $7.07 a share with the choice of either selling or continuing as a shareholder in the merged company. A special dividend of $1.20 was also declared by Brinco.

For purposes of the merger, each Brinco share was to be valued at $7.30, the companies said.

A Rio Algom share would be valued at the weighted average of all Rio Algom common shares traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange during the 10 consecutive trading days ending seven days before the date of the merger, still to be announced.

However, under no circumstances would 10 Brinco shares be equal to more than three Rio Algom shares.

Both Brinco and Rio Algom have extensive uranium, asbestos and coal interests in Canada.

Outdoorsman Tries Again For Wildlife Sanctuary

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Two hundred miles north of Vancouver is high country where herds of caribou once grazed in beautiful wide valleys.

Mountain goats, moose, grizzly bears, wolves and other wildlife were readily seen on the plateau's gentle slopes and sub-alpine meadows.

But this fall when Tommy Walker, one of British Columbia's best known outdoorsmen, visited the area and saw few caribou, the mountain goats had vanished along with the bears and wolves.

"Wildlife was so abundant that it was the nearest thing to a game reserve in East Africa," he said. "But hunting pressures have depleted the wildlife and vehicles are chewing up the sensitive soil in sub-alpine areas."

Walker is in Victoria to attend the annual meeting Wednesday of the B.C. Ecological Reserves Committee at the University of Victoria.

He will submit a proposal to set aside the area known as the Spatsizi plateau as an ecological reserve and wildlife sanctuary. He operated a guide business in the area until his retirement in 1968.

The ecological reserve would involve an area of 284 square miles and the wilderness sanctuary 325,000 acres. Hunting would only be permitted in the latter, but controlled. All-terrain vehicles would not be permitted.

If the committee endorses the proposal, it will be submitted to Resource Minister Bob Williams for approval.

It isn't the first time Walker has tried to have the area set aside as a sanctuary.

He said the Spatsizi came close to becoming a protected area under the Social Credit government.

H. R. MacMillan, former head of MacMillan Bloedel, and then forests minister Ray Williston favored setting the area aside as a sanctuary, but Premier Bennett was opposed, he said.

"I tell you it is a unique area," he said. "It will be ruined once people start pouring into the Spatsizi. And that's not far off."

When he started his guide business, most of his customers came to see the north rather than hunt, he said.

"They brought their families with them. But now status hunting has become the thing. All these people want is a big trophy on the wall."

This is why he quit the business.

Walker said people have no idea how quickly wildlife is being depleted in northern British Columbia.

"People still think of the north as a vast untouched area where wildlife is still abundant," he said. "But this is no longer so. Road builders and prospectors have taken a heavy toll of animals. Some contractors have built runways in isolated areas where they shoot game right and left.

"As more roads are built, the worse it will get," he added. "If we want to preserve sample areas of the province, we must do it now."

Walker's proposal at the ecological meeting is expected to receive the support of University of British Columbia botany professor Vladimir Krajina who has surveyed the Spatsizi plateau.

The meeting will be chaired by Dr. Bristol Foster, director of ecological reserves.

Session Wind-Up Deal Collapses

The question of when the fall session of the 30th British Columbia legislature will wind up was settled at one point Monday but is still up in the air today.

An agreement had been reached between the government and opposition member to end the 16-day sitting at 7 p.m. Monday but the deal collapsed and the house was to sit again this afternoon.

Following Monday's adjournment, Social Credit whip Ed Smith (SC—North Peace River) accused the Liberals of deliberately spinning out debate to delay adjournment.

Liberal whip Garde Gardom (L — Vancouver - Point Grey) denied it.

He said he couldn't understand the petulance of the government in not allowing debate to continue past the 7 p.m. deadline because he felt the debate could have been wrapped up Monday night.

Debate was on the government's Timber Products Stabilization Act and was dragged out through Monday afternoon.

The Socreds and Liberals failed to have the bill amended to make it more specific in application to wood chip prices and definition of timber.

Don Phillips (SC—S. Peace River), noted the bill's sponsor, Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Bob Williams, said he had no intention of controlling anything but chip and ground wood prices for the pulp industry.

If that is all the minister has in mind, he would not object to the definition of timber proposed by Socreds, meaning forest products, Phillips said. Otherwise, the bill is "just as sinister" as it was last week before government amendments were brought in.

"If the minister has been truthful, he'll accept the amendement because that will define clearly the object of the bill," Phillips said.

"If he doesn't accept, we will know his intentions were as they were in the beginning — takeover of the entire forest industry in British Columbia."

Jim Chabot (SC — Columbia River) berated Williams for not explaining his refusal to accept the amendment.

"Don't be so arrogant," the member said.

Ed Smith (SC — N. Peace River) said refusal to accept the definition meant the minister still wants to take over the forest industry as charged by the opposition and forestry firms after the bill was introduced.

He challenged Williams to defend the bill "instead of sitting there like a bureaucrat, saying nothing and doing nothing."

Unless Williams defines timber in the bill, he leaves "a loophole you could drive a log truck through," said Gordon Gibson (L — N. Vancouver-Capilano), suggesting the word "timber" be taken out of the title and the body of the bill.

Scott Wallace (PC — Oak Bay), said the bill had so many other defects he saw little to be gained by arguing "ad nauseum over the definition of timber."

Williams agreed. The opposition was having difficulty making up its mind after "breast-beating" last week claiming credit for the minister introducing amendments. Now they say it's the same bill, he declared.

Williams said his objective is to guarantee access to market and establish something closer to a real market in what is now a monopoly situation.

All the opposition was trying to do "with this simple amendment is clean up that minister's act," said Chabot.

He recalled Williams as a member of the opposition "used to hit and-run . . . like an Australian dingo. He still hits and runs."

The house went to division on all opposition amendments, including a try by Opposition Leader Bill Bennett to include a 90-day review section for chip prices and a Gibson amendment to tie interior chip prices by formula to coast prices.

King Rejects Rail Saucers

Labor Minister Bill King has been advised to run flying saucers on the labor-troubled B.C. Railway.

But he said in the legislature Monday in answer to a question from Opposition Leader Bill Bennett it is not government policy to interfere where contract negotiations are in progress.

King said he had received a telegram, which in view of the question, he assumed was from the opposition leader.

The telegram expressed sympathy for the government-owned railway's labor troubles and went on to suggest:

"Take my advice and switch to flying saucers; you won't need auditors. Signed, Star-Gazer," King read.

Bennmett wanted to know, in relation to the "serious economic situation involving unemployment aggravated by B.C. Rail shutdown," whether steps would be taken to resume operations, such as bringing a special bill before the legislature.

King said no such steps were contemplated.

Wildlife Heads

Two new section heads have been appointed to the fish and wildlife branch of the provincial department of recreation and conservation.

In charge of co-ordination of waterfowl, hawks, upland bird and rare and endangered species will be Bill Munro, formerly with the Canadian Wildlife Service.

Heading the land use co-ordination section will be John Dick, formerly of the provincial mines department.

Both will work in Victoria.

HYDRO AUTHORIZED TO BORROW $100M

Authority for B.C. Hydro to borrow up to 100 million for current capital projects was given by cabinet order Monday.

A Hydro spokesman said funds likely will be borrowed initially on short-term basis through the minister of finance, with longer-firm financing from the open market, unconditionally guaranteed by the province of B.C.

Hydro expansion under way or soon to develop include Peace and Columbia river systems and transmission lines.

Long Term Tenure For Grazing Urged

The British Columbia government has been urged to establish long-term crown land tenure for livestock grazing and agricultural development.

The recommendation is contained in a five-page brief submitted to the provincial caucus Monday at the advisory board of the Farmers Institutes of B.C.

The brief says the use of crown land for grazing and agricultural development is an essential part of livestock production in B.C. and the status of such usage "is very uncertain at present."

The advisory board recommends:

—That there be long-term tenure for such land;

—That there be flexibility in the type of tenure and regulations to allow for the great variety of conditions;

—That lease or purchase arrangements be available for the development of cultivated land and that they be suitable to the financial and physical conditions of agriculture.

Park Area Plans Bared

A plan for the preservation and development of the Diamond Head area in Garibaldi Provincial Park was unveiled Monday by Jack Radford, Minister of Recreation and Conservation.

He said the plan is designed to maintain the wilderness atmosphere of the park, preserve its ecosystem and rehabilitate areas that have been eroded through excessive use.

"First priority in the planned development will be the construction of an alpine shelter at the Elfin Lakes, near the present Diamond Head Chalet, which will provide cooking facilities and overnight sleeping accommodation for approximately 30 persons," Radford said.

Gov't Goal: 5,000 Lots

The British Columbia government is embarking on a major program to develop lots for rural, semi-rural and suburban living, Bob Williams, minister of lands, forests and water resources, said Monday.

"Our goal," Williams said, "is to get at least 5,000 lots on the market during 1975, and to step this up according to demand in subsequent years. We will focus on high-demand areas first."

Under the present system applicants for Crown land find the land themselves, apply to the government and the provincial lands service determines whether the land is suitable for development, he said.

With the new system, Williams said, the government will select areas with "minimal environmental and resource conflict problems for development" and consult regional district boards.

The lands service's new development unit will then "undertake design and development, including appropriate servicing, and the sites will then be marketed," the minister said.

"It is my hope," he said, "that we will eventually be able to provide over-the-counter arrangements on these lots so that people wanting Crown land will be able to obtain a site within a day or two, instead of a year or two as is presently the case."

Supreme, County Court Sittings Set for 1975

Sittings of B.C. Supreme Court and county court in Victoria next year were approved by cabinet order Monday.

They start Jan. 20 with Supreme Court criminal assizes. The following assizes will be May 26 and the last sitting starting Sept. 29.

County court jury trials will also be in three sittings: Feb. 3, April 28, and Oct. 6.

Vancouver Antique Musician Goes for Baroque in Big Way

A builder of baroque and renaissance period instruments will be the featured artist at Wednesday's recital at St. John's Anglican Church on Quadra Street.

Richard Hawkins of Vancouver performs on trumpet and cornetto, both extremely difficult instruments to play. The cornetto is an old wooden trumpet of considerable size.

Hawkins has studied at the New England Conservatory and at the Schola Cantorum Basiliensis.

He has been a pupil of the renowened exponent of the baroque trumpet, Edward Tarr.

While in Europe, Hawkins has given several first performances of trumpet repertoire.

He will perform music by Fantini, Viviani, Handel and Frescobaldi Wednesday and be accompanied on the organ by Edward Norman, organist of St. John's Church.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. and there will be no charge.

BURTON AT CENTRE OF CHURCHILL ROW

LONDON (Reuter) — Actor Richard Burton's description of British wartime leader Sir Winston Churchill as a killer and a coward brought quick rejoinders today.

Burton compared the British leader to Hitler, Stalin and Attila the Hun in a recent article.

"I realize afresh that I hate Churchill and all his kind," Burton wrote.

Churchill's grandson and namesake, Winston Churchill, a Conservative MP, said he did not think that the opinion expressed was Burton's true opinion.

Another Conservative MP said: "One should really regard this in the light of an actor past his best indulging in a fit of pique, jealousy and ignorant comment. Possibly his matrimonial troubles have got him confused about life at large."

Dancer Keeler Has Surgery

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (UPI) — Ruby Keeler (left), tap-dancing star of the Broadway stage in the 1920s and Hollywood musicals of the 1930s, was in critical condition today following brain surgery.

Miss Keeler, 64, former wife of singer Al Jolson, came out of retirement in 1971 to star in the successful stage musical No, No Nanette.

She underwent weekend surgery at Columbus Hospital, where Dr. Gaston Syrenne said he "clipped" an artery in her brain because of an aneurysm, a weakened wall of the blood vessel.

Miss Keeler was visiting a daughter, Christina Pratt, in Lewiston, Mont., last week when she fell ill and was admitted to hospital first in Lewiston and then Great Falls, Mrs. Pratt said.

She was admitted under her married name of Lowe. She was the widow of Southern California real estate man John Lowe, who died in 1969. She married him in 1941, after she divorced Jolson in 1939 ending an 11-year marriage.

She met Jolson through Texas Guinan, legendary manager of a New York speakeasy during the prohibition era, where Miss Keeler began her career as a dancer at the age of 15.

She later became a Ziegfield girl and appeared in Broadway musicals such as The Sidewalks of New York, Bye-Bye Bonnie, The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly, and Show Girl.

In 1931 she came to Hollywood to star in a decade-long succession of movie musicals, beginning in 42nd Street with Dick Powell and Ginger Rogers.

She frequently appeared with Powell and was in a number of the elaborately-produced Busby Berkeley musicals, including Gold Diggers of 1933, and Footlight Parade.

Sold: A Petty Penalty For a Grey Cup Victory

In retrospect and in Edmonton folks today will still be hard to convince that Montreal's Junior Ah You didn't put a little extra into that tackle he made on quarterback Tom Wilkinson of the Eskimos in the Grey Cup final near the 11-minute mark of the first quarter at Empire Stadium Sunday.

Sure he did, and it all depends which side you're on, because that's the name of the game; and if Ah You sold a roughing penalty for the piddling total of 8 yards which was half the distance to the goal line when Wilkinson's pass fell incomplete on that particular play, he might just have won the Grey Cup doing it.

The Eskimos did absolutely nothing after Wilkinson was hurt. And now for the second year in a row, the little man with the dog-eared personality who, all week long claimed that football was a team game, had put the Eskimos in the final, now wasn't able to finish the final again.

Last year, the Ottawa Rough Riders put the collar on him as well and he wasn't there when he was needed most.

A team game? Certainly football is. But Wilkinson still was the heart and soul of the Edmonton attack, and it was never better illustrated than when he wasn't there to run it.

Still, take nothing away from the Alouettes, and if getting Wilkinson was their prime goal early, perhaps it comes under the heading of what coach Marv Levy referred to earlier in the week at the full-scale media conference.

When describing the Eskimos he paid tribute to Wilkinson as "being able to make things happen" and the Eskimos as perhaps "the best-balanced team in the CFL." Somewhere along the line he added the words: "all other things being equal." That turned out to be Wilkinson.

'Defence' Comes in Blue

Because to make a sad story sadder, when Wilkinson left, suddenly things weren't equal anymore, the balance wheel had come off its fulcrum, and not surprisingly the Eskimos were dead.

So the Alouettes are the champs for the second time in five years and their first victory over the Eskimos in the fall classic. In three previous meetings between the teams in the mid-50s the Eskimos won all three.

If the inclement weather was a factor, it was the same for both clubs, but Montreal players handled the slippery ball far the best. Besides they showed they could run up the middle of the Eskimos and that played an important part in diversifying their attack. Their defence was just superb. And if that spells "dull," it's still the way to win football games.

Speaking of defence, the Vancouver Police Department used a master plan that perhaps could be adopted by other centres. The policemen who were out in full force — "no excuses" was the order — were the masters of restraint. They simply ignored, or tried to, everybody but the hard-core type from the idiot fringe; and, if they were supposed to be neutral, it was hard to tell. They were constantly being besieged by well-natured fans trying to drum up support for both clubs, implored to flaunt the team colors and even having ribbons and boutonniers pinned on them.

They accepted the gifts in the spirit in which they were offered and they conveniently ignored the other spirits that were being carried and consumed on the street before their very eyes. Nobody would be provoked, and if this was really the Great Canadian Drunk, it got watered down somewhat. The heavy rain blunted much of the enthusiasm and many fans either went home early or didn't bother to come downtown in the first place.

A Thinking Good Time

Things weren't any drier in the Stadium on game day, inside or out. Still the prevent-defence just observed and held and just think, perhaps it could be a model for other Grey Cup parties in the future.

So maybe basing the allowable extent of Grey Cup fever on the theory that if everyone at least figures they are having a good time, whether they really are or not, that's the answer to rowdiness and perhaps all that matters. At least it worked this time.

After the game, it was obvious that the Montreal victory wasn't a popular happening in the West. Downtown streets were virtually deserted, there was little celebrating, no trouble to speak of, and many of the emergency police units which had been called out were sent home early.

So either Vancouver has grown up, or everybody in town was an Edmonton fan, and broke. The Eskimos had been a four-point favorite.

And the world didn't come to an end either as suggested, and who expected it? Rather it was a satirical approach to the overall heaviness of the situation and no disrespect intended. And anyway, it was a bad day for predictions. And that's good because now they'll get to play the next year's Grey Cup in Calgary.

Hey, that could be a pip, couldn't it? . . . because speaking of parties . . . it was those Calgary cowboys who once rode into the Royal York Hotel . . . whoa, there, boy . . . easy now.

Cougar Picks Tribute to Area Program

Today's hockey applause may be aimed at Rick LaPointe and Mel Bridgman, but it also can be shared by Greater Victoria's minor organizations.

Selection of the Victoria Cougar players to the team that will represent Canada in next month's world junior tournament has a significant impact on the area's minor hockey leaders.

They're doing the job.

Minor hockey's status began to rise several years ago when arear-developed players began to appear in professional ranks. Among the recent notable contributions to pro ranks are Ron Grahame, Bruce Cowick, Murray Kennett and Dave Woodley.

The selection of LaPointe and Bridgman has added greater emphasis to the area development programs.

Both Bridgman and LaPointe are 19. The Western Canada Hockey League's leading point-getter, Bridgman is a graduate of the Racquet Club organization while LaPointe made it through Esquimalt ranks.

LaPointe received double recognition Monday. In addition to joining Bridgman on the WCHL team that will participate in the world tournament, he also has been invited to bolster New Westminster Bruins for an exhibition game against Russia's juniors Dec. 12.

Another Cougar, winger Peter Morris also will join the New Westminster squad.

Two players from each WCHL team were selected for world competition. The selection format will allow the league to continue regular-season play without interruption.

The WCHL team will gather in Lethbridge Dec. 21 and will play exhibitions that day and again Dec. 23 in Medicine Hat.

The WCHL team will be coached by Ginnell and Saskatoon Blades' Mack McLeod. Del Wilson of Regina Pats and New Westminster's Ernie McLean will share managerial chores.

The junior tournament will be played Dec. 26 to Jan. 5 with games in Winnipeg, Brandon, Minneapolis and Grand Forks, N.D. All games involving the Canadian entry will be played in Winnipeg but matches involving the U.S. entry will be played in Minneapolis and Grand Forks.

The other 22 players named are:

Goal: Doug Soetaert, Edmonton Oil Kings; Ed Staniowski, Regina Pats; Larry Hendrick, Calgary Centennials.

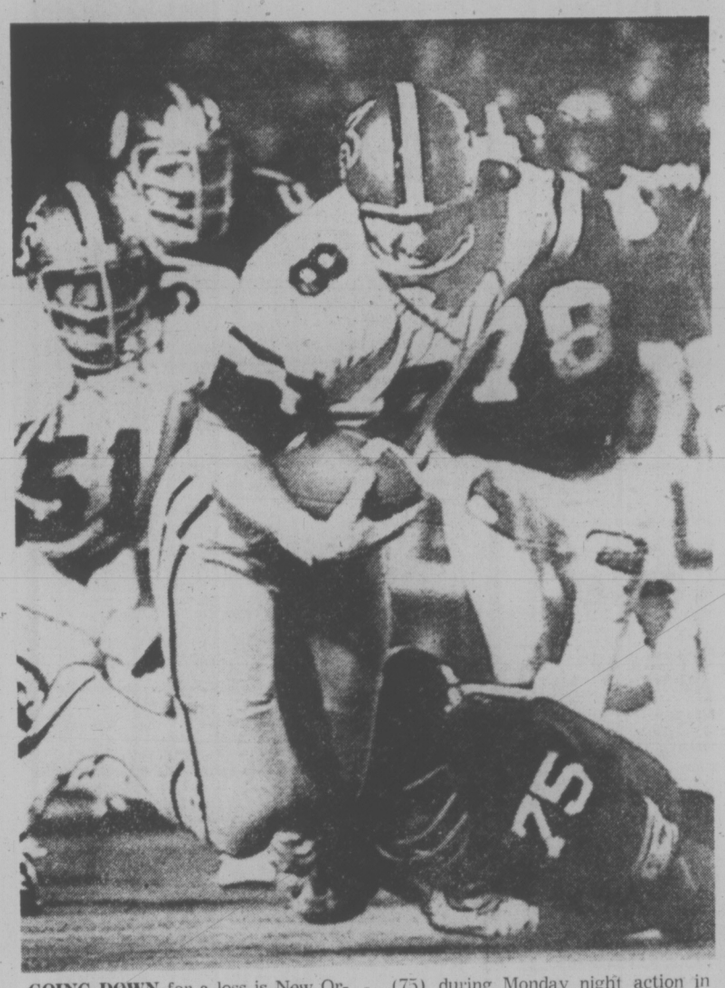
Defence: Kevin McCarthy, Winnipeg Clubs; Rick Hodgson, Calgary; Robin Sadler, Edmonton; Terry McDonald, Kamloops Chiefs; Bryan Maxwell, Medicine Hat Tigers; Blair Davison, Flin Flon Bombers.

Forwards: Bryan Trottier and Brian Sutter, Lethbridge Broncos; Ralph Klassen and Danny Arndt, Saskatoon Blades; Barry Smith and Clayton Pachal, New Westminster Bruins; Greg Vaydik Medicine Hat; Dale McMullin and Rick Blight, Brandon Wheat Kings; Rob Flockhart, Kamloops; Kelly Greenbank, Winnipeg; Jim Minor, Regina; and Mark Davidson, Flin Flon.

Bridgman, LaPointe, Henrick and Hodgson will be in action tonight at Memorial Arena when the Cougars entertain Calgary, starting at 8.

Missing from the Cents' lineup, however, will be Richard Shinske. The 19-year-old centre, son of New Westminster manager Bill Shinske, was dealt to the Bruins on Monday.

The Bruins sent 18-year-old Paul Enquist, a centre with Bellingham in the B.C. Junior League, to Calgary. New Westminster also will send two other players to Calgary.



GOING DOWN for a loss is New Orleans Saints' quarterback Archie Manning as he's tripped up by Pittsburgh Steelers' defensive tackle Joe Greene (75) during Monday night action in New Orleans. Steelers had five sackings before they ended with a 28-7 victory. (AP Wirephoto)

Leafs Confident Blues Are Gone

TORONTO (CP) — It was only a 2-2 tie but to hear Toronto Maple Leafs tell it, it sounded like victory.

The Leafs, after four straight National Hockey League losses, had a 2-1 lead going into the third period Monday night but Garry Unger's second goal of the game for St. Louis earned the Blues the tie.

"But we got a point tonight and we're set to go now," said Eddie Shack who was just as enthusiastic on the ice, throwing his weight around on the ice and delighting the 16,338 fans in the only NHL game played Monday.

"It's been a long slump, but I think we're out of it now."

Leaf coach Red Kelly also sounded optimistic even though he saw defenceman Ian Turnbull sidelined for six weeks with pulled knee ligaments in a collision with the St. Louis goal post. Toronto already has defenceman Borje Salming sidelined with a foot injury.

"I thought we looked much better tonight," said Kelly. "One point is a big point for us the way we have been going. It's been a long time since we've given up only two goals."

Toronto got one of its best performances this season from goalie Doug Favell who stopped 34 shots while John Davidson made 33 saves for St. Louis.

Unger opened the scoring early in the first period and Toronto's Blaine Stoughton tied it up two minutes later.

Darryl Sittler's second-period goal put the Leafs in front but Unger got his second of the night and eighth of the season on a power play late in the third period.

Tonight's only NHL game has Vancouver Canucks visiting Kansas City Scouts.

Big M Close To Milestone

By The Canadian Press

Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Toros goes after his 545th major-league career goal tonight when the Toros meet Minnesota Fighting Saints in one of six World Hockey Association matches.

The Big M scored his 544th goal Sunday to tie with Maurice (Rocket) Richard, retired Montreal Canadiens' star in the National Hockey League, for thirdspot on the all-time scoring parade.

Mahovlich, who scored 533 of his goals in the NHL before moving to the WHA this year, still is a long way behind leader Gordie Howe and second-ranked Bobby Hull.

Howe had 786 regular-season goals in 25 seasons in the NHL before retiring in 1971. He made a comeback last year with the WHA Houston Aeros and has since pushed his goal total to 825.

Hull, with Winnipeg Jets, now is 100 goals behind Howe, having scored 104 in his first two WHA years and adding another 17 so far this season to go with his 604 NHLgoals.

Is other games tonight, Edmonton Oilers visit San Diego Marineers, Winnipeg faces the Racers at Indianapolis, Vancouver Blazers take on the Stags at Detroit, New England Whalers meet the Nordiques at Quebec and Phoenix Roadrunners visit Houston.

Worn down by a seven-game losing streak, the Blazers now face the possibility of losing rightwinger Murray Myers for an extended period.

Blazers' general manager Joe Crozier said Monday that Myers, who scored 22 goals for the Vancouver club last season, would probably be inactive for four to six weeks due to a leg injury.

TORONTO LOSES TURNBULL

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs, with the third worst record in the National Hockey League, suffered another crippling blow in Monday night's 2-2 tie with St. Louis Blues.

It was learned today that star sophomore defenceman Ian Turnbull will be lost for an indefinite period with torn ligaments in his left knee.

Steelers Stop Saints As Bradshaw Shines

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Quarterback Terry Bradshaw netted 99 yards rushing — including a touchdown — and 80 yards and two more touchdowns by passing Monday night as he led Pittsburgh Steelers to a 28-7 victory over New Orleans Saints in Monday night's National Football League game. The fourth Steeler touchdown came on a 64-yard punt return by Lynn Swann.

"The Saints' coverage was really excellent, but they opened some huge lanes," said Bradshaw. "You saw it. You could have run for a hundred yards yourself.

"I would have liked to have thrown the ball a little better, but our running game was going, and I wasn't about to disturb a good thing."

Bradshaw hit eight of 19 with two interceptions.

Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll wouldn't commit himself to ending the game of musical quarterbacks he's been playing all season, but he did praise Bradshaw's performance.

"Bradshaw played a heck of a fine game," Noll said.

Noll has rotated quarterback chores among Bradshaw, Joe Gilliam and Terry Hanratty, saying he was waiting for a leader to emerge and "take the bull by the horns."

Bradshaw threw 31 yards to Frank Lewis for a first-quarter score, ran 18 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter and tossed one yard to Larry Brown for a third-quarter touchdown.

Between Brown's touchdown and the one by Swann, the Saints scored their single touchdown of the night on a 10-yard pass from reserve quarterback Bobby Scott to rookie tight end Paul Seal.

Cunningham To Remain With '76ers

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Cunningham has resolved his contract trial with an out-of-court settlement and will remain with the National Basketball Association's Philadelphia '76ers.

It is believed the NBA team paid the American Basketball Association Spirits of St. Louis about $200,000 for the rights to the star forward.

Cunningham originally came to the '76ers as their No. 1 draft choice from the University of North Carolina for the 1965-66 season, but jumped to Carolina Cougars of the ABA for the 1972-73 season. The Carolina franchise was sold to St. Louis, but Cunningham refused to accompany the team.

Chargers Suspended

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Coach Tommy Prothro of San Diego Chargers said Monday he has suspended running back Cid Edwards and defensive end Coy Bacon from the National Football League team.

Bacon, who has been critical of Prothro's practice schedule calling for Monday workouts and Edwards were notified by the club prior to Monday's practice session.

Bacon played but Edwards sat on the sidelines Sunday at Green Bay when the Chargers were beaten 31-0.

Visitors True Badminton Stars

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

The Indonesians came to town Monday and five Canadians are happy they did.

The overseas visitors to Victoria were four of the finest badminton players in the world from the top-ranked country in the sport.

Their trip here was their 16th stop in a Canada-wide tour which will see them visit 20 cities as part of the eighth annual Canadian Badminton Association's fall foreign tour.

Although they showed definite signs of fatigue and strain from more than three weeks of travel in a new climate and of playing exhibitions coast-to-coast, the Indonesians impressed nearly 500 people at Victoria Racquet Club Monday with their finesse, speed and cleverness at badminton.

And not the least of those impressed were their Canadian opponents who, by their own accord, will benefit most by the matches against the Indonesians.

"It does my game a lot of good to play them because they're simply the best. Playing them gives me a chance to see what I can really do," said Mike Epstein.

Epstein, 21, from Vancouver, thrilled the audience Monday with some deftly placed shots but his opponent just happened to be Liem Swi King, a slight but muscular 18-year-old favored to succeed countryman Rudy Hartono to the world's singles title.

King had trouble with Epstein in the first game, winning 18-14 before putting the Canadian away easily in the second, 15-4, to take the match.

King also teamed with Nunung Murdjianto to defeat the brother team of Geoff and Greg Harris, of Courtenay and Vancouver respectively, 15-9, 15-9, to take another match.

The Indonesians also controlled the women's doubles as Theresia Widiastoeti and Imelda Wiguna trimmed Sandra Stevenson and Mimi Nilsson, both of Vancouver, 15-5, 15-7.

Stevenson, though, won one match for the Canadians as she upset Wiguna 11-5, 7-11, 11-6 in the woman's singles.

"It's a good chance to meet the best and to help us improve our game. This tour is the only time we get the chance to play good international players at home," said Stevenson, a 25-year-old blonde who is a teacher by profession.

MIKE EPSTEIN

"The Indonesians are very consistent and their footwork is superb, so smooth contrasted to the Canadians rather clumsy style."

She also admitted the Indonesians have the advantage in training on the Canadians, who are climbing in the world standings and have passed the United States on their way to the top.

The Indonesians, she said, are subsidized by the government to play badminton, which is the country's national sport. They have excellent training facilities and coaches for everything from stroke control to conditioning to strategy while the Canadians haven't anyone really to help out.

"But things are looking better for us with the new training centre in Ottawa which is set up on Indonesian methods, with even an Indonesian coach," she added.

Whereas many top Canadian badminton players are well into their twenties, the Indonesians prefer younger players, as witnessed by King, who is already a master of the sport while still a teenager.

"And the Indonesians train as a team towards a specific goal, a specific event," said Epstein, who has played against them previously.

"Their whole system of badminton is like ours in hockey, a pyramid of teaching and playing, with the best at the top," he said.

For the Indonesians, Victoria was another stop on a long tour which will take them close to 9,000 mils at the time it finishes Dec. 4 in St. John's, Nfld.

Today they're off to North Surrey. Then it's West Vancouver, the east coast and back home.

And while the Indonesians are on the move again, five Canadian athletes will practise a little further some of the lessons they learned Monday.

Alert Junior Defence Leads to Hoop Upset

Victoria Junior Men placed their attention on defence and Monday's concentration in that area was all it took to add new respectability to the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League team.

Only No. 4 defensively in the five-team league, the Juniors put it all together Monday to record the big upset of the young season.

The Juniors stung Hotel Douglas 72-52.

The Hotelmen's "ouch" enabled London Boxing Club to move into undisputed possession of first place with a 73-65 victory over third-place James Bay in the doubleheader at Royal Oak Junior High.

The Juniors came through with a solid, two-way effort but defence was the biggest factor. They effectively blanketed the Hotelmen's two leading scorers in holding John and Lauvaas (8) and Tom Hatcher (6) to a mere 14 points.

Thad Newman, with 24, and Doug Irving, with 20 points, spearheaded an alert attack that saw Juniors jump into a 34-22 lead at the half.

The talent-rich Boxers got key second-half field goals from Rich Connolly and Bob Wiley to chill James Bay's hopes of a second upset.

Wiley and Connolly both scored 10 points to offset Mike Morrill's strong contribution for James Bay.

Ahead 33-27 at the half, Boxers led by only three points in the dying minutes but ran off the last five points of the game.

Morrill scored 16 of his 18 points in the second half.

Eskimos Greeted By 5,000 Fans

By The Canadian Press

A wildly cheering crowd of about 5,000, mostly youngsters, greeted Edmonton Eskimos Monday night in a reception at the Edmonton Coliseum.

From begging to end of the 90-minute ceremony, the fans left little doubt that in Edmonton, the Grey Cup finalists are still No. 1.

The civic reception was planned before Edmonton's 20-7 defeat by Montreal Alouettes Sunday in the 1974 Grey Cup final at Vancouver. Only about 70 fans greeted the Western Football Conference champs on their arrival at Edmonton International Airport, primarily because many planned to participate in the offical reception.

Coach Ray Jauch admitted the club was disappointed "to have played in the biggest game of the season without winning it," but pointed out that in three seasons the Eskimos produced the best won-lost record in the Canadian Football League.

The coach drew the loudest ovation of the ceremony when he vowed:

"Some day, some way, we'll bring the Grey Cup back to you."

Montreal Alouettes also arrived home Monday night with the Grey Cup to a noisy greeting by several hundred enthusiastic fans at Montreal International Airport.

The Als were to be honored today by a civic parade and luncheon.

The airport fans braved snow flurries to stand and cheer as the co-captains of the team, Mike Widger and Barry Randall, paraded through the baggage concourse with the cup displayed high above their heads.

"Defence, defence," chanted the fans, referring to the impregnable wall the Montreal club relied on during the 1974 Canadian Football League season.

Each player was greeted with a roar as he emerged from the baggage concourse of the terminal. Defensive end Junior Ah You and quarterback Sonny Wade were greeted with howls of glee as they walked out into the crowd.

During the five-hour flight from Vancouver the stretch DC-8 aircraft resembled a flying cocktail party. Filled with close to 200 passengers, members of the team mingled freely with the other passengers aboard.

The best line of the flight came from head coach Mary Levy who said that although the team was only half way home there already had been five retirements.

"Marv Luster and four stewardesses," Levy told inquiring newsmen.

Luster, a member of the victorius Grey Cup team for the first time, has said he will return next year after 14 seasons in the CFL.

Fight Backer Quits

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — The heavyweight fight between former world champion Joe Frazier and Argentina's Oscar Bonavena, scheduled for Dec. 14, appeared in jeopardy Monday after one of the promoters withdrew because of "financial affairs."

Another promoter said, however, the bout would be held.

Promoter Jeff Patterson, hired to arrange seating contracts, which had been done, said he walked out after he was told that world television rights for the bout were worth $125,000 in Australian money, whereas, he said "the TV was supposed to be worth $250,000."

"It will be a fiasco with only three weeks to go," he said. "This is the most annoying financial disaster in boxing history."

In Philadelphia, Frazier said he planned to arrive in Melbourne about Dec. 1 but his manager, Eddie Futch, said he had not received Frazier's $250,000 purse in Australian money and Frazier won't leave for Australia until the money is in the bank.

Texas Rookie Is Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Hargrove, a line-drive hitter who led Texas Rangers in batting last season, Monday was named the American League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Hargrove, a native of Perryton, Tex., received 16½ votes in balloting by a 24-member panel of the BBWAA, giving Texas its second major award winner. Last week, the writers named Rangers' outfielder Jeff Burroughs the league's most valuable player. Earlier, Texas pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, a native of Chatham, Ont., was runner'up to Oakland A's' Jim Hunter in the balloting for the Cy Young Award.

Bucky Dent, Chicago White Sox shortstop, was second in the rookie balloting with three votes, followed by infielder George Brett of Kansas City Royals with two, Boston Red Sox shortstop Rick Burleson with 1½ and Texas catcher Jim Sunberg with one. One writer split has ballot, awarding half a vote each to Hargrove and Burleson.

Hargrove, 25, a first baseman, wasn't even on the Rangers' roster going into spring training. But he had impressed Texas scouts, batting .312 in the Florida Instructional League, and won a job in camp.

In only his second full season of organized ball, he led the Rangers with a .323 average that included 66 runs batted in and four home runs.

He is the first Texas player selected for the rookie award and succeeds last year's winner, Baltimore Orioles' outfielder Al Bumbry.

Gulls Fly Over Bucks To Victory

James Bay Athletic Association Gulls have finally acquired the winning touch in the South Island Big Six Hockey League.

Sparked by brothers Dennis and Perry Head, the Gulls ended a 13-game winless streak Monday be defeating Ingraham Buckaroos 7-2 at Memorial Arena.

Losers of their first 11 games, the Gulls now have a victory and a tie in their last three starts.

The Perrys each scored two goals while Muzz Scott, Doug Harding and Al Goldade added one each at James Bay out-shot the Bucks 50-30. Larry Myers scored both goals for Ingraham.

Ill Wind Hits Storm

Times News Services

The Internal Revenue Service padlocked the offices of Portland Storm and seized the team's property Monday for non-payment of $168,000 in back taxes.

Buyt Bob Hazen, a Portland bank president, said he has investors lined up and can keep the crumbling World Football League franchise alive if the team can live within a $2 million budget.

Hazen and the Storm's general manager, Ron Mix, were in Memphis last weekend for WFL meetings and Hazen discussed financing with John F. Bassett of Toronto, the league's executive board chairman.

He says Basset gave him a free hand in drumming up financing.

Financier Bob Harris of London, Ont., who sank $500,000 into the team, says he's written off his money and disowned the team.

Bruce Gelker, the original owner, says he wants no more to do with the team.

The new buyer of the Florida Blazers has ordered his lawyers to hold up closing procedures on the contract to purchase the WFL franchise, a team spokesman said Monday night.

Bob Deutsch, Blazers' general counsel, said financier Robert D. Prentice of Cape Canaveral balked after members of the WFL board of governors raised questions at a weekend meeting in Memphis that the Blazers purchase might be in violation of league bylaws.

Prentice delivered a $1.5-million cheque as a down payment for the Blazers' purchase Thursday. Prentice said in a statement however, that he would go ahead with payments to Blazer players and debtors despite the last-minute snag over the sale.

"I've asked for a meeting of the board of governors within a week to make it clear whether or not there are any problems with the bylaws and if there are, to amend the bylaws," Deutsch said.

'Catfish' Takes His Case Before an Arbitrator

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim 'Catfish' Hunter, winner of the 1974 Cy Young Award as the outstanding pitcher in the American League, will go befor an arbitrator today and contend that his contract with Oakland A's is void.

The veteran right-hander, winner of 25 games for the world-series champion A's this year, also will contend that he is free to offer his services to any major league team.

Hunter's main argument will be that his contract was broken when $50,000 of his $100,000 salary for 1974 was not paid in the stipulated manner to a plan for deferred compensation. A player's contract requires a club to correct any non-payment situation within 10 days of notification by the player that there has been non-payment.

Hunter went through that process in September, and the matter was not corrected, or apparently not even discussed, within the stipulated period.

TRADING BLOCK FOR REGGIE?

OAKLAND (AP) — "I expect to be traded within three weeks," says Oakland A's slugger Reggie Jackson.

"I will not bandy around names — names of my players or players on other clubs," A's owner Charles O. Finley said Monday when asked about reports that Jackson might be involved in a baseball trade with Baltimore Orioles, also of the American League, or a National League club.

But Jackson, in an interview, said the reports are "no hocuspocus."

Jackson, one of baseball's top power hitters, said he wasn't surprised by the trade talk. He also confirmed that he had heard from a representative of the Baltimore team who sounded him out on the possibility of joining the Orioles.

"If they traded Hank Aaron, Willie Mays and Babe Ruth, they can trade Reggie Jackson," said the outfielder who has been with the A's throughout his eight-year major league career.

But the player considered as the heart and soul of the world championship A's team added: "I've given them an arm and a leg and they don't care about me."

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Two Hearts Don't Beat As One...

JOHANNESBURG — Surgeons tried today to get two hearts to beat in unison inside a 58-year-old Ivor Taylor, the first person to have a new heart implanted inside him without having the old one removed. A spokesman for Groote Schuur hospital said this caused no problems now, but the aim was to get them beating together.

LONDON — Now that a jury has ruled that he is not a menace to young girls, John Brooks said he will carry on slapping bare female bottoms so long as their owners are "pretty, willing and tempting."

"And I stress tempting," said the 64-year-old Brooks emerging Monday from a four-day libel suit against a newspaper which criticized his hobby.

NEW YORK — Margaretta "Happy" Rockefeller Monday underwent surgery for removal of her cancerous right breast just five weeks after doctors removed her left breast in a radical mastectomy.

MOSCOW — Georgi Busuyev decided the best thing to help him recover from a heart attack was some exercise — so the 59-year-old Russian walked all the way across the Soviet Union.

Tass news agency reported today that the 7,000-mile journey from the Baltic coast to Vladivostok had taken him seven months and 25 days.

It said he had crossed the harshest regions of central Siberia during the summer, sleeping in a tent.

The agency said his health now is excellent, but he had decided to return to his home town of Riga from Vladivostok in a more conventional way — by plane.

SALT LAKE CITY — Wayne Osmond will be married here Dec. 13 to the reigning Miss Utah, Kathlyn White. She met Osmond last January at a church meeting where she was singing and he was in the congregation.

SOMETHING ELSE TO CRY ABOUT

SAN JOSE, Calif. — A judge has ruled out the mourners and the weepers from the will of a woman who wanted to leave $50 to anyone who cried at her funeral.

Florine O'Shea, who died last year at the age of 81, left a $50,000 estate. The Palo Alto woman said in her handwritten will that $5 should be given to anyone attending her funeral and $50 to anyone "seen crying for me."

Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Robert Cassin ruled Monday that there was no way to determine who came to the funeral or who cried because no guest register was kept.

The bulk of the estate will go, as Mrs. O'Shea directed, to an antivivisection society and various animal shelters.

NEGATIVE ACCENT: Richie Blackmore, lead guitarist for British Rock group Deep Purple, was reported to have smashed up a borrowed Porsche in Iowa City the night of November 13. Trouble is, Blackmore was in San Francisco that night doing a concert. Some fellow, whose English accent "came and went" but seemed real, conned several townspeople into shelter and companionship under the rock star guise. He stayed with one family, flashing a sockful of cash ($6,500) and promising the son, whose Porsche he wrecked, a $1,500-a-week job and repayment for the car. Police said he had ID that said he was Blackmore and gave a London address. They asked that he stay in town until his manager arrived, but he was last seen buzzing out of town in a Mercedes, saying he "had to make a concert in New York." Iowa City police called for an encore, issuing felony charges of misrepresentation.

BLOWIN' IN THE WIND: There's a bitter wind blowing in Nashville. Some country music traditionalists were horrified when Charlie Rich and Olivia Newton-John took top awards at the Country Music Association banquet in October, and three weeks later 20 Grand Ole Opry regulars met at the home of George Jones and Tammy Wynette — who will be in Victoria Thursday for two shows — to form the "Country Music Recording Artists Association." In a letter sent to the CMA board, they complained, "Country music . . . is losing its identity as a separate style of music," and named Jan Howard, George Jones, Brenda Lee and Porter Wagoner as their leaders. Their aim, they said, was to rectify "certain inequities" in the selection process of CMA awards. In off-the-record conversations, dissidents labeled Charlie Rich a rock 'n' roller and called Newton-John a pop star and an outsider (she's British). Some said that Don Rich, late lead guitarist for Buck Owens, won an award only as a sympathy vote for having been killed in a motorcycle accident. Blind singer Ronnie Milsap, voted best male singer, was denounced for not "paying enough Nashville dues."

ULTIMATE GIFT: Jose Feliciano is for sale at $14,400 a day as a guitar teacher. Piano lessons from Peter Duchin come a little cheaper: $3,750. U.S.-U.K. Book Conspiracy Alleged

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-one major United States publishers were accused Monday of conspiring for 27 years with major British publishers to monopolize most of the world's multi-billion-dollar English language book trade.

In an anti-trust action filed by the U.S. Justice Department, the American publishing houses were cited as defendants.

The Publishers Association of London, representing almost all of Britain's major publishing houses, was named as a co-conspirator, not a defendant, in the alleged violations of the Sherman Act.

Defendants include MacMillan, Inc., of New York; Harper and Row Publishing Co., of New York; Houghton Mifflin Co., of Boston; Doubleday and Co., Inc., of Garden City, L.I.; Bantam Books, Inc., of New York, and McGraw-Hill, Inc., of New York.

The complaint alleged that U.S. and British publishing houses entered into an agreement in 1947 "to divide the world market for book sales into exclusive territories and to allocate the exclusive territories among themselves."

The defendants the complaint said, granted to British publishers the exclusive right to publish and distribute within the so-called British traditional market any copyrighted book they published in the U.S.

In return, the complaint continued, the British publishers agreed not to publish and distribute the books in the United States and certain other countries.

British publishing houses, the complaint said, performed generally the same function for British authors.

The British traditional market was described as representing 70 English-speaking countries which are present or former members of the British Commonwealth.

FEW APPLY FOR AMNESTY

WASHINGTON (WP) — Only 503 of at least 11,000 Vietnam war deserters have signed up for President Ford's earned-amnesty program, according to the government's latest statistics.

The percentage of civilian draft evaders who want amnesty is only slightly better — 234 of 3,700 men convicted of draft evasion have volunteered for alternative service in exchange for an eventual pardon.

Charles Goodell, the former New York senator who heads the Clemency Review Board has termed the response "greatly disappointing."

The board met last week to receive briefing from officials of the Selective Service, Pentagon, and Justice Department — agencies that all operate pieces of the clemency program.

That fragmentation and the resulting confusion may explain the low turnout, officials say.

The nine-member Clemency Board, which will soon make its first recommendations to President Ford, deals with men already given bad discharges from the military or convicted of draft evasion.

New Witness System Aims At 'Fractured' Justice

Victoria Times
TUESDAY, NOV. 26, 1974 17
SECOND SECTION

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The "forgotten people" in the provincial court system will get a better break under a unique program being organized by the B.C. Justice Development Commission.

It could also save police forces thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money each year.

Called the witness management program it sets out a procedure which hopefully will result in a more efficient use of witness time to avoid unnecessary attendance and delay.

The procedure would be unique in Canada, says John Hausberg, director of the project.

It would see, in the larger court systems, the creation of a special court officer called a "witnessman." He would attend to all matters relating not only to police and civilian witnesses but also exhibits seized or entered in court cases.

The program details a new paperflow chart and proposes eventually to punch information into a province-wide computer system.

The project aims at standardizing court practices in 127 registeries in the province. A procedures manual is being prepared for court clerks.

Up to now, says Hausberg, justice has been "fractured," with registeries using different forms, different procedures and different pay schedules.

The management of witnesses and property has been "slipshod and wasteful," he contends.

Hausberg, a constable with the Vancouver police force seconded to the commission in September to work on the program, says witnesses have become the "forgotten people" in the court system.

Complaints from police and civilian witnesses about long waits in courtrooms — and about never being called to testify even after being summoned to appear — are common, he says.

"Often witnesses are treated as badly if not worse than the accused," he says.

The program will give witnesses more personal attention — perhaps even a separate, more comfortable waiting area in some courts — and suggests the elimination of subpoenas in most cases.

"I would say 95 per cent of all witnesses called would come whether a subpoena was issued or not," he says.

He calls the serving of subpoenas by and large a "useless duty," costly, and "time-consuming."

He gives the example of the Vancouver police force which spends about $750,000 a year for police members to attend court.

Yet, he says, less than a third of police witnesses called actually give evidence.

The new program will begin as a pilot project in the Surrey courthouse probably in January. If successful, it will be incorporated into all courts in the province by the end of next year.

Ross Will Seek Major Reduction In Camosun Budget

Camosun College's whopping $7.8 million operating budget proposed for 1975-76 got through the college council's finance committee uncut Monday.

But councillor Bill Ross served notice he will seek a major reduction of the budget when the full council meets next Monday.

The cutback being proposed by Ross would require scrapping of all new college programs, cutbacks in existing programs and staff reductions, Camosun principal Dr. Grant Fisher warned today.

Ross wants the local mill rate for Camosun financing to be held at 1.25 mills next year, which Fisher said would require slashing $2 million from the proposed budget.

The $7.8 million budget presented to the committee would raise Camosun's mill rate from the 1974 level of .97 to roughly 2 mills, Fisher said.

Ross warned the committee that the burden on the local taxpayer would be more than doubled by the proposed budget.

Local taxes would have to raise over $1 million for Camosun compared with $490,000 in 1974-75, he said.

Local taxes pay for about 20 per cent of the college budget. Another 20 per cent comes from student fees and 60 per cent from the provincial government.

KNIGHT
. . . gloomy signals

The proposed budget is a 58 per cent increase over the 1974-75 budget of $4.9 million.

Despite Ross's concern, a majority of councillors favored sending the budget as is to the provincial government and letting the government say how much it should be cut.

That the government is going to cut it is very likely, college council chairman Dr. Hal Knight told the committee.

"The only signals I get are very gloomy ones," Knight said.

"The B.C. economy runs on stumpage and if we're not cutting down trees there's no money.

"There's no way that they're going to entertain this kind of an increase," he said of the 58 per cent jump.

Fisher defended the budget, saying the administration has alreay gone through it three times cutting it as much as possible.

"There are all kinds of programs that we have had to refuse," he said.

There is a drastic need right now to provide classes in reading and study skills, courses in English for new Canadians and illiterate Candians, and courses in life skills, Fisher said.

Only the remedial reading and study skills has been included in the budget.

The college is expecting a 30 per cent jump in enrolment next fall which creates added costs.

Fisher also pointed out the provincial government is committed to taking educational costs off property taxes. If it acts on this commitment, he said, the local tax burden could be lightened.

IT'S AN ILL WIND and it's blown leaves all over town. The message outside this downtown store is plain enough — time to rake them up. What isn't so plain is what to do about them after they are in piles. Heavy rain has produced another annual problem — soggy leaves won't burn. Absentees Put Strain On Fellow Councillors

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Camosun College councillor Joanne Claxton didn't attend Monday's finance committee meeting called to discuss an expected 58 per cent rise in the college budget.

No one was surprised.

Mrs. Claxton misses more college council meetings than she attends.

Between February, 1973 and September, 1974 Mrs. Claxton attended four out of 15 college council meetings, an attendance record of 27 per cent.

College administrators can't remember her ever attending a committee meeting.

Mrs. Claxton was appointed in January, 1973 to be one of four provincial government appointed members of the nine-member college council.

Her appointment was renewed in January, 1974, as was that of councillor Dr. Charles Gregory.

Gregory also missed Monday's meeting. His record between February, 1973 and September, 1974 is seven meetings attended, eight missed.

Most faithful attenders of Camosun council meetings have been the five school board trustees who sit on the council.

Trustees Dr. Hal Knight and Dr. John Duffus attended all council meetings in the same time period, and Lavinia Greenwood missed one.

Trustee Bill Ross missed one meeting out of eight since he was appointed by the school board to the college council. Daphne Temple missed two out of eight.

The non-attendance of some councillors has been a real problem, Knight, council chairman, said today. Getting a quorum is sometimes difficult, he said.

"It throws a larger workload on the other councillors," he said.

The provincial government's task force on community colleges recommended this fall that all members of the college council be government-appointed.

This would eliminate the school board trustees who now sit on the council, and have been carrying the load.

Camosun College's brief to the task force asked that college councils be partially-appointed and partially elected, locally, with elected councillors in the majority.

Santa Keeps Up With Mail Load

Letters dropped in Victoria mail boxes addressed to Santa Claus won't reach the North Pole this year.

The mail won't even get to Helsinki as in past years unless specific street and box numbers are on the envelopes, according to post office officials.

But the wide-eyed young letter writers will get replies.

For the first time this year, employees in the Vancouver post office "undeliverable mail department" are being allowed to waive regulations and open first-class mail addressed to Santa. As many letters as possible will be answered right from Vancouver.

Santa mail from Victoria all goes to Vancouver along with mail from children throughout the four western provinces.

★

Postal employees there have been answering the mail with a form letter from "Santa" for several weeks now, a post office official said today.

"The letters start coming in about the middle of October," he said.

Those with legible return addresses will all get letters from Santa's helpers.

Kids haven't changed much, say the stand-in Santas.

They still ask after Santa's health and offer cookies and milk on Christmas.

One young girl wrote, "How are you. I am fine. now I'd like to talk business . . ."

The Vancouver office received more than 4,000 Santa letters last year.

Mini-Farm Plans Going Ahead As $27,025 Grant Received

The Saanich Historical Artifacts Society was notified Monday it will receive a $27,025 Local Initiative Program grant for the small working farm it plans on provincial government land off the Pat Bay Highway.

President Art Gardner said today the society will start hiring a crew Dec. 1, which will clear and improve the 18-acre property.

He said the grant will cover 200-man weeks of labor, lasting until May 1.

Gardner said the B.C. Land Commission has "assured us we are getting the land" and terms of the lease are being negotiated.

The society plans to build a small working farm, complete with beef cattle, sheep and horses.

Gardner said, "We were out plowing fields on the weekend, getting ready for crops next year."

He said the LIP grant was "a real good step in the right direction."

The society plans to run a mini-farm where city children and their parents can see how a farm is run and how animals are riased.

The property lies between the East Saanich Indian Reserve and Michael Williams' kennels on the highway. Shady Creek runs through the property.

Entrance to the farm will be from Island View Road.

Society plans for the farm include a log cabin and, eventually, an early pioneer church, a wooden bridge over Shady Creek, an old-time school house and a museum building.

Teachers To Talk Thursday

Talks between teachers and school trustees from five lower Vancouver Island school districts are expected to resume Thursday at The Empress.

The negotiations on 1975 teachers' salaries began Sunday after the two sides were called together by W. T. Stanbury, government-appointed conciliator.

Taking part are teachers and school board represenatives from Greater Victoria, Saanich, Sooke, Gulf Islands and Lake Cowichan school districts, Stanbury said.

He said the teachers are meeting with a committee of the B.C. School Trustees' Association which includes members of all school boards involved.

Teachers from Cowichan School District didn't appear at the meeting, so Cowichan school board is not taking part in the talks.

The Empress talks are a compromise for teachers and trustees alike.

The two sides have been deadlocked over the attempt by 68 school boards this year to introduce province-wide bargaining of teachers' salaries.

All contracts still unsettled by Friday will be settled by arbitration boards.

Real Estate Board Takes Role of Property Owner

Victoria Real Estate Board — always a tenant for its more than 50 years of operation — becomes a property owner Jan. 1 in new premises overlooking Topaz Park.

Premises at 3035 Nanaimo now occupied by Frank Browne Pools will be occupied by the board, its Multiple Listing Service, printing and computer operations and the recently-formed Real Estate Credit Union of Greater Victoria.

The latter, first of its kind in the province, was established as a separate entity on Sept. 16 to serve the private needs of people working in the real estate industry and their families.

VREB president Herb Brown said the move from offices at 1212 Broad Street occupied since the 1920s was the result of a recommendation from the board's long-term planning committee that there should be more public involvement.

He said this dictated new, more visible premises and the location easily seen from the Blanshard Street approach to downtown Victoria was chosen for strategic reasons.

There was also a need, Brown said, for larger offices that will accommodate growing needs of the Multiple Listing Service and allow computerization of MLS and other board functions including accounting, and more detailed and accurate statistical reporting of the real estate market.

BROWN
. . . more visible

The board is setting up the first computer operation of its kind in B.C. with a Lockheed System 3 electronic data processing unit that is expected to start up next month.

VREB will occupy about 6,000 square feet in the Nanaimo Street building, which is notable for its pool and fountain facing Blanshard.

A second pool on the premises will be filled in.

Frank Browne Pools will move to a location as yet not determined.

About 1,500 square feet of office space in the building will continue to be leased to other tenants until required by the board, manager John Hicks said.

He said about half the space remaining would be used by the MLS printing plant which publishes a catalogue of all properties in Southern Vancouver Island listed through the service. It consumes a ton of paper each week.

Ultimately, Hicks said, it will be possible for individual real estate agents to have a computer read-out screen in their offices to enable quick recall of listings on closed-circuit television with the press of code buttons.

The board was established in Victoria in 1921 and its first president Percy Brown was the current president's uncle. VREB added Multiple Listing Service in 1954 and has shown steady growth to a membership of 97 firms and branch offices and 855 licencees.

About 300 applications for membership in the credit union have been accepted since a general meeting Oct. 3, with more than $12,500 in share subscriptions to make total assets of about $200,000.

$7M JOB FOR YARROWS

An ice-breaking supply ship for Arctic service, at a cost of more than $7 million, will be built in the Esquimalt shipyard of Yarrows Ltd.

A sister ship will be built at the Burrard yard in Northern Vancouver.

The two ships — commissioned by Dome Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary will cost about $15 million and will be the first to be constructed under rigid new Canadian regulations for Arctic pollution prevention.

The 7,000 horsepower ships will be powered by twin diesel engines, and will be 206 feet long, have a 45-foot beam and a molded depth of 18 feet three inches.

They will work in the Beaufort Sea, supplying drilling vessels, being based at Tuktoyaktuk in the North West Territories.

They are scheduled for delivery in August, 1975.

Book 'Distinctively Canadian'

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

There is such a language as Canadian.

Born of the Queen's English and European French, it now includes many words which originated in Canada or are used exclusively here, say researchers at the University of Victoria who are revising The Canadian Dictionary-Dictionnaire Canadien.

The dictionary is the only French - English translation book which includes "distinctively Canadian" words and expressions, according to UVic project director Murray Wilton.

A few such Canadianisms to be included in the revised edition are "boozer," "Wildcat strike," "ass kisser," "draft dodger," "pollution control," "organ transplant" and "to make the scene," said Wilton.

The dictionary's Quebecois words with no exact English equivalents include the jargon of women's liberation in which French is much more advanced than English, said Wilton.

Some of these are "speakerine—female speaker," "liftiere—female elevator operator," "footballeuse — female football player" and "artisane—female skilled worker."

The book's first edition appeared in 1962 and was edited by Dr. Jean-Paul Vinay, now of UVic.

A grant of $24,000 from the Donner Foundation started the revision project in 1971, the plans call for the 40,000 entries to be increased to 100,000 in the new volume.

The dictionary's Quebecois words not common to European French often developed to describe realities not dealt with globally.

Quebecois has about 150 words to describe the cold, for instance, said Wilton.

Also to be included in the volume are many modern expressions of both French and English including "streaking" and "direct distance dialling."

Researchers hope the book will be on the stands by 1976.

Fish From 'Miracle' Tank

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH

We're all going to have to learn to do more with less. Become nearly self-sufficient. Grow a large percentage of the food we eat . . . even if we live in town. Produce at least a part of the energy we consume — right at the point of use — directly from renewable sources such as the sun and the wind. Recycle everything.

"In short, we're going to have to change our lifestyles and change them drastically. We're going to have to completely redesign our society . . . starting with the very houses in which we live."

No, the above paragraph is not a direct quote from any one ecologist, economist or politician. It is, however, an accurate compilation of the conclusions arrived at by nearly everyone who has seriously studied today's pollution, food supply and energy shortage problems.

There's only one trouble with that projection of the future: While many people talk about the need for pioneering new ways of living . . . very few individuals actually seem to be creating and learning to operate the hardware which will make those lifestyles possible. And of that small and select breed, even fewer — so far — have had a great deal of success.

It gives me great pleasure, then, to tell you today about James B. DeKorne and something he calls his "ecosystem." This is, in Jim's words, "an underground hydroponic tank which is powered by the wind, heated by the sun and fed on compost" . . . and which produces enough year-round fresh produce and fish to feed a family of four!

"Our prototype ecosystem," says Jim, "is still in the experimental stages, but preliminary results have far surpassed our expectations. The unit is located on my small homestead in northern New Mexico (at an altitude of 7,000 feet) and consists of three main parts: (1) the combination hydroponic greenhouse-aquaculture tank, (2) a wind-driven electrical generator and (3) a solar collector.

"The floor of the greenhouse is four feet below ground level and the unit is banked with earth on its north side. Vegetables are grown hydroponically inside the greenhouse in four 55-gallon drums that are cut in half lengthwise and filled with gravel. Under the eight tanks are two additional drums cut in half horizontally to make four compost bins in which earthworms are raised. And beside the hydroponic tanks is a 1,400-gallon, solar-heated catfish tank.

"This ecosystem was designed to be almost completely self-sustaining. When the wind blows, it generates electricity which runs a pump that circulates water in the catfish tank. The sun is used to heat the same water and the fish thrive in the warmed and filtered liquid. The fluid also acts as a 'heat battery.' That is, it collects solar energy during the day and radiates it throughout the greenhouse at night.

"The worms, as you might have suspected, are fed to the catfish and the earthworm castings are leached to make the organic hydroponic solution which feeds the plants. Other than solar and wind energy, nothing comes into our ecosystem from outside except the organic matter — or compost — which we feed to the worms."

Pretty clever, that Jim DeKorne! In theory, at least, he's come up with a low-cost, do-it-yourself, attractive "miracle" unit that sits in the backyard, consumes only garbage and sunshine and wind . . . yet produces all the fresh produce and fish his family can eat during any season of the year.

But does the idea really work? Yep. It really does.

Jim's prototype most certainly is a do-it-yourself unit because he built it in just a few working days with the help of only one neighbor. It's low-cost because DeKorne constructed the rig entirely from recycled (such as used oil drums) and inexpensive (such as cement blocks) materials. It's attractive. And small enough to fit into most backyards.

And — get this! — last winter, even before the solar panel and windplant were put into operation, the prototype greenhouse-fish tank worked quite well. Despite outside nightly temperatures that plunged down as far as 10-below, radishes, lettuce, spinach and cabbage inside the unit did not freeze. The plants' growth was temporarily arrested during the month of January, but the DeKornes began eating lettuce and radishes from their ecosystem again in February.

As Jim says, "Just wait till next year, when the solar heater and windplant are running!"

And the year after that? Who knows? If DeKorne's experiments over the next 12 months work out as expected, I wouldn't be surprised if he were to offer plans — and possibly even kits — for the construction of his solar-heated, wind-powered, greenhouse-fish tank.

Perhaps — as early as 1976 — you'll be harvesting a constantly renewed supply of catfish, lettuce, tomatoes, squash, radishes, cabbage, kale, spinach and other produce from an ecosystem in your backyard!

If you'd like further details about James B. DeKorne's ecosystem, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed, long envelope to The Mother Earth News, c-o Times Family Dept., 2621 Douglas. Ask for Reprint No. 200, "Build Your Own Ecosystem."

Maybe, instead of singnig 'twinkle, twinkle little star,' we should sing 'twinkle, twinkle giant star,' because some heavenly bodies are much larger than our earth.

The four-page folder "The Solar System" ("Le systeme solaire") explains that this system comprises those celestial objects which travel through space under the gravitational attraction of the Sun. Besides the Sun, it consists of nine planets and their satellites, thousands of asteroids, as well as of comets and meteors.

A fascinating list shows the mean distance of the planets both from the Sun and from the earth, the duration of their revolution around the Sun and of their rotation around their axis. The list also indicates the size of each planet and how many moons each one has.

You will see that Mercury is closest to the Sun and Pluto farthest away. Only six of the planets have moons, Jupiter has 12, Saturn 10, Uranus 5, Neptune and Mars 2 each and, as you know, our earth has 1.

The folder points out that during its travel around the sun, the earth encounters a host of small objects. Sometimes we can see them flashing across the sky. Each day millions of such meteors or 'falling stars' enter the earth's atmosphere, but only a few reach the earth's surface as meteorites.

Uncertain Future For 'Speakerines'

By PAUL MAJENDIE

PARIS (Reuter) — The future looms uncertain for France's "speakerines"—the ever-smiling women TV announcers with their immaculate hairstyles and stumbling diction.

Their faces are as well known in France as almost any top film stars and their collective title a prime example of "Franglais,"—France's way of adapting English words.

A far-reaching government reform of the state broadcasting system has brought in new directors for the main two television channels and they are as yet undecided on the fate of the glacial beauties who give viewers a nightly program rundown.

Jean Cazeneuve, new director of the first channel, said: "I haven't decided about them yet. I may choose a solution between keeping and abolishing them."

Second channel director Marcel Julian feels the same. "They are neither condemned nor maintained," he said.

But, whatever the authorities think, the public likes them and even appreciates the often amateurish approach of the speakerines, who sit perched before the cameras with a vase of flowers as a permanent backdrop.

A survey on the commercial radio station, Europe One, showed 64 per cent of the population wants them to stay and, as one emotional listener put it," they are the sunshine in my evenings."

Another listener, dourly reflecting the general opinion that French television often produces some of the drabbest viewing in Europe, said, "They make us men forget how mediocre all the programs are."

Speakerine Jacqueline Huet, fiercely rejecting claims they are overpaid, said, "I get 4,200 frances ($912) a month. After paying for my hair-dos and clothes that leaves me 1,500 francs.

What about criticisms of their presentation?

"It makes me nervous when they give me a new announcement two minutes before I go on the air. Also I have my days off-form," she explained.

Another speaker, Denise Fabre, said, "For many viewers we are like a friend of the family. Somebody rang up to ask if I was all right because I looked a bit peeky on screen one night."

With the new broadcasting set-up all the television channels—the third does not use speakerines—will be competing for audiences. Under the old system of a monolithic central office, competition was difficult, innovation was hampered and internal jealousies rife.

PUDDINGS GET AROUND

OXFORD, England (CP) — A firm in this university city has a flourishing export trade in Christmas puddings. It sends them to Canada, the United States, New Guinea, the West Indies, Gibraltar and France, where "le Christmas pudding" has been popular since British soldiers introduced it in the First World War.

Knickers' Return Seen by Designer

TORONTO (CP) — British fashion designer Hardy Amies predicts the fashion-conscious male's wardrobe soon will include knickers, available in flannel and tweed, with a matching jacket styled like a battle-jacket but about four inches longer.

Mr. Amies was the designer who killed North America's Ivy League look 10 years ago by putting padded shoulders, pinched waists and hacking vents on men's suits.

Mr. Amies warned buyers and retailers at a preview of his ready-to-wear lines in Toronto that the knicker-suit also will require a color-co-ordinated shirt, matching socks and sweater and a pair of special brogues with modified platform soles and heels about 1½ inches high.

Other design changes include no vents on jackets which will be three inches shorter and flared pants will be a modified version of Oxford bags with wide, flapping flannels of the 1920s and 1930s, complete with tuck-pleats at the waist and cuffs at the bottom.

He said grey flannel is the best look but added that any solid, quiet color that can be highlighted with acceessorie is acceptable. His own fall line features muted and dark shades of green.

Mr. Amies said the reason for the styling changes and the trend toward basic textured materials and earthy green colors is that the business suit "is having a struggle competing against modified sportswear, now making its way into the general business scene."

"We are at least one year into another five-year cycle of change in men's clothing," he said.

At the end of the cycle, Mr. Amies predicts the dinner jacket will be eliminated and replaced by an expensive dark blue suit that is more functional. He said the necktie also will be obsolete.

'Raw' Sugar Impure

NEW YORK (AP) — Raw sugar is unfit for use as food or as a food ingredient, warns the Sugar Association. It is the first transformation of harvest sugar cane to a tan or brown substance that resembles sand. It is processed from the cane stalks and shipped to a refinery.

Because raw sugar contains contaminants such as soil, fibres, moulds, yeast, bacteria, lint and waxes, it is further processed to remove them.

"Turbinado" sugar can be purchased at some health stores and supermarkets because it is partially refined by washing in a centrifuge under sanitary conditions. Some molasses is removed in this processing. However, contrary to popular opinion, the traces of added minerals in turbinado offer nothing in the way of nutrition.

"Raw" sugar contains extraneous material that precludes its use without further refining, warns the United States Food and Drug Administration, noting that it is "unfit for direct use as food or as a food ingredient because of the impurities it ordinarily contains."

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

In the Chicago Sun Times, Mr. Robert C. Sorensen wrote that the Sorensen study of adolescents showed that 52 per cent of all 15 to 19 year olds in the United States have had sexual intercourse.

What a change from the old days. In 1900, when I was in high school, there was only one boy who I knew was having sex, and he, when he was 15, had been seduced and educated in sexuality by a girl of 18.

In my high school days I never heard of a schoolmate who was using alcohol or any other drug to excess. Marijuana, LSD and heroin hadn't yet been heard of. How different today.

Recently I talked to a lovely woman who told me that some 25 years ago someone gave her a dose of heroin, and she was immediately "hooked." In the years that followed, in order to buy her expensive heroin every day she had to become a prostitute and shoplifter. She was arrested some 75 times, and spent an aggregate of 24 years in jail, often in a tiny cell.

It is a marvel that she has come out of it so well. To "kick the habit," she had to spend years in Synanon. Now she is going to spend the rest of her life warning young people not to make the awful mess of their lives that she made of hers. One dose of heroin can do it.

I just read a thought-producing release from the Michigan State University Department of Information, East Lansing, Michigan 48824. Many people today speak of the "good old days" 40 to 100 years ago. It is true that there were then a number of conditions which were better than those of today. The water in the lakes was cleaner. Cities were smaller, there were fewer automobiles, and the term smog had not yet been coined.

But, as Dr. Walter L. Mallmann recently said, there were worse things. There was plenty of typhoid fever, polio, tuberculosis, and many other terrible troubles. Such infections killed many more people than do the most serious air and water pollutants today.

I have read that a few years ago, malaria could kill 1,500,000 people in Southern Asia in twelve months. Because of the hundreds of thousands of people killed by yellow fever, the Panama Canal could not be built; that is, not until Dr. Walter Reed and his associates proved that yellow fever is produced by the bite of a certain type of mosquito.

Years ago, every summer, thousands of Americans were killed by yellow fever in every seaport on the eastern and lower sides of America.

Anyone who has read the life of the last Russian Czar, his wife, his hemophiliac son, and the rough monk Rasputin, has a good idea of the awful spells of severe bleeding into parts of the body which can occur so easily in such a boy. The bleeding is often very painful and not easily stopped.

Because each one of these spells can be so painful that the child has to be rushed to a hospital and treated with transfusions of human blood, each of which costs a lot of money, a hemophiliac boy can cost his parents several thousand dollars a year.

The tendency for the Czar's son to get these spells came from Queen Victoria of England, and caused much suffering, especially to her great grandsons. The disease very rarely bothers the mothers, who transmit the tendency to their sons.

In that splendid journal put out by the American Medical Association, "Today's Health," (Dec. 1973, p. 42), there is a fine article by Edwin Kiester, Jr., telling how today the care of the hemophiliac lad is much more easily controlled and much less costly.

What has helped greatly has been the discovery of Factor viii, the tiny fraction of the blood which hemophiliacs lack.

LATEST THING in eyewear is this art deco frame which won a medal of merit at the 10th Annual Design Awards show in New York. It's designed for after-five wear.

Mated, and Dats Dat

DEAR ABBY: Your correspondent was not erazy. There was an article in the newspaper stating that a dog and cat had been mated, and the result was a "dat."

In 1970, a London pet shop owner, Roy Tutt, claimed that he had accomplished that which zoologists declared was impossible. He bred "dats" from a black cat and a Scottish terrier. Tutt said they had heads like dogs, but they had fur, whiskers and claws like cats. And he even sent along some "pictures" of the newborn "dats."

Later he was forced to admit that it was all a hoax.

I am a proofreader at the Daily News in Port Angeles, Washington, and am herewith enclosing the article and picture. — Donna Greier.

DEAR DONNA: Thanks. Your letter was the first I received to document the item. Subsequently, however, it rained cats, dogs and "dats."

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to a professional gambler for 14 years. We used to live in Nevada where gambling was legal and then we moved to a state where gambling is illegal.

My husband operates a respectable cocktail lounge — but he makes his big money running a high-stakes poker game in the back.

Last week the police raided his place. The whole story was in the newspapers, and he showed up on television looking like a common criminal with his jacket in front of his face.

The next day he was back in the gambling business. (He said there had been a "mix-up in the payoff.")

Our two daughters (11 and 12) came home from school crying. They said the kids made fun of them because their father had been arrested. Now they don't want to face their friends at school.

I begged my husband to cut out the gambling business for our daughters' sake. He reminded me that the girls and I had enjoyed lots of luxuries because of his gambling business so we shouldn't complain.

I'd rather have less, and have my husband in a legitimate business. How can I get through to him? — Had it.

DEAR HAD IT: You husband has a point as far as you're concerned. It's something else with the daughters. You could have settled for less long ago. The girls had no choice. For their sakes you should use every means at your disposal to persuade your husband to pocket his deck and go straight.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to the mother who is still nagging her tall 36-year-old daughter to "sit straight." I think I know the problem. The world is made to accommodate 5'3" to 5'5" women.

That tall daughter should raise her sinks, stove and counter area enough to accommodate her height, and then watch her shoulders move back! It worked for my daughter, and it took only a hike of three inches to do it. I have a smart husband. — 5'9".

DEAR 5'9": A husband who can raise a sink, stove and counter area — and is willing to do it in order to accommodate the tall women in his home is indeed 9 feet tall himself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You find that some people expect you to paint yourself into corner. Don't do it! You have right to live your own life. Live it and be happy about it and don't apologize for being you. Message will become increasingly clear.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on short journeys, notes, ideas and how you get along with close neighbors and relatives. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. You discover what should be conserved, what discarded. Streamlining process is under way!

December will be one of your most significant months of the year. Next year you may be living in different location. You are a poet and natural scholar.

GLIDING CHAMPION

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — A South African pilot, Yvonne Leeman, has set a world gliding record for women at the Rhodesian National Gliding Championships. Officials of the Central African Soaring Association authenticated the record when Miss Leeman flew at an average speed of 113.9 kilometres (70 miles an hour) over a 500-kilometre (310.68 mile) triangle.

Football Should Be Called Squash

Many women are less than enchanted with the seemingly endless number of football games every fall. If, as many contend, this extreme reaction arises from ignorance of the sport, perhaps the following analysis of the game will help:

Football is the only team game played without a ball — balls, as everyone knows, being exclusively spherical objects. A football, by contrast, is shaped like a gigantic acorn squash, which, having burst, has had to be stitched up one side to keep the seeds from falling out. Football, it has been argued, should be called "squash," were it not such an obviously ridiculous name for a game — and already taken by another game.

The game of football is played by two teams, at least half of whom are offensive. As punishment for being so offensive, the other players feel fully justified in throwing them to the ground and stomping on their backs. If they succeed in making the offensive players drop the squash, their teammates are obligated to pat them on the backside and bellow "Addawaydago!"

Halfway through the game, the players run off the field abruptly and are replaced by the Washataw Junior High School Marching Band playing "The Impossible Dream" while forming, for some inexplicable reason, a paddle-wheel steamer. This is a good time to go to the bathroom. It is also a good time to eat a hot dog. While TV viewers can do both, those personally attending the game must choose, as they have time to stand in only one line.

The second half of the game is exactly like the first, unless you are at the game, where you spend the next hour agonizing over the fact that you stood in the wrong line.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

At times, the safe, sound, orthodox lead turns out to be the winning one for the defenders. At other times, the gambling, unorthodox lead turns out to be the only lead which defeats a contract.

In today's deal, which was played in a team-of-four match, we have an example of the two aforementioned types of leads in action. On this given day, the gambling lead turned out to be the winning one.

NORTH
♠ Q 4 2
♥ A J 6
♦ A K Q

WEST
♠ K 7
♥ K 4 2
♦ J 10 9 8 3

EAST
♠ A 9 8 6 5
♦ 7 6 4 2

SOUTH
♠ J 10 3
♥ Q 10 9 8 7 5 3
♦ 5
♣ A 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

At both tables the bidding was identical, with the same four-heart contract being reached. When the deal was played the first time, the West defender elected to make the gambling oppening lead of the spade king. When it won the trick, he continued with his remaining spade, East's ace winning. East then returned a third spade, which West ruffed.

West now made an excellent play when he came back with the four of trumps. From his position, he felt that his king was trapped (finessible). It was his hope, in leading a trump, that he might talk declarer out of finessing.

Declarer now thought long and hard. As he viewed the set-up, West might well have started with the doubleton 4-2 of trumps originally. If such were the case, then East had been dealt the singleton king.

After about a minute of thought, declarer decided to play the trump suit on the assumption that West had started with the doubleton 4-2. So he put up dummy's ace. East discarded a spade, and West's king of trumps had just become promoted into the setting trick.

When the deal was replayed, West chose to make the safe, orthodox opening lead of the diamond jack. Dummy's queen won the trick, after which the king and ace of diamonds were cashed, South discarding his three and ten of spades. Next came a club to South's ace, and this was followed by the lead of the queen of trumps. When West played low, so did declarer from dummy.

Another successful finesse against West's king of trumps was then taken, after which the trump ace felled West's king. Thus our second declarer's only loser was a spade trick.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"It was bad, real bad," said old Jake. "No rain for four months."

"Terrible! You say you lost some cows, and seven hogs." Ken was sympathetic. "How many animals did you lose?"

The old farmer thought a moment. "Well, there were those and also two horses less than the cows I lost. I guess that made 13 beasts dead in all," he replied.

How many cows did he lose?

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: Magic Square had 16 numbers, 30 to 45.

SOCIAL GATHERING

Big Brothers in Victoria can get to know one another at an informal social evening Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the Voyageur Restaurant on Mt. Newton X Rd.

About 70 men here are providing companionship to fatherless boys through the Big Brothers of B.C.

They and anyone else interested in becoming a Brother are invited to the gathering where a film will be shown on the subject of matching big and little brothers.

Attending will be the executive director of the organization's provincial chapter Alan Johnston, and second vice-president for B.C., Gerry Hughes.

Olympic Plans Draw Protest

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Australia has protested to the organizing committee of the 1976 Montreal Olympic Games over the allocation of only 1.05 per cent of tickets to Australia and New Zealand.

Judy Patching, secretary-treasurer of the Australian Olympic Federation, told reporters the federation had written a letter of strong objection to the committee.

"We are hopeful Australia would be better served in the ticket allocation for Montreal than the 2.5 per cent we received for the 1972 Munich Games, said Patching, who was general manager of the Australian team in Munich.

Some estimates were that 4,000 Australians might visit Montreal for the games, but on the present basis, Australia and New Zealand would share about 50 tickets for swimming events.

Same Old Scenario

MACQUARRIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Usually-jovial Heath Macquarrie became sombre in the Commons Monday, predicting that there might be another major economic depression.

Macquarrie tore into the government during budget debate, saying it was "myopic nonsense" for the Liberal administration to ignore all the indicators.

"I am just old enough to have some lingering recollections of the depression," he said.

Even the political character in the current economic situation bore a startling resemblance to those in power when the last depression began in 1929, he added.

"In Britain, we have Harold Wilson, who might have been a Ramsey McDonald (British prime minister) suddenly becoming garrulous. In Washington, we have a Herbert Hoover without Hoover's fine intellect, great rectitide and proven internationalism. Everywhere a directionless sense.

"In Canada, we have Mackenzie King-ism a little more stylish, but a recycled laissez-faire.

"This is the way it was viewed in 1929 — that things would somehow work out and we would just sit here. We know what happened."

Macquarrie, calling Finance Minister John Turner the "man from Glad," accused him of being soporific during "a time of great crisis and challenging economic deterioration."

Highrolling By Ottawa Cost $1.67M

OTTAWA (CP) — The government spent $1.67 million on entertainment last year at missions and embassies abroad and plans to spend $1.74 million this fiscal year, the Commons learned Monday.

The information was in a written answer to a question by Robert Coats (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North).

More than 60 per cent of the estimated spending for the 1973-74 fiscal year and the projected spending for this fiscal year is by the External Affairs Department.

The Trade and Immigration departments account for the balance of the expenditures. There are diplomatic, trade or immigration offices in 112 foreign cities.

SAUVE

IMMENSE WASTE FINES URGED

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to provide fines of up to $100,000 for dumping pollutants or wastes in the oceans was introduced in the Commons Monday by Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve. The provisions would apply to all ships in Canadian waters and to Canadian ships in Canadian or international waters.

Fines of up to $100,000 are provided for dumping such things as mercury, cadmium, persistent plastcis or other persistent synthetic oils and hydraulic fluids, high-level radioactive materials and substances produced for biological and chemical warfare.

Fines of up to $75,000 are provided for dumping arsenic, lead, copper, zinc and their compounds, organosilicon compounds, cyanides, fluorides, pesticides and their by products not covered by $100,000 fines, beryllium chromium, nickel, vanadium and their compounds, containers and scrap metal, radioactive substances not classified as high-level and "substances that be reason of their bulk would interfere with fishing."

Dumping of anything else would be subject to fines of up to $50,000.

The bill provides for jettison of cargo or other material in event of emergency, however. It also provides for granting of permits for legitimate dumping operations.

In some instances, the environment minister could authorize dumping even of substances covered by $100,000 fines for

ANDRAS

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government's planned new immigration policy is expected to retain stiff entry tests requiring new arrivals to possess the skills to fill job vacancies in Canada, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Monday.

The job requirement is among the "fundamental principles" that the government is not likely to abandon as it begins the long process of overhauling the immigration laws, Andras said.

The new policy will be based on the prediction that most of the country's future population growth will come from immigration because of a sharply declining national birth rate, he added.

It will almost certainly retain absolute guarantees of universality and non-discrimination against minorities and continue to give some priority to reunification of families, he said.

In addition there will be an unrelenting campaign to increase the proportion of French-speaking immigrants, despite the "apparent contradition" between this goal and the pledge of universality.

Legislation to replace the existing 1952 Immigration Act is expected late next year or early in 1976 after a long public debate that, Andras said, will include consultation with the provinces.

The debate will centre on policy alternatives to be outlined in a "green paper" the government hopes to publish in January.

"You can't throw a subject open for discussion to the degree that we are intending to and take absolutely hard and fast positions, but I don't think that we are likely to depart from certain fundamentals," he said.

The point system used in the existing law requires prospective immigrants to gain at least 50 of a total possible 100 points to be admitted.

Points are awarded for such things as knowledge of English or French, family in Canada, educational or job training and job skills. The government moved last month to ease a sharply increasing immigrant flow by introducing a 10-point penalty for applicants who do not have a prearranged job or the skill to fill a designated occupation.

I Warned Alberta, Trudeau Now Says

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau says he tried to warn western provinces last March that the federal government would move to protect its resource tax base.

In letters tabled in the Commons Monday, Trudeau said a controversial step in last spring's budget regarding taxes on royalty payments to provinces was "fleshed out" following a meeting with premiers March 27.

But the prime minister said a letter he sent premiers Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Peter Lougheed of Alberta on March 12 "was intended to indicate that some action to protect its tax base should be expected from the federal government."

But in a letter to the prime minister written Friday and released by the Alberta government Monday, Lougheed said he assumed federal taxation referred to traditional tax policies covering depletion allowances, write-off for exploration and development and higher income tax rates.

The provinces, he said, had no indication that Ottawa would introduce such a "new and unusual tax policy."

He felt the province was entitled to know of any significant new federal tax proposals involving the oil companies when the premiers met with Trudeau March 27.

In Friday's letter, Lougheed also says federal tax policies will bring on an oil shortage faster than expected by the National Energy Board.

He said the board report released last week forecasts domestic production will not be sufficient to meet traditional market demands by 1982.

Meanwhile the Alberta Petroleum Marketing Commission will price and sell all crude oil from Crown leases as of Dec. 1, Bill Dickie, minister of mines and minerals, said Monday.

The announcement might touch off another skirmish between Alberta and the federal government over control of natural resources.

The commission was set up last year as part of the Progressive Conservative government's strategy to retain control over Alberta's energy resources.

It was originally responsible for marketing the government's share of crude oil, about 40 per cent of production, obtained from the industry through royalties — a form of taxation.

Dickie said the commission's new marketing procedure will not affect — at least immediately — the present pricing agreement with Ottawa.

SYNCRUDE 'MISLEADING'

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal report on the environmental hazards of developing Alberta's oil sands has found the developer's assessment of the situation confusing and misleading.

The report, tabled in the Common Monday by Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve, said the assessment by Syncrude Canada Ltd. makes statements not fully supported by facts.

Syncrude was founded in 1964 to research and develop commercially the 10,000-square-mile oil sands near Fort McMurray in northeastern Alberta. It is building a $1-billion plant that, when it reaches peak production, is expected to produce 45 million barrels of crude oil annually from 93 million tons of sand.

The company is a joint venture of Atlantic Richfield Canada Ltd., Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., Imperial Oil Ltd. and Canada-Cities Service Ltd.

Its assessment was prepared originally for the Alberta environment department, which asked Ottawa to review it although the ultimate legislative esponsibility rests with the province.

"In general, the documents present a concept of pollution management with very little evidence or documentation of reliability," said the federal statement.

"The quantity and qualify of the data pre ented and the manner of presentation is misleading, with the conclusions premature. This applies to all wildlife consideration," the report adds.

Information on fisheries was sketchy and did not justify the company' conclusions, many of which were "incorrect or contradictory."

Likewise, there was no clear definition by Syncrude of the possible effects of atmospheric emissions, including sulphur, hydrocarbons, nitrogen oxides and hydrogen sulphide.

Checkoff Stays Of Illegal Dues

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Monday the government is continuing to deduct union dues from postal employees' pay cheques although it legally does not have the right.

"To be precise, under the law, we have no right to deduct dues from members of any unions that have been decertified," Mr. Mackasey said in the Commons.

However, the government would continue to deduct dues on behalf of members of the decertified Council of Postal Unions unless the employees asked in writing for a stop to the deductions.

The council was the certified bargaining agent for 34,000 postal employees until six weeks ago when the Letter Carriers Union, one of the two unions represented by the council, filed for decertification.

Mackasey said, in response to a question from Walter Dinsdale (PC — Brandon-Souris) that the union's application for decertification means "the collective agreement is now null and void."

But the government was continuing to recognize terms of the collective agreement with the two unions on an unofficial basis until a new bargaining agent could be formed.

An aide to Mackasey said in an interview that new certification hearings will be held early next month.

"Until then there is no real bargaining agent and the whole union thing is sort of in limbo," the aide said.

The Teamsters Union now has a certification bid in for postal employees represented by the two unions in the old council.

The letter carriers have reapplied for certification along with the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, which also was represented by the decertified council.

GRITS SWEEP 2nd VOTE

OTTAWA (CP) — The majority Liberal government batted down the second challenge to Finance Minister Turner's new budget, defeating a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion 123 to 90 in the Commons Monday night.

The vote was similar to the count on a New Democratic Party motion opposing the budget last Thursday. It was defeated 116 to 95.

All opposition MPs, including Leonard Jones (Ind-Moncton) who opposed the NDP motion, supported the motion Monday night which condemned the budget's approach to inflation and federal-provincial relations.

There were 123 Liberals, 73 Conservatives 11 New Democrats, five Social Credit MPs and Jones in the Commons when the vote was taken.

GARDENING

Gardening Needs an Inner Spark

Enthusiasm belongs to the young at heart without regard to age. It is as thrilling to discover this priceless gift in mature person as when found in the very young. An adult brings the experience of the past years to the development of a new interest — gardening in some form for instance.

One notices that the adult is not bewildered when new theories are presented. New ideas are readily taken in because this has been the pattern of the previous years in other ways of life.

Rarely do we hear the phrase "I've never heard of that" or "that's a strange thing to suggest" — because somewhere in the memory the idea or related one has already been stored away, ready to be applied in a new way when needed.

This gift of transposing knowledge into action is very noticeable in newcomers to the coast. If they already possess in their personalities the basic enthusiasm for life they often develop into marvellous growers of plants even without any more than a previous casual acquaintance with gardening.

We see it among balcony gardeners here in the city; we saw it this summer among the allotment holders; and we shall see it among later arrivals of northerners and easterners who make their new gardens on the coast.

Balcony gardeners have gone ahead with their Green Thumb Club, a division of the James Bay New Horizons, reaching the point of recently publishing a delightful 23-page booklet called The Balcony Garden.

The club has a few copies for sale at 50 cents each to non members who will benefit from the articles on balcony gardens, for they are written from experiences and suggestions by members.

North facing balconies and windy balconies are two conditions dealt with by those who had them. They succeeded because they had mature enthusiasm. Some had done little gardening before, but adapted experiences from previous business or profession to the problems of balcony gardening. Soil mixtures and containers are other angles of discusssion in the little book.

It was the same story with the local allotment gardeners who are holding their first registration meeting this week. The enthusiasm encountered throughout the season was amazing in spite of weather caprices. The pleasure in whatever results were obtained has reflected the enthusiasm from start to finish. Allotment gardens are here to stay.

Gardening in any form does require an inner spark to keep it glowing, for much of the work is arduous; in many cases of outdoor gardening, it is heavy physicaal labor. Without enthusiasm, the interest wanes and result are disappointing.

A little encouragement is sometimes needed to renew the spark so that the enthusiasm lasts throughout the first winter planning season from now to early March.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A Victoria area resident who walked back into Canada two hours after he had been deported was sentenced in provincial court Monday to one month in jail in lieu of paying a $50 fine.

Richard Lee Pierson, 21, was charged Aug. 1 with entering Canada unlawfully after he crossed the border at Douglas, through a bushy area, without reporting too an immigration officer.

Court was told he wanted to return to be with his girlfriend, but did not report to immigration because he knew he would be refused entry.

Pierson asked if he could serve the one-month sentence at the same time he is serving another sentence, which expires Monday, at Wilkinson Road jail. When told he could, he replied, "That means I'll have three weeks then."

★ ★ ★

Christian Joseph Belleau, 20, of 904 Carlton Terrace, pleaded guilty to committing wilful damage, was fined $40 and required to pay $40 compensation to the city of Victoria.

Prosecutor Gordon Macdonald said Belleau was seen by police pulling five branches from a tree on the Yates Street boulevard.

He started to run when he saw police, but was caught after a brief chase.

When Judge William Ostler heard Belleau was 20, he remarked, "If one hadn't known that, one would have assumed you were 10 or 12."

★ ★ ★

Henry Cheung, 18, of 3400 Richmond, was given a suspended sentence and put on six months' probation for shoplifting envelopes, apples, cookies and nuts worth $7.73 Friday from Canada Safeway, 1670 Hillside.

He was caught outside the store after paying for a package of bananas.

★ ★ ★

Preliminary hearing for Eugene Thomas Leo, 37, of Tofino, was set for Dec. 19 in Tofino into a charge of murdering his wife, Matilda, 32.

She was taken to Victoria General Hospital suffering injuries received Nov. 6 and died there later.

★ ★ ★

Christina Hildebrandt, 22, of Courtenay, elected trial by judge and jury on a charge of kidnapping two RCMP officers, armed robbery and dangerous use of a firearm Nov. 15.

Preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 27.

Two men, Robert Gary Deraspe, 23, and Gordon Andrews, 21, were each given seven-year prison sentences after they pleaded guilty to the same offences Nov. 16.

★ ★ ★

In drug cases, Roland Alexander Clermont, of 1554 Hillside, was fined $200 for possessing marijuana. He had previously been convicted in September, 1973, of possessing a narcotic.

Jens Lloyd Person, 26, of White Rock, was fined $75 for possessing hashish.

★ ★ ★

Francis Delany, 51, of 576 Simcoe, was fined $400 and had his licence suspended for impaired driving.

★ ★ ★

A young man on probation at the Metchosin Camp was fined $75 for possessing marijuana at the camp Nov. 16.

Johannes Roodenburg, 18, of 996 Hyacinth, pleaded guilty.

Prosecutor Bruce McConnan said a correctional officer found Roodenburg with the butt end of a marijuana cigarette.

McConnan said he did not know what offence Roodenburg committed that resulted in him being required to attend the weekend probation camp.

Judge Ostler told Roodenburg, "you seem to have a marked misunderstanding of the terms of probation."

Peninsula Plans Market

A farmers market may open on the Saanich Peninsula next year.

Plans have been completed and all that is required is approval of the provincial agriculture department, Stan Kluhi, president of Saanich Fruit Growers Association, said Monday.

The market would be at the corner of Keating Cross Road and Veyaness in Central Saanich.

The market would sell locally-produced fruits, vegetables and farm produce and manufactured goods like home-made jams and preserves.

DRUNKEN SAILOR

A man operating a 14-foot aluminum boat that overturned off Ogden Point July 23 was fined $350 in provincial court Monday after being found guilty of impaired boating.

Edmund Bruce Scott, 32, 1225 Juno, who along with five passengers was rescued by other boaters after being in the water 20 to 30 minutes, testified he had four or five bottles of beer during the afternoon outing.

Police were unable to conduct a breath test as Scott collapsed at the police station.

CERTIFICATE A DEMERIT

COURTENAY (CP)—Provincial Court Judge Anthony Sarich said here Monday he will not hear cases dealing with drivers' certificates.

He looked at the new Auto Insurance Act and found it is "too imprecisely" drawn and does not, in fact, amend the Motor Vehicle Act, he said.

A charge under the section is not a charge in law, and the old provision still applies because the new Motor Vehicle Act makes no reference to a driver's certificate, he added.

As part of the Autoplan vehicle insurance, drivers are required to have a driver's certificate as well as a driver's licence. Failure to carry a driver's certificate results in a minimum automatic penalty of $250 and 10 demerit points.

'Longest Recession' Looms in U.S.—Simon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary William Simon says the United States may be facing the longest recession since the Second World War, and does not rule out that it also might be the worst.

The longest of the five post-war recessions extended for 13 months, from July, 1953, to August, 1954.

The last recession extended 12 months, from November, 1969, to November, 1970.

Simon said the U.S. unemployment rate — now six per cent of the labor force — will hit seven per cent by late spring, and indicated he would not be surprised if it went higher.

The worst unemployment in the U.S. in the post-war period was 7.9 per cent during the recession of late 1948 and 1949.

Simon said the economy which has been declining all year, will continue to decline through the first quarter of 1975, and then level off.

Meanwhile, Americans got warnings Monday of higher food prices and more unemployment, and the chairman of Ford Motor Co. accused Washington of inaction in the middle of a recession.

The U.S. Agriculture Department said the cost of feeding a hypothetical family of 3.2 persons rose to $1,779 a year in October, nearly 10 per cent higher than September.

Department economists predicted that by the end of the year food prices will be 20 per cent higher than in 1973, the biggest yearly jump ever.

U.S. automakers reported that mid-November sales were down 35 per cent from the depressed period a year ago, when the Arab oil embargo cut sharply into car sales.

The first nine selling days in November were the worst since 1970 in an industry already scheduled to layoff 200,000 U.S. and Canadian workers before Christmas.

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., said the auto industry has not yet hit bottom, and he was critical of the government for failing to take action.

"We're in the middle of a recession and we just can't sit there," said Ford. "I don't see anything specific being done in Washington."

Workers in the appliance and electronic industries are hard-hit by production cutbacks.

General Electric announced the idling of 6,800 workers — nearly half of the work force — at a major appliance facility at Louisville, Ky. The workers will be idled for at least a week, G.E. said.

The commerce department reported that the backlog of unsold goods held in inventory continued in October to outstrip sales, a certain sign that business will reduce production and lay off workers to bring balance between inventories and sales.

The department said manufacturers held an average $1.77 in inventory for every $1 in sales.

Meanwhile, Democrats and Republicans are squabbling over whose fault it is that Congress probably won't act on President Ford's economic program until deep into the winter.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott said the Democrats aren't doing anything about the economy except talking. "There is no bread in rhetoric," he said.

TESKEY REPORT LAUDED

The president of the Victoria police union said today if the police board did not act upon the recommendations in the undisclosed Teskey report "we would have to re-evaluate our decision not to make its contents public."

Kenneth Teskey, a second-year law student at UBC submitted the unsolicited report to chief Jack Gregory, the police commission and the union in September after working for a summer as a law-student constable on the force.

Negotiations for next year's contract with the city opened this week.

In his report Teskey offers "constructive criticism" on working conditions, personnel, finances, and claims low morale is endemic in the face of chronic equipment and manpower shortages.

"It is not our intention to hold the report as a club over the heads of the board members but if pushed we wouldn't hesitate to use it that way," Const. Patrick Braiden said.

Doubled Oil Price Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should let the price of oil climb to match higher world prices in the next few years, the Economic Council of Canada recommends today.

The proposal would mean almost doubling the cost of gasoline and heating fuel. Crude oil prices in Canada currently are held at about $6.50 a barrel, $5.20 less than world prices.

The council, in its 11th annual review, says the attempt to hold down oil prices inside Canada may provoke future shortages. The council includes representatives of business, labor and farm groups. (See other council recommendations on Page 3.)

Holding down the price encourages greater use of oil products, detracts from conservation mearures, uses up existing reserves more quickly, discouraged development of higher-cost Arctic reserves and may foster development of industries dependent on low-cost oil that would be forced out of business when future shortages push up costs.

"We recommend that the federal and provincial governments allow the price of oil to move to international levels over the medium term and that they inquire into, and encourage, the adoption of energy-conserving practices," the council says.

The present pricing program was presented as federal policy a year ago, when world prices were climbing, and was worked out in agreement with the provinces last spring.

$1.5M Fire Destroys Letters

TORONTO (CP) — A $1.5-million fire blazed fiercely through Metropolitan Toronto's main post office building today, destroying thousands of pieces of mail and probably knocking out the 53-year-old structure permanently as a postal facility.

The classic downtown building that forms the east wing of Union Station, which was to have been abandoned by the post office department starting next April, was ravaged through three of its four floors and mail-sorting and distribution equipment destroyed or damaged so badly that it is unlikely to go back into commission before the scheduled move.

Most of the overnight mail in the building — which processed about 30 per cent of Canada's national postal traffic — had been moved out before the fire was discovered on the topmost of its four floors at 5 a.m. But postal officials said the fire destroyed a considerable quantity of first-class mail in oversize envelopes mainly destined for Ontario and Quebec.

An unknown quantity of parcel post, some of it being repaired after being damaged in transit, also was burned or further damaged by water and smoke.

To meet the opening of the Christmas rush, plans were being made to set up emergency operations in buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition.

The Toronto Fire Department, which made the damage estimate, fought the three-alarm fire with 17 pieces of equipment and 85 men in 20-degree weather that coated the location at the busy corner of Bay and Front streets with ice while rush-hour traffic was detoured around a four-block area in the city's downtown heart.

Orange flames burst part of the roof in a southwest section of the postal building and ate through the floor of the fourth storey while smoke and water did heavy damage to the next two floors down.

Between 50 and 60 overnight workers in the building called Postal Station A — escaped without injury after a cleaner found fire coming through a conveyor belt system on the top floor, some of them rushing into the bitter cold in shirtsleeves. Later in the day, there would have been from 800 to 900 persons in the building.

The postal building, apart from handling a heavy volume of Canadian mail mainly originating in or destined for Ontario, also was the primary handling centre for Ontario overseas mail going both ways and a lesser amount for Western Canada.

Overseas mail involving Quebec and the Atlantic provinces and some Western Canadian overseas mail has been handled through Montreal.

Tanaka Resigns In Shame

TOKYO (AP)—Hailed two years ago as Japan's man of the future, Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka says he is resigning in shame and embarrassment over "misunderstandings" about the sources of his private fortune.

Tanaka, 56, announced today that he would remain as prime minister until the ruling Liberal Democratic party can find a successor. This might take two weeks.

The leading contenders are former Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda, 69, Tanaka's chief political foe, and Finance Minister Masayoshi Ohira, 64, a powerful Tanaka supporter.

Nicknamed the "computerized bulldozer" because of his energy and skill with finances, Tanaka began his stewardship of Japan in July, 1972, by spearheading a successful campaign to recognize mainland China.

In between, inflation, soaring living costs, international monetary problems and suggestions by the respected Bungei Shinju magazine that he had used his office for private gain brought him down.

In a resignation statement, Tanaka said: "I deeply feel political and moral responsibility for the current political confusion which has resulted from my personal problems."

He said he eventually plans to "make clear the truth and seek the understanding of the people." He added that misunderstanding among the people, "even for a moment, means that it is a matter of shame as a public official that I feel hard to endure."

PLO Wants Hijackers

BEIRUT (UPI) Angry members of the Palestine Liberation Organization said today they would impose the death sentence on four Arabs who hijacked a British VC 10 to Tunis if the Tunisian government complied with a PLO request to hand them over.

Palestinian sources said the PLO is exultant over UN recognition of its cause and is in no mood to tolerate threats to its authority from dissident guerrillas.

The hijacking incident, which ended Monday, was, in effect, aimed at the PLO, the sources said. The five guerrillas flown from Cairo to join their comrades in Tunis were technically prisoners of the PLO, although they were held in an Egyptian jail.

Protests Useless On Housing Units

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Whether the Saanich council or public agree or not, the provincial government can go ahead and build the controversial 305-unit Interurban-Marigold housing complex.

Close to 300 Colquitz residents mounted a well-organized opposition to the project at the largest public hearing in the municipality's history Monday night.

Briefs, scores of letters and a warning of impending social disaster by a social worker persuaded council to table the issue for further study.

But, legally, the entire proceeding was an academic exercise.

Mayor Ed Lum told the Times today the provincial government, if it wished, could go ahead and build the complex without being answerable to the municipality.

Monday's hearing was on a land-use contract between Saanich and the government-owned Dunhill Development Corporation Ltd.

Lum said he had checked with municipal solicitor Doug Patterson earlier Monday and been told that an amendment to the Municipal Act, passed in 1973, had taken away the provincial government's power.

Lum said, however, that a further amendment to the act, passed Friday, restores the provincial government's power to supercede the wishes of municipalities.

He said, however, the pattern had been that the provincial government takes into consideration municipal recommendations although they had no legal authority to make them.

At Monday's public hearing the crowd crammed the municipal chamber, standing two-deep along the walls, with scores listening from the outside foyer.

Thirty-four letters, received at the last moment, were read by municipal clerk Gordon Hayward, his voice getting hoarse by the time he reached the end.

The writers were all in opposition, except one, who wanted to know where she could apply to buy one of the condominium units.

The entire audience were in opposition except three non-Saanich residents involved in co-operative housing complexes in other parts of Greater Victoria.

One of the most outstanding presentations was a well-researched 10-page brief by

Bombs Blast London

LONDON (CP) — Terrorist bombs have again ripped through central London, this time during a full police alert, injuring 20 persons and stretching British tolerance to the breaking point.

Within hours of the three large blasts at the height of the Monday evening rush hour, stunned, uneasy Londoners had virtually vacated the usually-bustling streets, leaving an eerie silence broken by the occasional whine of police and fire sirens.

The bombs, which exploded in letter boxes at Piccadilly Circus, King's Cross and the Victoria area, followed an announcement by the Labor government that it plans to outlaw the Irish Republican Army (IRA) and take tough new measures against all other guerrilla groups in the country.

While no organization has yet claimed responsibility for the attacks, police are operating on the theory that the IRA was involved and a spokesman for Scotland Yard said further violent outbursts must be expected in the near future.

NEWS BRIEFS

Sugar Boycott Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Consumer Federation of America, the largest organized consumer group in the U.S., has called an Americans to boycott sugar durinb the first 10 days of December. The organization, which claims to represent 30 million Americans, urged the public to cut down on use of sugared products permanently and to ask the government to tell food processors to use less sugar in food products.

Blizzard Hits N.B.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Schools and some offices in widespread areas of New Brunswick were closed today and transportation in some areas paralysed by a blizzard sweeping through the province. At least a foot of snow driven by gusts of up to 60 miles an hour hit the northern part of the province while the south received rain and freezing rain early in the day.

Own Gun Shoots Man

LANGLEY (CP) — RCMP say a man was shot with his own revolver after he held a man and woman at gunpoint here Monday night. A spokesman said the gunman hit the woman over the head with the gun, and a scuffle ensued between the two men. The gunman ended up with a bullet wound in his elbow. The unidentified gunman is in custody in hospital pending charges.

Hospitable Chinese Inscrutable on Trade

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

PEKING — British Columbia's socialist members and their Chinese Communist hosts sipped fine wine together Monday in the splendor of the imperial Palace of Eternal Spring.

The B.C. delegation was ushered into the Empress of China's delicately decorated waiting room where ornately carved marble-topped tables were laid out with hors d'oeuvres, fruit and fine antique china.

The elegant respite followed a tour of the old Forbidden City where the group was dazzled by imperial splendor so sharply in contrast with the meagre existence of the Chinese people outside the palace walls.

After walking across acres of deserted courtyards and through dozens of palace buildings, the delegation was given the special privilege of walking through the rooms where the Ming and Ch'ing dynasty emperors lived for nearly 600 years.

New Witness System Aims At 'Fractured' Justice

Victoria Times
TUESDAY, NOV. 26, 1974 17
SECOND SECTION

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The "forgotten people" in the provincial court system will get a better break under a unique program being organized by the B.C. Justice Development Commission.

It could also save police forces thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money each year.

Called the witness management program it sets out a procedure which hopefully will result in a more efficient use of witness time to avoid unnecessary attendance and delay.

The procedure would be unique in Canada, says John Hausberg, director of the project.

It would see, in the larger court systems, the creation of a special court officer called a "witnessman." He would attend to all matters relating not only to police and civilian witnesses but also exhibits seized or entered in court cases.

The program details a new paperflow chart and proposes eventually to punch information into a province-wide computer system.

The project aims at standardizing court practices in 127 registeries in the province. A procedures manual is being prepared for court clerks.

Up to now, says Hausberg, justice has been "fractured," with registeries using different forms, different procedures and different pay schedules.

The management of witnesses and property has been "slipshod and wasteful," he contends.

Hausberg, a constable with the Vancouver police force seconded to the commission in September to work on the program, says witnesses have become the "forgotten people" in the court system.

Complaints from police and civilian witnesses about long waits in courtrooms — and about never being called to testify even after being summoned to appear — are common, he says.

"Often witnesses are treated as badly if not worse than the accused," he says.

The program will give witnesses more personal attention — perhaps even a separate, more comfortable waiting area in some courts — and suggests the elimination of subpoenas in most cases.

"I would say 95 per cent of all witnesses called would come whether a subpoena was issued or not," he says.

He calls the serving of subpoenas by and large a "useless duty," costly, and "time-consuming."

He gives the example of the Vancouver police force which spends about $750,000 a year for police members to attend court.

Yet, he says, less than a third of police witnesses called actually give evidence.

The new program will begin as a pilot project in the Surrey courthouse probably in January. If successful, it will be incorporated into all courts in the province by the end of next year.

Ross Will Seek Major Reduction In Camosun Budget

Camosun College's whopping $7.8 million operating budget proposed for 1975-76 got through the college council's finance committee uncut Monday.

But councillor Bill Ross served notice he will seek a major reduction of the budget when the full council meets next Monday.

The cutback being proposed by Ross would require scrapping of all new college programs, cutbacks in existing programs and staff reductions, Camosun principal Dr. Grant Fisher warned today.

Ross wants the local mill rate for Camosun financing to be held at 1.25 mills next year, which Fisher said would require slashing $2 million from the proposed budget.

The $7.8 million budget presented to the committee would raise Camosun's mill rate from the 1974 level of .97 to roughly 2 mills, Fisher said.

Ross warned the committee that the burden on the local taxpayer would be more than doubled by the proposed budget.

Local taxes would have to raise over $1 million for Camosun compared with $490,000 in 1974-75, he said.

Local taxes pay for about 20 per cent of the college budget. Another 20 per cent comes from student fees and 60 per cent from the provincial government.

KNIGHT
... gloomy signals

The proposed budget is a 58 per cent increase over the 1974-75 budget of $4.9 million.

Despite Ross's concern, a majority of councillors favored sending the budget as is to the provincial government and letting the government say how much it should be cut.

That the government is going to cut it is very likely, college council chairman Dr. Hal Knight told the committee.

"The only signals I get are very gloomy ones," Knight said.

"The B.C. economy runs on stumpage and if we're not cutting down trees there's no money."

"There's no way that they're going to entertain this kind of an increase," he said of the 58 per cent jump.

Fisher defended the budget, saying the administration has already gone through it three times cutting it as much as possible.

"There are all kinds of programs that we have had to refuse," he said.

There is a drastic need right now to provide classes in reading and study skills, courses in English for new Canadians and illiterate Canadians, and courses in life skills, Fisher said.

Only the remedial reading and study skills has been included in the budget.

The college is expecting a 30 per cent jump in enrolment next fall which creates added costs.

Fisher also pointed out the provincial government is committed to taking educational costs from off property taxes. If it acts on this commitment, he said, the local tax burden could be lightened.

Absentees Put Strain On Fellow Councillors

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Camosun College councillor Joanne Claxton didn't attend Monday's finance committee meeting called to discuss an expected 58 per cent rise in the college budget.

No one was surprised.

Mrs. Claxton misses more college council meetings than she attends.

Between February, 1973 and September, 1974 Mrs. Claxton attended four out of 15 college council meetings, an attendance record of 27 per cent.

College administrators can't remember her ever attending a committee meeting.

Mrs. Claxton was appointed in January, 1973 to be one of four provincial government appointed members of the nine-member college council.

Her appointment was renewed in January, 1974, as was that of councillor Dr. Charles Gregory.

Gregory also missed Monday's meeting. His record between February, 1973 and September, 1974 is seven meetings attended, eight missed.

Most faithful attenders of Camosun council meetings have been the five school board trustees who sit on the council.

Trustees Dr. Hal Knight and Dr. John Duffus attended all council meetings in the same time period, and Lavinia Greenwood missed one.

Trustee Bill Ross missed one meeting out of eight since he was appointed by the school board to the college council. Daphne Temple missed two out of eight.

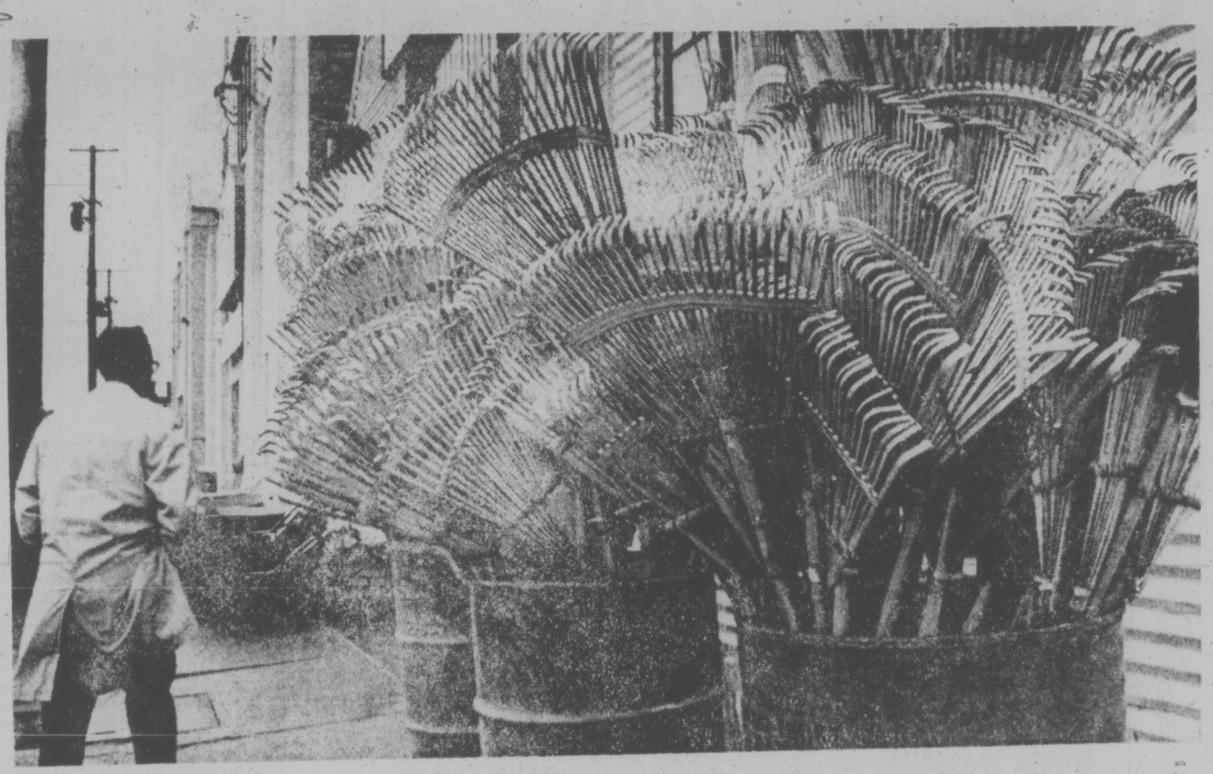
The non-attendance of some councillors has been a real problem, Knight, council chairman, said today. Getting a quorum is sometimes difficult, he said.

"It throws a larger workload on the other councillors," he said.

The provincial government's task force on community colleges recommended this fall that all members of the college council be government-appointed.

This would eliminate the school board trustees who now sit on the council, and have been carrying the load.

Camosun College's brief to the task force asked that college councils be partially-appointed and partially elected locally, with elected councillors in the majority.



IT'S AN ILL WIND and it's blown leaves all over town. The message outside this downtown store is plain enough — time to rake them up. What isn't so plain is what to do about them after they are in piles. Heavy rain has produced another annual problem — soggy leaves won't burn. They just lie there, and won't even blow over to the neighbor's yard. (John McKay photo)

Mini-Farm Plans Going Ahead As $27,025 Grant Received

The Saanich Historical Artifacts Society was notified Monday it will receive a $27,025 Local Initiative Program grant for the small working farm it plans on provincial government land off the Pat Bay Highway.

President Art Gardner said today the society will start hiring a crew Dec. 1, which will clear and improve the 18-acre property.

He said the grant will cover 200-man weeks of labor, lasting until May 1.

Gardner said the B.C. Land Commission has "assured us terms of the lease are being negotiated.

The society plans to build a small working farm, complete with beef cattle, sheep and we are getting the land" and horses.

Gardner said, "We were out plowing field on the weekend, getting ready for crops next year."

He said the LIP grant was "a real good step in the right direction."

The society plans to run a mini-farm where city children and their parents can see how a farm is run and how animals are riased.

The property lies between the East Saanich Indian Reserve and Michael Williams' kennels on the highway. Shady Creek runs through the property.

Entrance to the farm will be from Island View Road.

Society plans for the farm include a log cabin and, eventually, an early pioneer church, a wooden bridge over Shady Creek, an old-time school house and a museum building.

Teachers To Talk Thursday

Talks between teachers and school trustees from five lower Vancouver Island school districts are expected to resume Thursday at The Empress.

The negotiations on 1975 teachers' salaries began Sunday after the two sides were called together by W. T. Stanbury, government-appointed conciliator.

Taking part are teachers and school board represenatives from Greater Victoria, Saanich, Sooke, Gulf Islands and Lake Cowichan school districts, Stanbury said.

He said the teachers are meeting with a committee of the B.C. School Trustees' Association which includes members of all school boards involved.

Teachers from Cowichan School District didn't appear at the meeting, so Cowichan school board is not taking part in the talks.

The Empress talks are a compromise for teachers and trustees alike.

The two sides have been deadlocked over the attempt by 68 school boards this year to introduce province-wide bargaining of teachers' salaries.

All contracts still unsettled by Friday will be settled by arbitration boards.

Real Estate Board Takes Role of Property Owner

Victoria Real Estate Board — always a tenant for its more than 50 years of operation — becomes a property owner Jan. 1 in new premises overlooking Topaz Park.

Premises at 3035 Nanaimo now occupied by Frank Browne Pools will be occupied by the board, its Multiple Listing Service, printing and computer operations and the recently-formed Real Estate Credit Union of Greater Victoria.

The latter, first of its kind in the province, was established as a separate entity on Sept. 16 to serve the private needs of people working in the real estate industry and their families.

VREB president Herb Brown said the move from offices at 1212 Broad Street occupied since the 1920s was the result of a recommendation from the board's long-term planning committee that there should be more public involvement.

He said this dictated new, more visible premises and the location easily seen from the Blanshard Street approach to sen for strategic reasons.

There was also a need, Brown said, for larger offices that will accommodate growing needs of the Multiple Listing Service and allow computerization of MLS and other board functions including accounting, and more detailed and accurate statistical reporting of the real estate market.

BROWN
... more visible

The board is setting up the first computer operation of its kind in B.C. with a Lockheed System 3 electronic data processing unit that is expected to start up next month.

VREB will occupy about 6,000 square feet in the Nanaimo Street building, which is notable for its pool and fountain facing Blanshard.

A second pool on the premises will be filled in.

Frank Browne Pools will move to a location as yet not determined.

About 1,500 square feet of office space in the building will continue to be leased to other tenants until required by the board, manager John Hicks said.

He said about half the space remaining would be used by the MLS printing plant which publishes a catalogue of all properties in Southern Vancouver Island listed through the service. It consumes a ton of paper each week.

Ultimately, Hicks said, it will be possible for individual real estate agents to have a computer read-out screen in their offices to enable quick recall of listings on closed-circuit television with the press of code buttons.

The board was established in Victoria in 1921 and its first president Percy Brown was the current president's uncle. VREB added Multiple Listing Service in 1954 and has shown steady growth to a membership of 97 firms and branch offices and 855 licencees.

About 300 applications for membership in the credit union have been accepted since a general meeting Oct. with more than $12,500 in share subscriptions to make al assets of about $200,000.

Santa Keeps Up With Mail Load

Letters dropped in Victoria mail boxes addressed to Santa Claus won't reach the North Pole this year.

The mail won't even get to Helsinki as in past years unless specific street and box numbers are on the envelopes, according to post office officials.

But the wide-eyed young letter writers will get replies.

For the first time this year, employees in the Vancouver post office "undeliverable mail department" are being allowed to waive regulations and open first-class mail addressed to Santa. As many letters as possible will be answered right from Vancouver.

Santa mail from Victoria all goes to Vancouver along with mail from children throughout the four western provinces.

★

Postal employees there have been answering the mail with a form letter from "Santa" for several weeks now, a post office official said today.

"The letters start coming in about the middle of October," he said.

Those with legible return addresses will all get letters from Santa's helpers.

Kids haven't changed much, say the stand-in Santas.

They still ask after Santa's health and offer cookies and milk on Christmas.

One young girl wrote, "How are you. I am fine, now I'd like to talk business . . ."

The Vancouver office received more than 4,000 Santa letters last year.

$7M JOB FOR YARROWS

An ice-breaking supply ship for Arctic service, at a cost of more than $7 million, will be built in the Esquimalt shipyard of Yarrows Ltd.

A sister ship will be built at the Burrard yard in Northern Vancouver.

The two ships — commissioned by Dome Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary will cost about $15 million and will be the first to be constructed under rigid new Canadian regulations for Arctic pollution prevention.

The 7,000 horsepower ships will be powered by twin diesel engines, and will be 206 feet long, have a 45-foot beam and a molded depth of 18 feet three inches.

They will work in the Beaufort Sea, supplying drilling vessels, being based at Tuktoyaktuk in the North West Territories.

They are scheduled for delivery in August, 1975.

Book 'Distinctively Canadian'

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

There is such a language as Canadian.

Born of the Queen's English and European French, it now includes many words which originated in Canada or are used exclusively here, say researchers at the University of Victoria who are revising The Canadian Dictionary-Dictionnaire Canadien.

The dictionary is the only French - English translation book which includes "distinctively Canadian" words and expressions, according to UVic project director Murray Wilton.

A few such Canadianisms to be included in the revised edition are "boozer," "Wildcat strike," "ass kisser," "draft dodger," "pollution control," "organ transplant" and "to make the scene," said Wilton.

The dictionary's Quebecois words with no exact English equivalents include the jargon of women's liberation in which French is much more advanced than English, said Wilton.

Some of these are "speakerine—female speaker," "liftiere—female elevator operator," "footballeuse — female football player" and "artisane—female skilled worker."

The book's first edition appeared in 1962 and was edited by Dr. Jean-Paul Vinay, now of UVic.

A grant of $24,000 from the Donner Foundation started the revision project in 1971, the plans call for the 40,000 entries to be increased to 100,000 in the new volume.

The dictionary's Quebecois words not common to European French often developed to describe realities not dealt with globally.

Quebecois has about 150 words to describe the cold, for instance, said Wilton.

Also to be included in the volume are many modern expressions of both French and English including "streaking" and "direct distance dialling."

Researchers hope the book will be on the stands by 1976.

CERTIFICATE INVALID?

COURTENAY (CP)—Provincial Court Judge Anthony Sarich said here Monday he will not hear cases dealing with drivers' certificates.

He looked at the new Auto Insurance Act and found it is "too imprecisely" drawn and does not, in fact, amend the Motor Vehicle Act, he said.

A charge under the section is not a charge in law, and the old provision still applies because the new Motor Vehicle Act makes no reference to a driver's certificate, he added.

As part of the Autoplan vehicle insurance, drivers are required to have a driver's certificate as well as a driver's licence. Failure to carry a driver's certificate results in a minimum automatic penalty of $250 and 10 demerit points.

'Longest Recession' Looms in U.S.—Simon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary William Simon says the United States may be facing the longest recession since the Second World War, and does not rule out that it also might be the worst.

The longest of the five post-war recessions extended for 13 months, from July, 1953, to August, 1954.

The last recession extended 12 months, from November, 1969, to November, 1970.

Simon said the U.S. unemployment rate — now six per cent of the labor force — will hit seven per cent by late spring, and indicated he would not be surprised if it went higher.

The worst unemployment in the U.S. in the post-war period was 7.9 per cent during the recession of late 1948 and 1949.

Simon said the economy which has been declining all year, will continue to decline through the first quarter of 1975, and then level off.

Meanwhile, Americans got warnings Monday of higher food prices and more unemployment, and the chairman of Ford Motor Co. accused Washington of inaction in the middle of a recession.

The U.S. Agriculture Department said the cost of feeding a hypothetical family of 3.2 persons rose to $1,779 a year in October, nearly 10 per cent higher than September.

Department economists predicted that by the end of the year food prices will be 20 per cent higher than in 1973, the biggest yearly jump ever.

U.S. automakers reported that mid-November sales were down 35 per cent from the depressed period a year ago, when the Arab oil embargo cut sharply into car sales.

The first nine selling days in November were the worst since 1970 in an industry already scheduled to layoff 200,000 U.S. and Canadian workers before Christmas.

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., said the auto industry has not yet hit bottom, and he was critical of the government for failing to take action.

"We're in the middle of a recession and we just can't sit there," said Ford. "I don't see anything specific being done in Washington."

Workers in the appliance and electronic industries are hard-hit by production cutbacks.

General Electric announced the idling of 6,800 workers — nearly half of the work force — at a major appliance facility at Louisville, Ky. The workers will be idled for at least a week, G.E. said.

The commerce department reported that the backlog of unsold goods held in inventory continued in October to outstrip sales, a certain sign that business will reduce production and lay off workers to bring balance between inventories and sales.

The department said manufacturers hold an average $1.77 in inventory for every $1 in sales.

Meanwhile, Democrats and Republicans are squabbling over whose fault it is that Congress probably won't act on President Ford's economic program until deep into the winter.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott said the Democrats aren't doing anything about the economy except talking. "There is no bread in rhetoric," he said.

TESKEY REPORT LAUDED

The president of the Victoria police union said today if the police board did not act upon the recommendations in the undisclosed Teskey report "we would have to re-evaluate our decision not to make its contents public."

Kenneth Teskey, a second-year law student at UBC submitted the unsolicited report to chief Jack Gregory, the police commission and the union in September after working for a summer as a law-student constable on the force.

Negotiations for next year's contract with the city opened this week.

In his report Teskey offers "constructive criticism" on working conditions, personnel, finances, and claims low morale is endemic in the face of chronic equipment and manpower shortages.

"It is not our intention to hold the report as a club over the heads of the board members but if pushed we wouldn't hesitate to use it that way," Const. Patrick Braiden said.

Doubled Oil Price Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should let the price of oil climb to match higher world prices in the next few years, the Economic Council of Canada recommends today.

The proposal would mean almost doubling the cost of gasoline and heating fuel. Crude oil prices in Canada currently are held at about $6.50 a barrel, $5.20 less than world prices.

The council, in its 11th annual review, says the attempt to hold down oil prices inside Canada may provoke future shortages. The council includes representatives of business, labor and farm groups.

Holding down the price encourages greater use of oil products, detracts from conservation mearures, uses up existing reserves more quickly, discourages development of higher-cost Arctic reserves and may foster development of industries dependent on low-cost oil that would be forced out of business when future shortages push up costs.

"We recommend that the federal and provincial governments allow the price of oil to move to international levels over the medium term and that they inquire into, and encourage, the adoption of energy-conserving practices," the council says.

The present pricing program was presented as federal policy a year ago, when world prices were climbing, and was worked out in agreement with the provinces last spring.

$1.5M Fire Destroys Letters

TORONTO (CP) — A $1.5-million fire blazed fiercely through Metropolitan Toronto's main post office building today, destroying thousands of pieces of mail and probably knocking out the 53-year-old structure permanently as a postal facility.

The classic downtown building that forms the east wing of Union Station, which was to have been abandoned by the post office department starting next April, was ravaged through three of its four floors and mail-sorting and distribution equipment destroyed or damaged so badly that it is unlikely to go back into commission before the scheduled move.

Most of the overnight mail in the building — which processed about 30 per cent of Canada's national postal traffic — had been moved out before the fire was discovered on the topmost of its four floors at 5 a.m. But postal officials said the fire destroyed a considerable quantity of first-class mail in oversize envelopes mainly destined for Ontario and Quebec.

An unknown quantity of parcel post, some of it being repaired after being damaged in transit, also was burned or further damaged by water and smoke.

To meet the opening of the Christmas rush, plans were being made to set up emergency operations in buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition.

The Toronto Fire Department, which made the damage estimate, fought the three-alarm fire with 17 pieces of equipment and 85 men in 20-degree weather that coated the location at the busy corner of Bay and Front streets with ice while rush-hour traffic was detoured around a four-block area in the city's downtown heart.

Orange flames burst part of the roof in a southwest section of the postal building and ate through the floor of the fourth storey while smoke and water did heavy damage to the next two floors down.

Between 50 and 60 overnight workers in the building — called Postal Station A — escaped without injury after a cleaner found fire coming through a conveyor belt system on the top floor, some of them rushing into the bitter cold in shirtsleeves. Later in the day, there would have been from 800 to 900 persons in the building.

The postal building, apart from handling a heavy volume of Canadian mail mainly originating in or destined for Ontario, also was the primary handling centre for Ontario overseas mail going both ways and a lesser amount for Western Canada.

Overseas mail involving Quebec and the Atlantic provinces and some Western Canadian overseas mail has been handled through Montreal.

Tanaka Resigns In Shame

TOKYO (AP)—Hailed two years ago as Japan's man of the future, Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka says he is resigning in shame and embarrassment over "misunderstandings" about the sources of his private fortune.

Tanaka, 56, announced today that he would remain as prime minister until the ruling Liberal Democratic party can find a successor. This might take two weeks.

The leading contenders are former Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda, 69, Tanaka's chief political foe, and Finance Minister Masayoshi Ohira, 64, a powerful Tanaka supporter.

Nicknamed the "computerized bulldozer" because of his energy and skill with finances, Tanaka began his stewardship of Japan in July, 1972, by spearheading a successful campaign to recognize mainland China.

In between, inflation, soaring living costs, international monetary problems and suggestions by the respected Bungei Shinju magazine that he had used his office for private gain brought him down.

In a resignation statement, Tanaka said: "I deeply feel political and moral responsibility for the current political confusion which has resulted from my personal problems."

He said he eventually plans to "make clear the truth and seek the understanding of the people." He added that misunderstanding among the people, "even for a moment, means that it is a matter of shame as a public official that I feel hard to endure."

PLO Wants Hijackers

BEIRUT (UPI) Angry members of the Palestine Liberation Organization said today they would impose the death sentence on four Arabs who hijacked a British VC 10 to Tunis if the Tunisian government complied with a PLO request to hand them over.

Palestinian sources said the PLO is exultant over UN recognition of its cause and is in no mood to tolerate threats to its authority from dissident guerrillas.

The hijacking incident, which ended Monday, was, in effect, aimed at the PLO, the sources said. The five guerrillas flown from Cairo to join their comrades in Tunis were technically prisoners of the PLO, although they were held in an Egyptian jail.

Protests Useless On Housing Units

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Whether the Saanich council or public agree or not, the provincial government can go ahead and build the controversial 305-unit Interurban-Marigold housing complex.

Close to 300 Colquitz residents mounted a well-organized opposition to the project at the largest public hearing in the municipality's history Monday night.

Briefs, scores of letters and a warning of impending social disaster by a social worker persuaded council to table the issue for further study.

But, legally, the entire proceeding was an academic exercise.

Mayor Ed Lum told the Times today the provincial government, if it wished, could go ahead and build the complex without being answerable to the municipality.

Monday's hearing was on a land-use contract between Saanich and the government-owned Dunhill Development Corporation Ltd.

Lum said he had checked with municipal solicitor Doug Patterson earlier Monday and been told that an amendment to the Municipal Act, passed in 1973, had taken away the provincial government's power.

Lum said, however, that a further amendment to the act, passed Friday, restores the provincial government's power to supersede the wishes of municipalities.

He said, however, the pattern had been that the provincial government takes into consideration municipal recommendations although they had no legal authority to make them.

At Monday's public hearing the crowd crammed the municipal chamber, standing two-deep along the walls, with scores listening from the outside foyer.

Thirty-four letters, received at the last moment, were read by municipal clerk Gordon Hayward, his voice getting hoarse by the time he reached the end.

The writers were all in opposition, except one, who wanted to know where she could apply to buy one of the condominium units.

The entire audience were in opposition except three non-Saanich residents involved in co-operative housing complexes in other parts of Greater Victoria.

One of the most outstanding presentations was a well-researched 10-page brief by

Bombs Blast London

LONDON (CP) — Terrorist bombs have again ripped through central London, this time during a full police alert, injuring 20 persons and stretching British tolerance to the breaking point.

Within hours of the three large blasts at the height of the Monday evening rush hour, stunned, uneasy Londoners had virtually vacated the usually-bustling streets, leaving an eerie silence broken by the occasional whine of police and fire sirens.

The bombs, which exploded in letter boxes at Piccadilly Circus, King's Cross and the Victoria area, followed an announcement by the Labor government that it plans to outlaw the Irish Republican Army (IRA) and take tough new measures against all other guerrilla groups in the country.

While no organization has yet claimed responsibility for the attacks, police are operating on the theory that the IRA was involved and a spokesman for Scotland Yard said further violent outbursts must be expected in the near future.

Sugar Boycott Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Consumer Federation of America, the largest organized consumer group in the U.S., has called an Americans to boycott sugar durinb the first 10 days of December. The organization, which claims to represent 30 million Americans, urged the public to cut down on use of sugared products permanently and to ask the government to tell food processors to use less sugar in food products.

Blizzard Hits N.B.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Schools and some offices in widespread areas of New Brunswick were closed today and transportation in some areas paralysed by a blizzard sweeping through the province. At least a foot of snow driven by gusts of up to 60 miles an hour hit the northern part of the province while the south received rain and freezing rain early in the day.

Own Gun Shoots Man

LANGLEY (CP) — RCMP say a man was shot with his own revolver after he held a man and woman at gunpoint here Monday night. A spokesman said the gunman hit the woman over the head with the gun, and a scuffle ensured between the two men. The gunman ended up with a bullet wound in his elbow. The unidentified gunman is in custody in hospital pending charges.

Hospitable Chinese Inscrutable on Trade

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

PEKING — British Columbia's socialist members and their Chinese Communist hosts sipped fine wine together Monday in the splendor of the Imperial Palace of Eternal Spring.

The B.C. delegation was ushered into the Empress of China's delicately decorated waiting room where ornately carved marble-topped tables were laid out with hors d'oeuvres, fruit and fine antique china.

The elegant respite followed a tour of the old Forbidden City where the group was dazzled by imperial splendor so sharply in contrast with the meagre existence of the Chinese people outside the palace walls.

"After walking across acres of deserted courtyards and through dozens of palace buildings, the delegation was given the special privilege of walking through the rooms where the Ming and Ch'ing dynasty emperors lived for nearly 600 years.

The precious and indescribable treasures within those rooms and in a special display of priceless jewels and antiques, left the British Columbians totally awed despite Premier Barrett's speech to his host that the children they have seen at a commune on the weekend "were more precious than any treasures."

CERTIFICATE INVALID?

COURTENAY (CP)—Provincial Court Judge Anthony Sarich said here Monday he will not hear cases dealing with drivers' certificates.

He looked at the new Auto Insurance Act and found it is "too imprecisely" drawn and does not, in fact, amend the Motor Vehicle Act, he said.

A charge under the section is not a charge in law, and the old provision still applies because the new Motor Vehicle Act makes no reference to a driver's certificate, he added.

As part of the Autoplan vehicle insurance, drivers are required to have a driver's certificate as well as a driver's licence. Failure to carry a driver's certificate results in a minimum automatic penalty of $250 and 10 demerit points.

'Longest Recession' Looms in U.S.—Simon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary William Simon says the United States may be facing the longest recession since the Second World War, and does not rule out that it also might be the worst.

The longest of the five post-war recessions extended for 13 months, from July, 1953, to August, 1954.

The last recession extended 12 months, from November, 1969, to November, 1970.

Simon said the U.S. unemployment rate — now six per cent of the labor force — will hit seven per cent by late spring, and indicated he would not be surprised if it went higher.

The worst unemployment in the U.S. in the post-war period was 7.9 per cent during the recession of late 1948 and 1949.

Simon said the economy which has been declining all year, will continue to decline through the first quarter of 1975, and then level off.

Meanwhile, Americans got warnings Monday of higher food prices and more unemployment, and the chairman of Ford Motor Co. accused Washington of inaction in the middle of a recession.

The U.S. Agriculture Department said the cost of feeding a hypothetical family of 3.2 persons rose to $1,779 a year in October, nearly 10 per cent higher than September.

Department economists predicted that by the end of the year food prices will be 20 per cent higher than in 1973, the biggest yearly jump ever.

U.S. automakers reported that mid-November sales were down 35 per cent from the depressed period a year ago, when the Arab oil embargo cut sharply into car sales.

The first nine selling days in November were the worst since 1970 in an industry already scheduled to layoff 200,000 U.S. and Canadian workers before Christmas.

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., said the auto industry has not yet hit bottom, and he was critical of the government for failing to take action.

"We're in the middle of a recession and we just can't sit there," said Ford. "I don't see anything specific being done in Washington."

Workers in the appliance and electronic industries are hard-hit by production cutbacks.

General Electric announced the idling of 6,800 workers — nearly half of the work force — at a major appliance facility at Louisville, Ky. The workers will be idled for at least a week, G.E. said.

The commerce department reported that the backlog of unsold goods held in inventory continued in October to outstrip sales, a certain sign that business will reduce production and lay off workers to bring balance between inventories and sales.

The department said manufacturers hold an average $1.77 in inventory for every $1 in sales.

Meanwhile, Democrats and Republicans are squabbling over whose fault it is that Congress probably won't act on President Ford's economic program until deep into the winter.

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott said the Democrats aren't doing anything about the economy except talking. "There is no bread in rhetoric," he said.

TESKEY REPORT LAUDED

The president of the Victoria police union said today if the police board did not act upon the recommendations in the undisclosed Teskey report "we would have to re-evaluate our decision not to make its contents public."

Kenneth Teskey, a second-year law student at UBC submitted the unsolicited report to chief Jack Gregory, the police commission and the union in September after working for a summer as a law-student constable on the force.

Negotiations for next year's contract with the city opened this week.

In his report Teskey offers "constructive criticism" on working conditions, personnel, finances, and claims low morale is endemic in the face of chronic equipment and manpower shortages.

"It is not our intention to hold the report as a club over the heads of the board members but if pushed we wouldn't hesitate to use it that way," Const. Patrick Braiden said.

Doubled Oil Price Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should let the price of oil climb to match higher world prices in the next few years, the Economic Council of Canada recommends today.

The proposal would mean almost doubling the cost of gasoline and heating fuel. Crude oil prices in Canada currently are held at about $6.50 a barrel, $5.20 less than world prices.

The council, in its 11th annual review, says the attempt to hold down oil prices inside Canada may provoke future shortages. The council includes representatives of business, labor and farm groups. (See other council recommendations on Page 3.)

Holding down the price encourages greater use of oil products, detracts from conservation measures, uses up existing reserves more quickly, discourages development of higher-cost Arctic reserves and may foster development of industries dependent on low-cost oil that would be forced out of business when future shortages push up costs.

"We recommend that the federal and provincial governments allow the price of oil to move to international levels over the medium term and that they inquire into, and encourage, the adoption of energy-conserving practices," the council says.

The present pricing program was presented as federal policy a year ago, when world prices were climbing, and was worked out in agreement with the provinces last spring.

$1.5M Fire Destroys Letters

TORONTO (CP) — A $1.5-million fire blazed fiercely through Metropolitan Toronto's main post office building today, destroying thousands of pieces of mail and probably knocking out the 53-year-old structure permanently as a postal facility.

The classic downtown building that forms the east wing of Union Station, which was to have been abandoned by the post office department starting next April, was ravaged through three of its four floors and mail-sorting and distribution equipment destroyed or damaged so badly that it is unlikely to go back into commission before the scheduled move.

Most of the overnight mail in the building — which processed about 30 per cent of Canada's national postal traffic — had been moved out before the fire was discovered on the topmost of its four floors at 5 a.m. But postal officials said the fire destroyed a considerable quantity of first-class mail in oversize envelopes mainly destined for Ontario and Quebec.

An unknown quantity of parcel post, some of it being repaired after being damaged in transit, also was burned or further damaged by water and smoke.

To meet the opening of the Christmas rush, plans were being made to set up emergency operations in buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition.

The Toronto Fire Department, which made the damage estimate, fought the three-alarm fire with 17 pieces of equipment and 85 men in 20-degree weather that coated the location at the busy corner of Bay and Front streets with ice while rush-hour traffic was detoured around a four-block area in the city's downtown heart.

Orange flames burst part of the roof in a southwest section of the postal building and ate through the floor of the fourth storey while smoke and water did heavy damage to the next two floors down.

Between 50 and 60 overnight workers in the buildng — called Postal Station A — escaped without injury after a cleaner found fire coming through a conveyor belt system on the top floor, some of them rushing into the bitter cold in shirtsleeves. Later in the day, there would have been from 800 to 900 persons in the building.

The postal building, apart from handling a heavy volume of Canadian mail mainly originating in or destined for Ontario, also was the primary handling centre for Ontario overseas mail going both ways and a lesser amount for Western Canada.

Overseas mail involving Quebec and the Atlantic provinces — and some Western Canadian overseas mail — has been handled through Montreal.

Tanaka Resigns In Shame

TOKYO (AP)—Hailed two years ago as Japan's man of the future, Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka says he is resigning in shame and embarrassment over "misunderstandings" about the sources of his private fortune.

Tanaka, 56, announced today that he would remain as prime minister until the ruling Liberal Democratic party can find a successor. This might take two weeks.

The leading contenders are former Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda, 69, Tanaka's chief political foe, and Finance Minister Masayoshi Ohira, 64, a powerful Tanaka supporter.

Nicknamed the "computerized bulldozer" because of his energy and skill with finances, Tanaka began his stewardship of Japan in July, 1972, by spearheading a successful campaign to recognize mainland China.

In between, inflation, soaring living costs, international monetary problems and suggestions by the respected Bungei Shinju magazine that he had used his office for private gain brought him down.

In a resignation statement, Tanaka said: "I deeply feel political and moral responsibility for the current political confusion which has resulted from my personal problems."

He said he eventually plans to "make clear the truth and seek the understanding of the people." He added that misunderstanding among the people, "even for a moment, means that it is a matter of shame as a public official that I feel hard to endure."

PLO Wants Hijackers

BEIRUT (UPI) — Angry members of the Palestine Liberation Organization said today they would impose the death sentence on four Arabs who hijacked a British VC 10 to Tunis if the Tunisian government complied with a PLO request to hand them over.

Palestinian sources said the PLO is exultant over UN recognition of its cause and is in no mood to tolerate threats to its authority from dissident guerrillas.

The hijacking incident, which ended Monday, was, in effect, aimed at the PLO, the sources said. The five guerrillas flown from Cairo to join their comrades in Tunis were technically prisoners of the PLO, although they were held in an Egyptian jail.

Protests Useless On Housing Units

By PAT DUFOUR

Whether the Saanich council or public agree or not, the provincial government can go ahead and build the controversial 305-unit Interurban-Marigold housing complex.

Close to 300 Colquitz residents mounted a well-organized opposition to the project at the largest public hearing in the municipality's history Monday night.

Briefs, scores of letters and a warning of impending social disaster by a social worker persuaded council to table the issue for further study.

But, legally, the entire proceeding was an academic exercise.

Mayor Ed Lum told the Times today the provincial government, if it wished, could go ahead and build the complex without being answerable to the municipality.

Monday's hearing was on a land-use contract between Saanich and the government-owned Dunhill Development Corporation Ltd.

Lum said he had checked with municipal solicitor Doug Patterson earlier Monday and been told that an amendment to the Municipal Act, passed in 1973, had taken away the provincial government's power.

Lum said, however, that a further amendment to the act, passed Friday, restores the provincial government's power to supersede the wishes of municipalities.

He said, however, the pattern had been that the provincial government takes into consideration municipal recommendations although they had no legal authority to make them.

At Monday's public hearing the crowd crammed the municipal chamber, standing two-deep along the walls, with scores listening from the outside foyer.

Thirty-four letters, received at the last moment, were read by municipal clerk Gordon Hayward, his voice getting hoarse by the time he reached the end.

The writers were all in opposition, except one, who wanted to know where she could apply to buy one of the condominium units.

The entire audience were in opposition except three non-Saanich residents involved in co-operative housing complexes in other parts of Greater Victoria.

One of the most outstanding presentations was a well-researched 10-page brief by

Bombs Blast London

LONDON (CP) — Terrorist bombs have again ripped through central London, this time during a full police alert, injuring 20 persons and stretching British tolerance to the breaking point.

Within hours of the three large blasts at the height of the Monday evening rush hour, stunned, uneasy Londoners had virtually vacated the usually-bustling streets, leaving an eerie silence broken by the occasional whine of police and fire sirens.

The bombs, which exploded in letter boxes at Piccadilly Circus, King's Cross and the Victoria area, followed an announcement by the Labor government that it plans to outlaw the Irish Republican Army (IRA) and take tough new measures against all other guerrilla groups in the country.

While no organization has yet claimed responsibility for the attacks, police are operating on the theory that the IRA was involved and a spokesman for Scotland Yard said further violent outbursts must be expected in the near future.

Hospitable Chinese Inscrutable on Trade

By LINDA HUGHES

PEKING — British Columbia's socialist members and their Chinese Communist hosts sipped fine wine together Monday in the splendor of the Imperial Palace of Eternal Spring.

The B.C. delegation was ushered into the Empress of China's delicately decorated waiting room where ornately carved marble-topped tables were laid out with hors d'oeuvres, fruit and fine antique china.

The elegant respite followed a tour of the old Forbidden City where the group was dazzled by imperial splendor so sharply in contrast with the meagre existence of the Chinese people outside the palace walls.

After walking across acres of deserted courtyards and through dozens of palace buildings, the delegation was given the special privilege of walking through the rooms where the Ming and Ch'ing dynasty emperors lived for nearly 600 years.

The precious and indescribable treasures within those rooms and in a special display of priceless jewels and antiques, left the British Columbians totally awed despite Premier Barrett's speech to his host that the children they have seen at a commune on the weekend "were more precious than any treasures."
